Budget Tangle Adds to Cheap Dollar Demand

Cry for "50-Cent Dollar" Grows; Six-Billion Outlay Indicated.

Tremendous Sum Marked for Relief

By Elliott Thurston.

Demands for the "50-cent" dollar and for billions more of relief funds echoed more loudly than ever yesterday from the Capitol as President Roosevelt struggled with budget estimates that foreshadow a total of at least $6,000,000,000.

For a third day of "budget week," the President, Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, his special assistant, Earle Bailie, and Budget Director Lewis Douglas poured over the figures. Douglas has estimated $2,600,000,000 for the ordinary running expenses of the Government in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

To this the President disclosed that he would probably add at least $350,000,000 for the Civil Works Administration, $1,875,000,000 for public works, and $500,000,000 for direct relief, making a grand total of $5,325,000,000, without allowing for further Reconstruction Finance Corporation financing, for home loan and farm mortgage operations, for the NRA, the Tennessee Valley development and numerous other emergency activities.

Final Needs Unknown.

The Administration is unable at this time to tell within a billion dollars as to how much the final budget requirements might be. Douglas is battling for an end of the extraordinary outlays now, to insure a fully balanced budget and safeguard the Federal credit before heavy commitments threaten resort to the "printing presses," but he recognizes what the White House describes as social needs—if not political pressures—and will be guided by a rule of reason.

White House discussions are amicable, but the issue over what the recovery bill is to be and how it is going to be paid is a vital one and closely bound up with the fate of the dollar.

The President said yesterday that Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, estimated 4,000,000 men would be at work by the end of this week on C. W. A. funds. It is estimated that $400,000,000 now available for this will last until February 15, and that fully $350,000,000 more will be needed to carry on to "liquidate" this form of relief. The plan is to taper off by March 1, by climatic zones, and the hope is that recovery and public works will absorb most of the 4,000,000 C. W. A. workers thereafter.

Large Surplus Sighted.

It is emphasized that it was not yet possible to tell how much the R. F. C., the Farm Credit Administration and the home loan system will need; that fully a billion dollars might be involved in these and related requirements; that a large surplus is in sight over normal operations—Douglas has estimated a possible surplus of well over a billion; that Douglas naturally strives to hold down outlays

Poison Pen Laid To CCC Youth

New Rochelle, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP). Lebro Ginlitti, 22, Brooklyn, was arrested at Fort Slocum today on a charge of sending threatening letters to President Roosevelt.

Ginlitti was alleged to have started sending the letters about two months ago. Recently he joined the Civilian Conservation Corps. He was sent to Fort Slocum.

Police charged Ginlitti wrote that the President, the Government and the country were "no good" and that as a protest he would blow up public works.

The letters were intercepted at the White House by Stephen T. Early, secretary to the President, and never reached Roosevelt. Federal agents traced them to a Brooklyn address. They visited the house and said they found a milk bottle filled with explosives, controlled by a time fuse.

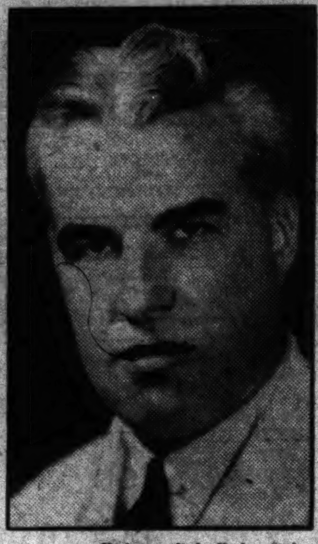
The prisoner was taken to New York. Officials said they believed he would be given a sanity hearing.

Fisherman Finds a Seal In His James River Net

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 13 (AP).—When C. M. Tennis, of Rescue, Isle of Wight County, went to lift his nets in the James River this morning, he got something of a jolt.

Entangled in his net, and regarding him with a curiosity that matched his own, Tennis found a live seal. It weighed 106 pounds.

Becomes Steel Aid



Underwood & Underwood.

EDWARD R. STETTINIUS, former executive officer of the NRA's Industrial Advisory Board, who resigned yesterday to become vice chairman of the finance committee, United States Steel Corporation.

Stettinius Quits Recovery Post For U. S. Steel

Johnson Regrets Departure and Lauds Him for Work.

Edward R. Stettinius, jr., who had part in the development of the NRA as executive officer of the Industrial Advisory Board, yesterday resigned to become vice chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation.

Announcement of his appointment by the board of directors in New York was followed here a few hours later by an appreciative statement from Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, who termed his work "of the very highest order."

As Washington representative of industry during the formative days of the Recovery Administration last summer, Mr. Stettinius served as liaison officer between the NRA and the Advisory Board. In this position one of his chief functions was obtaining several hundred technical advisers to represent industries at code hearings.

Acceptance of his new position, interpreted as another step in the reorganization of the United States Steel Corporation, also meant his resignation as vice president of General Motors Corporation. This was accepted "with deep regret" by Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president, according to the Associated Press.

Only 33 Years Old.

Only 33 years of age, Mr. Stettinius is the son of the late Morgan partner who came into prominence during the war as Assistant Secretary of War. Despite his comparative youth, his standing in the industrial world was evidenced by the steel corporation's almost unprecedented action in selecting him from outside its own field to one of its highest offices.

Mr. Stettinius' resignation from the Recovery Administration was announced by Gen. Johnson with this statement:

"Edward Stettinius, secretary of the Industrial Advisory Board, has resigned to accept one of the highest offices in the United States Steel Corporation. He will be greatly missed and his place in NRA wil be hard to fill, but we can hardly stand in the way of a young man's advancement.

"His work here was of the very highest order. He has the good will of the entire organization, and especially, of both the Industrial and the Labor Advisory Board, with whom he was in the closest contact."

Ickes Hurls Threat of Jail At Lobbyists

Secretary Asserts They Collect for "Pull" That None Has.

By Felix Bruner.

Lobbyists who have accepted money on the pretense of influencing public works allotments are facing jail, it was revealed at the Public Works Administration yesterday.

Secretary Ickes, in his warfare on the horde of special agents, attorneys, experts and "expediters" who have been swarming about the PWA, has ordered evidence against some of them turned over to local grand juries and prosecutors. In some instances indictments are expected on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

The "persona non grata" system of discouraging agents and lobbyists has been applied to several such persons. The only instance that has become public was the order to PWA employes informing them that James L. Bernard, of Washington, a manufacturers' agent, was persona non grata at the PWA and asking them to inform Secretary Ickes if he attempted to approach them.

Employers Get Notice.

The "persona non grata" system has taken other forms in numerous cases. In these instances, employers of the agent whose activities are considered by the P. W. A. to be irregular or unnecessary have been informed that their representative is persona non grata with the P. W. A. and advised that it would be to their interest to see that he does not appear again at the Public Works Office.

In cases in which there is positive evidence that an agent has told persons interested in obtaining P. W. A. allotments that for a sum of money he would be able to influence awarding of an allotment, and where money actually has been paid, the evidence has been turned over to prosecuting officials. False-pretense charges in these cases would be brought in the place where the money was paid.

This extreme action has followed repeated warnings by Secretary Ickes against "influence bootleggers," as persons who have alleged influence with Government officials are being termed.

Pay None, Ickes Advises.

In July, Ickes issued his first warning advising interested persons not to waste their money on specialists who claim to have the "inside track."

"Anybody employing any volunteer 'advisers' will do so at his own risk and will in all probability be disappointed in the 'investment,'" Ickes said at that time.

This warning was followed by another in which he said:

"The hotel lobbies in this city are swarming with men who claim that they can get favorable consideration for a project and in spite of warnings sent out they are able to collect large sums of money in the way of retainers and fees."

He added a warning that there was no short cut to any Public Works fund.

"The fact is that if it is known here that people are being employed to advance projects, we are likely to look with suspicion on such projects," he added.

Warnings Ineffective.

These warnings, it was said, had some, but not much, effect. Investigations then were instituted to learn under what circumstances agents had been employed. It was

New Losses Found In Postal Burglary

Detroit, Dec. 13 (AP).—In addition to $19,000 in postage stamps and an undetermined amount of registered mail, the thieves who broke into the Alfred street branch postoffice station Tuesday night obtained postal savings certificates of a total value of $31,500, and $379 in cash.

This was disclosed late today by Peter Wiggle, assistant postmaster, who pointed out, however, that the savings certificates were of value only to the owners, who must identify themselves in order to cash them.

President Braves Icy Streets To Visit 3 Aids Confined to Bed

(Associated Press.)

Despite hazardous weather and matters of precedents, President Roosevelt went motoring over icy streets late yesterday to talk business and visit with three members of his Cabinet, who are confined to bed with illness.

His two-hour tour through the sleet took him to the Naval Hospital, where Secretary Ickes is recovering from a broken rib, to the home of Secretary Swanson, who has a severe cold, and thence to Walter Reed Hospital, where Secretary Dern is receiving treatment for an infected eye.

A motorcycle police escort plowed through the late day traffic for the President and brought him back to the White House after nightfall.

Mr. Roosevelt went first to the workshop set up by Secretary Ickes in the Naval Hospital, and in a half hour's visit took up some of the problems of the public works program which Mr. Ickes administers.

Proceeding to the home of Secretary Swanson at 2136 R street northwest, Mr. Roosevelt talked with Mrs. Swanson a few minutes in front of the home. He did not go into the house.

The President found Secretary Dern sitting up in bed. None of the secretaries had prior knowledge of the impending call.

Bandits Capture 5 And Empty Bank's Safe Deposit Boxes

Chicago, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Seven bandits entered a closed bank today, held five persons captive for two hours and escaped with an undetermined amount of loot from the safety deposit boxes.

The loot, taken from the United Trust & Savings Bank, was estimated as high as $100,000.

The first of the bandits entered the defunct bank about 2 p. m. The bank has kept its safety deposit department open, though closed for some time.

The bandit asked Joseph Kinch, custodian, whether he could rent a box, seized him and bound his hands and feet. Six other bandits entered a few minutes later. They carried crowbars, gimlets and sledges.

David Kolber, Joseph Bara, Frank Destree and W. G. Nelson entered the bank while the robbers were working and were made prisoners.

Many Children Injured Sledding; More Cold Forecast Today.

After hours of perilous struggling yesterday and last night over traffic-snarled, icy streets and roads, Washington and environs faced another jittery day afoot and awheel this morning. Meanwhile, Associated Press reports of foundering ships in gale-lashed seas and of suffering following subzero temperatures all over the world continued to pour in.

Late last night more than 50 persons had been injured here in falls on treacherous sidewalks and by skidding automobiles. A score of children, hurt while coasting, were among the injured. Indications were that the toll would double by morning.

Skidding on a frozen highway near Fredericksburg, Va., a freight truck plunged into a deep gully, killing the sleeping relief driver, J. L. Murdock, 36, of Cascade, Va. The driver and a passenger were not hurt.

Girl Coaster Is Killed.

A motorist and a young girl coaster were killed in separate accidents in Baltimore as icy pavements claimed scores of injured and rendered traffic a bewildered jam.

Powerless in a furious gale off the East Suffolk coast of England, a cargo steamer, with all hands aboard, foundered in the raging Atlantic. Off the North Atlantic coast of America, a pounding winter storm sank scores of fishing craft and caused heavy loss of fisherman's gear.

Central Europe was gripped in a frigid wave that ranged from 6 above zero in Berlin to 9 below in eastern Prussia, Associated Press dispatches said.

Locally, the worst situation was engendered as soon as business began to shut down late yesterday. Main thoroughfares and all roads in Prince Georges, Montgomery, Arlington and Fairfax Counties became cluttered with skidding automobiles.

Cars Strewn in Ditches.

Ditches along the Baltimore boulevard, along the Lee highway in Virginia, along the Marlboro pike, were strewn with abandoned cars. Like conditions prevailed on Columbia pike in Arlington county, on Wilson boulevard in the same county, and all main highways in surrounding regions.

Weather experts early today predicted slightly colder temperatures, freezing the ice more firmly. Rising thermometers predicted for later in the day gave rise for hopes that the ice on the roadbeds would melt.

In the midst of the discomfort caused by the storm, children welcomed the glassy streets with whoops of joy. As soon as school was dismissed sleds began to appear and by nightfall many streets were crowded with coasters.

Skid Chains in Demand.

Skid chains were as precious as water on the desert last night. More than 1,000 calls were handled

Britain to Pay U. S. $7,500,000 Friday

London, Dec. 13 (AP).—Great Britain is expected to give the United States, in Washington, Friday, a check for $7,500,000 in recognition of its war debts.

The token payment, to be made in dollars, likely will be in the form of a check written on Britain's dollar account in the United States, informed quarters believed.

A total of approximately $117,670,000, including interest, is due the United States day after tomorrow.

Settle's Balloon Flight Recognized as Record

Paris, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Man's highest ascent into the stratosphere today received official recognition by the International Aeronautic Federation.

The altitude of 18,665 meters (62,237 feet) attained last month by Lieut. T. W. G. Settle in his balloon from Akron, Ohio, was formally recognized with brief ceremonies as a world record.

U. S. Drops Ban on Rum From Abroad

Score of Witnesses Ask Low Liquor Tax at Hearings.

President Urged to Cut Whisky Tariff 50 Per Cent.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Federal Government moved methodically toward solution of the domestic liquor problem yesterday as a score of witnesses urged low taxes before two Congressional revenue committees and the Federal Alcohol Control Administration removed barriers to permit importation of 5,595,137 gallons of foreign liquor.

Completing three full days of hearings, the Senate Finance and the House Ways and Means Committeess prepared to wind up their record at noon today with sentiment tending toward a sharp cut under the $2.60 liquor tax proposed by the interdepartmental committee.

Developments were:

The United States Tariff Commission, in a recommendation, urged that the President use his full flexible tariff authority to slash by half the tax on foreign beer. Under the law, the President can cut the tax from $31 a barrel to $15.50.

Foreign Quotas Set.

Joseph H. Choate, jr., chairman of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, announced allocations to dealers of nearly 6,000,000 gallons of imported wine, champagne, brandy, whisky, rum, gin, cordials and liqueurs under 425 temporary permits. With a 1,100,000-gallon quota, Italy led nine other countries.

A code for the wine industry gradually took form at a public hearing. Codes for the distilling, brewing and rectified liquor industries already have been promulgated by the President.

The State Department pressed negotiations with Great Britain, France, Ireland, Argentina and Greece looking to reciprocal trade agreements whereby import quotas from those nations would be enlarged in exchange for purchases of American farm products. Power for the President to adjust liquor tariffs under permanent reciprocal agreements is waiting approval of Congress.

Meantime, the Senate Finance and the House Ways and Means Committees heard novel proposals for coping with the liquor traffic. These ranged from a suggested Federal wholesale liquor monopoly to a plan for scaling down import barriers for a four-year period, until American distillers age enough liquor to supply domestic needs.

U. S. Monopoly Proposed.

A Federal wholesale liquor monopoly was proposed by Dr. Luther Gulick, of the Rockefeller Foundation, who suggested all liquor move through the Federal Government to State liquor authorities, who would pass it on to consumers.

Dr. Gulick urged a maximum tax of not more than $3 a gallon, providing the Federal Government collects for the States. If the committee decided against allocations to the States, he said the Federal tax should not go over $2.

With combined Federal and State tax of $2.50 a gallon, he said cheap whisky could be retailed at $1.50 a quart.

Dr. F. W. Buck, of the Federal Dispensary Tax Reduction League, asked a reduction in the import tax to $2.50 for four years, to curtail the use of American rectified liquor.

Says Blended Rum Harms.

"My studies have shown most cases of delirium tremens are produced by excess use of rectified liquor or gin," he said.

Later, P. J. Curran, of Detroit, representing rectified liquor interests, took the stand in rebuttal. He declared he "never heard of anybody getting 'D. T.'s' from drinking blended liquor."

J. W. Murray, who said he was a Holyoke, Mass., liquor importer, held the attention of the committee at the morning session, charging a gigantic liquor "trust," operating more than 26 distilleries, is now making contracts for liquor sales

Lindberghs Stop Next at Puerto Rico

Colonel and Wife Expect to Be Home Christmas.

Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, Dec. 13 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh announced tonight he would lift his big red and black monoplane from Port-of-Spain harbor between 6 and 7 o'clock tomorrow morning, bound for Puerto Rico.

Anxious to be in Miami before the end of the week in order to be home by Christmas, Col. Lindbergh visited the plane today and filled its gasoline tanks, emptied yesterday in a flight of 1,100 miles from the interior of Brazil.

Federal Rule of Phone, Radio, Wire Combines Urged Upon President

Special Committee Is Behind Move to Cut Competition.

Roosevelt Holds Off on Decision

Merger of Telegraphs Also Declared Best for Efficiency.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Consolidation of the Nation's communication services into a huge monopoly of from one to three units under regulation of the Federal Government, acting through a newly created Communications Commission, was proposed yesterday to President Roosevelt by a special interdepartmental committee charged with a study of that subject.

President Roosevelt reserved decision on the committee's recommendations until its report has been reviewed by Senator Clarence C. Dill and Representative Sam Rayburn, chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committees of the Senate and House, respectively.

But no doubt existed that the Roosevelt Administration was determined to deal in the coming session of Congress with the thorny problem resulting from the destructive competition which exists between the almost wholly unregulated telephone, telegraph and radio companies doing an interstate and foreign business.

May Cut Charges.

Affording these companies, which represent an investment aggregating more than $7,000,000,000, an opportunity to increase their efficiency so that in some cases they can be required to reduce their charges to the public, and in other instances may become profitable enterprises, is regarded by the President's advisers as a task in the field of public utilities only second in importance to stabilizing and coordinating the transportation systems of the country.

Recommendations to accomplish the latter goal now are being drafted for the next session of Congress by Joseph B. Eastman, transportation coordinator. Both the proposal to coordinate and regulate communications and the plan to end the admitted chaos existing in transportation may figure among the most important subjects before the next Congress.

In approaching its problem, the communications committee gave considerable thought to Government ownership of the Nation's telephone, telegraph, and radio facilities; but after that subject was reviewed pro and con in the report to the President, the decision was reached that for the present, at least, private ownership under Federal regulation would be preferable.

U. S. Ownership Is Threat.

Apparently it was the intention of the special committee to hold Government ownership as a threat over the telephone, telegraph, and

Mrs. Donnelly, Kidnap Victim, Weds Jim Reed

Former Legislator From Missouri Is Married in Kansas City.

Kansas City, Dec. 13 (AP).—James A. Reed, outspoken Missourian in the United States Senate from 1911 to 1929, was married at a surprise wedding here tonight to Mrs. Nell Q. Donnelly, for whom he directed the search as her attorney at the time of her sensational kidnaping in 1931. She is a wealthy garment manufacturer.

The independent Democrat, whose sharp tongue frequently lashed out at the policies of President Wilson during his Senate days, took as his bride an attractive business woman who has for long been his political supporter and friend.

Another friend of long standing, Federal Judge John C. Pollock, officiated at the ceremony, witnessed by only a few friends at a dinner of duck and venison, which Reed killed on a Northern hunting trip.

"It's a surprise," Reed announced, his blue eyes sparkling.

The marriage was the second for both. Divorce last year terminated the 26 years of married life of Mrs. Donnelly and Paul Donnelly. Reed's first marriage, of 45 years duration, ended with the death of his wife, the former Miss Laura Olmstead, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa., October 12, 1932.

The high esteem in which Reed held Mrs. Donnelly was reflected in a statement he made during the 34 hours she was in the hands of kidnapers, who sought unsuccessfully to collect $75,000 ransom.

"If a single hair of Mrs. Donnelly's head is harmed," he said, "I'll devote the rest of my life to tracking down her kidnapers and sending them to the gallows."

Dentist Slain, Police Seek Woman Flier

Jealousy Theory Prompts Search for Victim's Companion.

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 13 (AP).—Search for a red-haired woman was begun by police tonight as they attempted to solve the slaying of Dr. Leonard Siever, 45, dentist, whose bullet-marked body was found near two stone sphinxes of the Scottish Rite Cathedral here early today.

Police said jealousy might have been the motive for the killing. A friend reported Dr. Siever had "lost all faith in women" because a woman to whom he was devoted had proved untrue.

Officers said the red-haired woman was an aviatrix, known in social circles for her elaborate parties, and had been Dr. Siever's companion on many occasions.

Catered to Elite.

Dr. Siever's professional cards carried the phrase "Aesthetics in Dentistry," and he played soft music on a phonograph while he worked on his socially prominent patients.

Harold Fox, a milkman, found the dentist's body by his parked automobile. Siever had been shot twice, once through the base of the skull and again through the heart. His pockets had been rifled and his watch and wallet were missing, but authorities said they believed this had been done in an attempt to disguise the motive.

Had Phone Call.

The time of the slaying was set by authorities as between 6:30 and 7:15 p. m. Tuesday night. He left his office about that time, police learned, and was to have called for

Earle Wynekoop Hits Boy With Automobile

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—An automobile driven by Earle Wynecoop, 27, freed a few days ago as an accessory to murder for the death of his youthful wife, Rheta, tonight struck and injured Frank McGovern, jr., 9.

The child was not hurt badly and Wynecoop, riding in the car with his sister, Dr. Catherine Wynecoop, took the boy home.

U. S. Offers CWA Crews Medical Care

4,000,000 Made Eligible for Hospitalization by Government.

By Douglas Warrenfels.

All Federal medical centers will be thrown open to any of the 4,000,000 Civil Works Administration employes injured or who contract a disease in line of duty, it was learned last night.

Officials divulged a special fund, probably running into millions of dollars, would be set aside to provide hospitalization to retain private physicians and to compensate men and women workers while incapacitated. The plan will be placed in operation soon under authority of emergency legislation. Congress later will be asked to approve the undertaking.

Veterans' organizations were expected to oppose the C. W. A. medical program before Congress on the grounds that so many persons would be sent to Federal hospitals there would be no beds for former service men. Disclosure by The Post yesterday that 350 Civilian Conservation Corps men and only four war veterans are patients at Walter Reed Hospital, famous for its treatment of veterans, caused a stir in service circles.

Care Freely Given C. C. C.

Hospitalization has been made available to C. C. C. men without regard to whether injury or illness was directly attributable to their work.

Army, Navy, Veterans' Administration or Public Health Service hospitals would be used when C. W. A. employes suffered injuries while working in the vicinity of such institutions. In cases where no Federal medical centers were available, the patients would be sent to State, county or municipal hospitals.

Persons hurt in accidents at isolated points would be sent to private physicians, retained by the local C. W. A. administrator. Those doctors would receive fees from the Federal Government on the basis of the amount a physician ordinarily would obtain from a person in the same wage class.

In addition, several hundred physicians will be designated to care for C. W. A. injured in localities

Morgenthau's Shower Bath Bill Is Rejected by McCarl

Somebody other than the taxpayers must pay for Henry Morgenthau's shower bath, Comptroller General McCarl ruled yesterday.

Last summer, when Morgenthau, now Acting Secretary of the Treasury, was head of the Farm Credit Administration, and the weather was hot and sticky, a pastel-tinted shower bath and air-conditioning device were installed adjacent to Morgenthau's office.

The bill, amounting to $1,406.48, was paid from the Emergency Credit Relief Fund.

In the course of months, the voucher for the payment reached the office of the Comptroller General. He ruled payment for shower baths and similar conveniences could not be made from the relief fund.

When the shower was installed the general expense fund was exhausted. It is still exhausted and there won't be any more until the next fiscal year. But the Comptroller General ruled the bath can't be paid for from the fund then, because next year's fund can't be used to pay this year's bills.

Another rule is that the disbursing officer is responsible for unauthorized expenditure of money.

But Mr. Morgenthau has declared that, come what may, the disbursing officer will not be compelled personally to pay for the bath.

Girl Murder Witness Slain

Strangled in Bed With Electric Cord in N. Y. Apartment.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—A pajama-clad young woman found slain in an upper West Side apartment today was identified by detectives tonight as a witness whose testimony helped send two men to prison on long terms for murdering a former convict.

The attractive brunette, 25 years old, was found strangled to death under circumstances which recalled the mysterious murders of Dot King and Louise Lawson about ten years ago.

Leaders View Silver Lining In Trade Cloud

By Kendall Foss

Prospects for a general tariff agreement may be pretty slim right now, but neither President Roosevelt nor his Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, proposes to be deflected from their common goal of a freer, healthier international trade by the blackness of the present outlook.

Somebody must start the ball rolling and it might as well be the United States—this seems to be the underlying philosophy of the Administration. This was made quite clear yesterday when the President indorsed Secretary Hull's resolution before the Pan-American Conference in Montevideo on Monday.

The resolution, while recognizing the difficulties, calls for bilateral reciprocity treaties and for a general policy of gradual tariff reductions to be initiated as soon as feasible. Both men appear to regard such measures as something of an entering wedge. It is hoped in this way to start a movement back toward the days when discriminatory barriers to the free flow of international commerce were at a supportable minimum.

New Diplomacy Progresses.

When 13 nations backed out of the world tariff truce set up by the London Economic Conference, it was obvious this method of reviving trade was too grandiose to be effective. Another and more realistic technique was sought.

It has been found in the present attempt to negotiate bilaterals which, however, shall be explicitly open to other nations to join. And, in introducing his resolution, Secretary Hull was careful to sketch in his concept of a broad, comprehensive system of agreements, bilateral and multilateral, and uniform in content. Which is another way of reminding the world that he and the Administration have not lost sight of the goal he sought in London.

Backing up words with deeds, the Administration has negotiated such a treaty with Colombia which is only waiting signature. Similar negotiations for bilateral reciprocity treaties are under way with the Argentine, Brazil, Sweden, and Portugal, with the prospects considered favorable.

Benefits Sought for Farmers.

George N. Peek, newly appointed to head a committee studying export possibilities, is expected to speed up these negotiations and to initiate others where his studies lead him to hope for results.

It is noteworthy that discussions on trade stimulating possibilities regularly emphasize agricultural surpluses as the field in which the Administration is most interested. Pork products, cattle, grains and some fruits appear to be uppermost in official minds when exports are under consideration.

The logical deduction is that bilaterals will be sought most vigorously with industrial countries capable of absorbing American foodstuffs. Treaties with nations which might, in return for concessions, offer markets for American industrial products take second place in the general scheme for revival of international trade.

This is especially clear in connection with liquor quota discussions now going on. Britain, France, Canada, Ireland and Greece are being urged to help the farmer if they wish to increase their liquor exports to the United States.

Diplomat Mentioned to Succeed Debuchi Has Served Years in U.S.

Tokyo, Dec. 13 (AP).—A Rengo (Japanese) New Agency dispatch today said it has been learned that Foreign Minister Koki Hirota has decided to name Hiroshi Saito, present Japanese Minister to Holland, as Ambassador to Washington.

The foreign office, however, still insists the successor to Katsuji Debuchi, who recently resigned, has not been chosen.

The government steadfastly has insisted that no appointment will be made until after Dubuchi's return tomorrow.

(Associated Press.)

Hiroshi Saito, Japanese Minister to the Netherlands, who is mentioned in Japense news dispatches for the post of Ambassador at Washington, has lived many years in the United States and speaks English fluently.

He visited here last year en route from Toyko to the Hague. He served for some time as third secretary of the Japanese Embassy here and was a member of the Japanese delegation at the Washington conference in 1921.

At one time he was consul at Seattle and from 1923 and 1928 was consul general in New York. He left that post to become director of the Bureau of Intelligence in the Toyko foreign office.

Make Benefits Of NRA Last, Governor Asks

Richberg Flays "Rule or Ruin" Stand by Foes in Talk to Consumers.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire today urged action by the States to support and make permanent social and economic advances of the NRA.

"We want minimum wages fixed, we want control of hours and we want to rid this Nation of the blot of child labor," Winant told the National Consumers League.

Gov. Winant spoke after Donald Richberg, general counsel to the NRA, charged both industrialists and labor leaders were responsible for strikes which he said have impeded the progress of the recovery program.

Richberg said:

"We can not be long tolerant of men who will not cooperate—who will not even enter the conference room opened and maintained by the Government—who stubbornly insist they will rule or ruin their own affairs, regardless of whether thereby they may bring ruin to the Nation."

Richberg said NRA success depends upon cooperation among employers, employes, and organizations of the two groups. He said success was predicated upon:

"1. Genuine collective bargaining;

"2. An opportunity for impartial adjudication of controversies which can not be settled by agreement;

"3. Assurances to both parties that agreement will be respected; and that each party will aid the other in planning and maintaining continuous and orderly industrial operation."

Richberg said each group of employers and employes was expected by the Government "to exercise a corrective influence to prevent abuses of the liberties which are granted to every other group."

The Government, Richberg said, should be ready to insure that no group should coerce any other group, and that no combination of groups should exploit the public.

N. Y. Fugitive Shoots Posse Member, Flees

Dannemora, N. Y., Dec. 14 (AP) (Thursday).—Cornered by a posse of Dannemora State Hospital attendants and volunteers, Wesley Alger, 43, hospital trusty, who escaped last night, shot a member of the posse in the arm early today and dashed into a heavily wooded section before he could be captured.

'Hearts and Flowers' Composer Dies; World Still Sings Song

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The song has ended for Theodore Moses Tobani, who composed "Hearts and Flowers" in 30 minutes and lived to hear it sung around the world.

Tobani died yesterday at his Queens home. He was 78, a kindly, contented old man who had a white moustache and loved to hum music and play billiards.

It took him half an hour to write "Hearts and Flowers" in 1893. The melody came to him one day while he was on vacation. For 30 minutes he worked furiously and from the jumbled notes came the theme song for lovers in that glamorous era.

Within two years it swept the country and traveling Americans took it to foreign lands. More than 23,000,000 copies had been sold at the beginning of this year and the song still sells at the rate of 200,000 copies a year.

Tobani wrote it as a piano composition and then transcribed it for the orchestra.

He didn't know exactly how he happened to hit on the simple, wistful strains of the song.

"That's hard telling," he once said. "There was an 'old flower' song, you know. I write a 'new flower' song and later I thought I could improve on this. 'Hearts and Flowers' was the result."

Tobani was an accomplished musician, playing the piano, violin and cello. He was born in Germany and began his music studies at 10. He could compose without touching a piano—merely sit at his desk, regardless of surroundings, and write a score.

"I hear it all in my head," he said once. "Most of my things I never listen to later."

He composed 5,480 works, the last work in 1917, just before the jazz era was born.

Veteran of '65 Convicted Of Son-in-Law's Death

Greensboro, Ala., Dec. 13 (AP).—Less than four weeks after his 80-year-old father-in-law was shot to death from ambush, John Georgia, 91-year-old Confederate veteran, today was sentenced to 10 years in the State Penitentiary for the crime.

Georgia, formerly a well-to-do Hale County planter, was convicted of second-degree murder late today and sentence was pronounced immediately.

Cleaners' NRA Row May Bring Test in Court

A court test of the Administration's power to fix minimum prices above cost was forecast yesterday afternoon as the NRA turned over to the Federal Trade Commission a list of 100 cleaners who refused to charge the 65 to 95 cents for cleaning a suit which their industry's code demands.

The men, who told NRA compliance officers Tuesday that their businesses would be ruined if they charged rates as high as the code provides, come from 27 States.

There are four from Virginia, the Home Dry Cleaners, Bristol; Pulaski Hat Shop, Pulaski; Nu-Way Laundry and Dry Cleaners, Mount Vernon Heights, Roanoke, and J. C. Felton, the Cleaner, Suffolk.

15 From North Carolina.

Fifteen are from North Carolina the largest number from any State. They are a Mr. Nichols, the Morgan-Hoffman Co., Valet Service Shop, Victory Cleaners, Advance Cleaners, Ideal Cleaning Co., Unity Cleaners, Royal Cleaners, Charles Place, Lincoln Cleaners, Hollywood Cleaners, all of Winston-Salem; Leonard Cleaners, Lexington; Farrabee Brothers Cleaning & Dyeing Works, Salisbury; McCorkle Cleaners & Dyers, Charlotte, and the Leonard Dry Cleaning Co., Greensboro.

During the hearings which led to the citations to the Federal Trade Commission, which can prosecute the violators and subject them to penalties of jail terms or $500 fines, the Roanoke fight between those who wanted to continue the 95-cent minimum and those who wanted lower minimums and a differential in favor of a cash-and-carry concerns received marked attention.

W. A. Stewart, of Roanoke, who said he represented his and six other concerns, asserted the bulk of their business came from silk-mill workers earning $13 to $14 a week, and railroad workers, who, until recently, averaged only three days of work a week. The minimum price, he protested, should be 75 cents for call-for-and-deliver companies and 60 cents for cash-and-carry shops. He had made money by cleaning suits at 45 cents, he added.

Tells of "Chiseler."

C. D. Garland, however, said his business had increased 20 per cent since he began charging $1 for call-and-deliver work under the code.

Mr. Garland spoke of the golden age of the dyeing and cleaning industry in Roanoke, which was shattered when a "chiseler with a wife, a Ford and $20 bill" arrived in town, secured by good luck one of the best-located stores in the city on a week-to-week rental and started in business at a 45-cent price.

The other members of the industry in the city finally decided to drive him out, hired a nearby store under a fictitious name and started a 30-cent scale. They eventually drove the "chiseler" out of town, but by this time, according to Mr. Garland, Mr. Stewart started a price war. Later, prices were fixed satisfactorily, and peace has reigned since.

Paris, Dec. 13 (AP).—An express train killed seven section hands and injured eight today when it ran into the workers.

Raft Clouts Chin Of Film Producer And Not in Play

As far as the film colony could remember, it was the first time an actor had punched a producer.

PWA Is Likely To "Go Broke" In 3 Weeks

Failing Resources Imperil Career of NRA and Other Units.

The $3,330,000,000 public works program is scheduled to "go broke" in approximately three weeks, officials conceded yesterday.

In addition to shutting off new projects, exhaustion of the Civil Works Administration's huge resources will imperil the career of NRA and other recovery units financed by the works grant. Already the C. W. A. scheme has scrambled for shelter, asking a new allotment of $350,000,000.

With a staff of 1,500 employes putting out recovery money as fast as it can, and only $300,000,000 left, P. W. A. will reach the end of its resources about the first of the year. Allotment of the last dollar around that time will find approximately $3,000,000,000 of unfinanced projects clamoring out in the cold.

Among the agencies imperiled are NRA, the C. C. C., the National Labor Board, the Oil Board and C. W. A. NRA received approximately $4,500,000 to finance its activities from P. W. A.

C. W. A. has been the first to realize the danger and President Roosevelt yesterday announced he will ask an additional $350,000,000 to keep its 4,000,000 employes working until May 1. The present fund will be exhausted February 15.

No one seriously anticipates that there will be no more public works funds. But prompt action will be imperative if the recovery units financed by P. W. A. are to continue functioning.

The "pinch" will not be felt around the Works Administration immediately, thanks to allotments which were authorized but did not go through. In several instances millions were allotted but, because of failure of States to comply with conditions, the allotments never were taken out. This source will provide some "slack" to ease the blow.

Responsible officials, however, conceded that without more funds there will be considerable realignment of administration employes after the first of the year, and discharge of some.

Paraguayans Take 2 Bolivian Forts

Asuncion, Paraguay, Dec. 13 (AP). A government communique said today that Fort Samaklay, in the Gran Chaco, had fallen into the hands of Paraguayan troops after having been abandoned by remnants of the First Bolivian Army Corps, fleeing toward Fort Saavedra.

Samaklay is situated southeast of Fort Saavedra. Another government communication declared the Bolivian fort, Murgia, was occupied by Paraguayans.

Bolivia called 16-year-old boys to the colors in an attempt to recoup the losses, dispatches from La Paz said.

83 Strikers Carried To Jail by Airplane

Ville Marie, Quebec, Dec. 13 (AP). Something new in the north country's police history—transportation of 83 arrested persons to jail by airplane—took place today.

Eighty-three men, most of them striking lumberjacks, were moved the 90 miles from Rouyn, Quebec, to Ville Marie's new jail by four airplanes making hourly trips in a light snowstorm.

Woman Hurt in Fall Down Stairs in Store

She was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Policeman Falls Dead After Catching Thieves

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Traffic Patrolman Louis G. Windieck saw two young men snatch bundles from a moving truck today. He chased them, caught them, turned them over to two other policemen, and fell dead. He had exhausted himself in the short chase, and suffered a heart attack, police surgeons said.

Idle Women

CWA Jobs Are Found for Nearly 100,000.

Nearly 100,000 women have been employed under the C. W. A. program, it was announced yesterday. Relief authorities declared "a new day has dawned for the 'Forgotten Woman.'"

The woman's division of C. W. A. reported 400,000 women were in "wretched plight." Of these, 94,798 have been given C. W. A. jobs.

Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, head of the women's division, said Mrs. Roosevelt is aiding in the campaign to help women. She asserted the movement is gaining momentum, and that in every State leading women are calling organizations together to help.

Projects for women included reconditioning of books, making mattresses, and sewing, Mrs. Woodward said. Tulsa, Okla., she said, has a model sewing center.

French Flier Missing at Sea

Nobleman Gone 36 Hours; Another Feared Lost Lands Safely.

London, Dec. 13 (AP).—A French nobleman was missing tonight, more than 36 hours after he had embarked on a flight across the stormy British Channel, but another aviator for whom fears had been expressed landed safely at Le Bourget Field in France after spanning the Channel.

Vicomte Charles de Manneville started from Croydon Airport yesterday morning and was last heard of when his plane, in which he flew alone, was reported over the Lympne Air Base, near the Channel, 45 minutes later.

Early tonight, until he set his plane on the field outside Paris, fears were felt for A. Henshaw, a Briton. He won the Siddeley Trophy in King's Cup air races this year.

Two Bandits Get $15,000 in Vault

Robbers Bind 3 Employes in Bay State Bank.

Turners Falls, Mass., Dec. 13 (AP). Two bank robbers bound three men with wire in the Crocker National Bank and escaped with cash estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000 after forcing one employe to open a vault today.

Andrew Sauter, janitor, was cleaning up at 8 a. m., when two men came to the door with a package. Sauter was about to sign for the package when the men stuck a gun against him, forced him into the back of the bank and bound him with wire.

Earl Squires, a teller, and Thomas Frawley, paymaster for the Keith paper mill, were similarly captured when they arrived.

Spanknoebel Aid Jailed.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 13 (AP).—Walter Kauf, alleged bodyguard of Heinz Spanknoebel, reputed Nazi agent, was sentenced to six months in the county penitentiary today by Judge Brennan. Kauf had been convicted of a concealed weapon charge.

Spanish Jails Filled as Army Crushes Revolt

Rebels Scattered, Hunted Through Nation; Cabinet Expected to Quit.

Madrid, Dec. 13 (AP).—Embers of the revolt which burned over the week-end in many parts of Spain were being extinguished by the government today.

Jails were filled throughout the nations as troops continued to round up suspected revolutionists, and temporary quarters were brought into use.

Guards arrested four women revolutionists in a raid on a rebel stronghold here today, along with a band of men, who were armed with pistols.

Cabinet Expected to Resign.

Former Premier Alejandro Lerroux, whose cabinet resigned October 10, was expected to form another in short order. Conservatives, including the Monarchist party, were placed in a dominant position by the recent election which resulted in current revolt.

Provincial reports today told of sporadic minor outbreaks. At Elche one Syndicalist was killed and nine were wounded when guards prevented the raising of a revolutionary flag. The death toll exceeded 100, with hundreds wounded, in the revolt which broke out last Friday.

Churches Attacked.

Attempts to burn three churches at Almeria failed. A church at Orihuela was damaged by fire.

The Government received word tonight from Valencia that Anarchists nearly succeeded in wrecking the Barcelona-Seville express for a second time.

A section of the track over which the express was routed was torn up by bombs. Patrols discovered the damage and flaged the train.

Cuba Bomb Shuts Off Supply of Water

Matanzas, Cuba, Dec. 13 (AP).—A bomb tonight destroyed one of the tanks in the city waterworks, leaving the business district without water. Soldiers fired on bombing suspects throughout the city.

Severe Quake Noted On Ohio Seismograph

Cincinnati, Dec. 13 (AP).—An earthquake, described as "very severe," was recorded this afternoon on the Xavier University seismograph.

The tremor began at 4:29 (E. S. T.) and continued nearly two hours. Its origin was estimated as probably in the Acapulco Deep, off the west coast of Mexico, and about 1,900 miles from Cincinnati.

Death Rides on Yule Gift Trip; Parents Die in River Plunge

It lay in an automobile at the bottom of the Cuyahoga River, a sodden package, for nearly 40 hours.

Today, after Bobby Samons, 4, and his brother, Frank, 3, had cried themselves to sleep for two nights because mother and daddy didn't come home, the car was located and raised.

It contained the bodies of mother and daddy; Capt. and Mrs. Frank M. Samons—and a friend, John Murphy. The parents had bought the train for Santa Claus' pack shortly before they were plunged into the icy water by a sickening skid on a snow-covered roadway.

The orphaned boys tonight were taken to the home of a distant relative, Mrs. K. J. Urquhart. She will care for them until Mrs. Samons' parents arrive from Fort William, Ont.

"I haven't the heart to tell them," she said. She had sent the boys to play in the snow to distract their attention from the parents' failure to come home.

But she promised that a shiny new train, and toy soldiers, and other toys which may help to heal the ache in two little hearts, will be found in their stockings Christmas morning.

Betty Compson Weds Her Manager, Weinberg

The couple continued their journey to Hollywood and from there they probably will fly to Agua Caliente for a brief honeymoon.

Mae West Robbery Suspect's Trial Set

Declares Confession Was Result of Torture.

Los Angels, Dec. 13 (AP).—Repudiating the confession authorities said he made concerning the robbery of Mae West, screen actress, Edward H. Friedman pleaded not guilty to the robbery charge today, and his trial was set for January 15.

Friedman's lawyer requested that Superior Judge Charles Fricke set aside the defendant's confession on the ground it was obtained by torture. Photographs of asserted injuries caused by officers who questioned him were attached to two affidavits saying Friedman appeared to be dazed after his arrest.

Hiram Johnson Sees Roosevelt Hope of Nation

Returns Pledging His Aid, Asserting Old Parties Are Realigning.

By Martha Dalrymple.

Support of the Roosevelt recovery program was pledged yesterday by Senator Hiram Johnson, California Republican.

The senator, driving here from San Francisco, dramatically informed newspaper correspondents that if the country did not choose to follow the President's program, it would promptly "go to hell economically."

Tempering his whole-hearted support of Administration policies, Johnson firmly pointed out, however, that he would not sacrifice his independence. This independence of Johnson's is so famous there is some doubt as to what party banner he will choose when he runs for reelection next summer, or whether he will pass up both groups and run independently.

By next summer, however, the senator believes possibly the present "economic and social revolution" will have forced a complete political realignment, although he did not profess to know how the new forces might be arrayed.

"It would not necessarily be the formation of a third party," the white-haired Californian said, "but there certainly has been a loosening of party lines. It is different from 1912. Everything has gone topsy-turvy. But to say there may be different labels, I don't know. In six months, maybe."

Sees Power Shifted.

In 1912 Johnson was Vice Presidential candidate on Theodore Roosevelt's unsuccessful Progressive ticket.

"There is a different situation today," he declared. "Either we are going through with this economic program of leveling the merits of individuals, or we are going to hell economically."

Explaining how for many years too few people had too much power he predicted the great financial and industrial figures of boom years would be discredited for at least another two years, perhaps for a decade, he continued:

"The gods of 1929, whom you have seen marching in such disarray before the Senate Banking Committee, have been stripped so bare that they are no longer to be reckoned with at all.

"These gods furnished us with one consolation, which is that while we have known only a little about finance, we know now that the great leaders of finance know nothing at all."

Firm for PWA Program.

On details of the President's program, the senator was just as determinedly outspoken as he had been on generalities. His indorsement of the Public Works Administration included suggestions for increased appropriations for the work. He said:

"We have started on this program and we should finish it. We shouldn't stop half-way."

Johnson was very emphatic as he denied Washington rumors that he had been sent for by President Roosevelt to arrange an agreement with the Progressive Republicans in Congress in return for increased public works allotments. The possibility of his appointment to the Supreme Court he dismissed airily by pointing out that there are no vacancies on that bench.

He said he has not seen President Roosevelt, but plans to ask for an interview within a short time.

He returned to Washington at this time, he said, due to local California matters and to the need of preparing for the convening of Congress January 3.

Dentist Slain, Held Victim of Jealousy

Mrs. Frances Coen Cooke, socially prominent divorcee, to escort her to the home of Mrs. Edna Herbst, also socially prominent.

"Leonard called me Tuesday afternoon and asked me to go with Mrs. Cooke and himself to play squash," Mrs. Herbst told authorities.

Mrs. Cooke said she "waited and waited for Leonard and when he didn't come I became angry and then worried."

"Finally I telephoned Mrs. Herbst and then I went to her home in a taxicab," she continued.

With Mrs. Herbst and Mrs. Cooke on the verge of hysterics as a result of the killing, a third woman, Mrs. W. Paul Loveland, entered the picture.

Telling police Dr. Siever had been a "trusted pal" of hers, Mrs. Loveland directed the dead man's affairs be turned over to Wheelock Pooler, whom she described as "Sievers' friend."

Siever was a founder of the Artist-Students League, a benefit foundation for music students, to which he contributed several scholarships.

Mother in Baltimore.

A friend, Dr. F. P. Weston, at whose home Dr. Siever lived, said he had a horror of firearms. Dr. Weston said the dentist was born in Russia, coming to this country when a child, and had a brother in Russia and his mother and two sisters in Baltimore.

Board of Trade Turns Down Gold Resolution

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The Board of Trade today sent back to its finance committee a resolution calling on the National Administration to return to an "adequate gold standard" after Frank A. Vanderlip, banker, charged it was phrased with "weasel words."

James P. Roe, secretary, moved the resolution be recommitted, asserting the American people, although eager to see stabilization, owed it to the administration to give their support while attempts are being made to iron out international inequalities in currency bases.

Sleet Storm Halts Traffic in Capital

by the American Automobile Association. All sorts of assistance were asked.

Charitable agencies were swamped with applications for aid. All sleeping facilities were in use early in the evening.

Scores of motorists attempted the questionable transit through Rock Creek Park yesterday morning and had to walk to work or go home. Park police soon barricaded most of the hazardous thoroughfares through the park.

Sand and ashes were strewn on many hills throughout the city to facilitate traffic, but this measure was of little help. Thirteenth Street Hill was roped off early in the day. Special details of police hastened to Calvert Street Bridge to help vehicular passage, and throughout the night police details were busy erecting barricades at perilous street entrances, placing lanterns and answering accident calls.

California Storm Swept.

Drenching coast and valleys, winter yesterday swept over California, according to the Associated Press.

Streets of many cities ran deep with water and in Los Angeles and Oakland nine deaths were caused as motor cras crashed. Six of the deaths were in Los Angeles, where the rain ended a month of drought.

A heavy passenger bus, Washington-bound, lost traction on a glazed roadway at Fairfax Courthouse and nearly plunged down a 15-foot embankment after colliding with a passenger car.

Walker Bond, of Winchester, Va., driver of the smaller vehicle, was taken to Alexandria Hospital where is was said he had sustained a fractured left knee and several broken ribs.

The bus ended its flight on the slippery road when it smashed into a group of trees and a telephone pole, and poised on the brink of the embankment. The eight passengers, en route from Roanoke, and the driver, Edgar Sharp, of Charlottesville, S. C., were unhurt.

Two Others Hurt.

An automobile crash on the glazed Washington - Baltimore boulevard near College Park last night resulted in serious injuries to two youths.

Horace Lamb, 19, of 611 Jefferson avenue, Riverdale, received a severe eye injury and multiple lacerations, while Albert Burrhus, 19, of Cecil avenue, Hyattsville, sustained face lacerations and a broken finger. They were treated by Dr. Martin J. Keane of Riverdale.

More than 100 cars were abandoned in Soldiers Home grounds after owners found it impossible to traverse the glazed roads.

Many cars were damaged on Cleveland avenue northwest, when they became uncontrollable on the slippery grade.

Electric lights in southern Maryland were cut off for a considerable period last night when a truck driven by George Amos, 30, 629 Seventh street northeast, skidded into a transformer at Burgess Hill, Md. Amos was not hurt.

Jury in Bribe Case Reported Deadlocked

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The foreman of the jury deliberating bribery charges against Ervin F. Brown, nephew of Mrs. William N. Doak, widow of the Hoover Administration Secretary of Labor, announced late tonight they were "hopelessly divided."

Christmas Mail Again Deluges Missouri Home of Santa Claus

Clayton Bridges, rural mailman, has prepared for a busy season. Hundreds of letters and packages, coming not only from the United States, but Sweden, Denmark, France, Germany, England and Italy, are deposited in the Claus box annually.

There was a time when Mr. Santa Claus—it's his real name and he's 52 years old and a tenant farmer near Slater—answered all correspondence.

But this year—"money which might go for postage now goes for food," the head of the house explains. There is Mrs. Claus and there are eight little Clauses.

The Claus home is small. The original two rooms were built when President Polk was in the White House.

"Christmas will not be much for us this year," Mr. Claus says. "Conditions haven't favored us greatly. But we can't and won't complain. When we see and hear of other families who are so much worse off than we are, we feel happy."

New Plan May Open Havana As Free Port

Action Proposed in 30 Days; Welles Back on U. S. Soil.

Havana, Dec. 13 (AP).—Antonio Guiteras, Cuban minister of the interior, revealed tonight a plan under consideration to declare Havana a free port "within the next 30 days."

Guiteras said the measure was part of a Leftist program, which he presented to President Grau San Martin, and added that he was studying a system of widespread agricultural reform.

American Ambassador Sumner Welles left today for Washington, after being the guest of the American Club at a luncheon, where he was enthusiastically praised by prominent representatives of the American colony for his work in furthering friendly Cuban-American relations.

Speculation on the reported mission of Jefferson Caffery, President Roosevelt's "personal representative to Cuba," filled editorial pages of the newspapers today, and was the chief topic of conversation.

In a front-page editorial, Dr. Jose I. Rivero, dean of Latin-American newspapermen, exhorted Cubans to "Show what you can do!" and "Be able to accept Mr. Roosevelt's offer of modification of the permanent treaty of 1901."

Welles Reaches Miami.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP).—To an accompaniment of cheers from a crowd of several hundred persons, most of them Cubans, Sumner Welles returned to the United States late today to resume his former post as Assistant Secretary of State at Washington.

The diplomat was almost swept off his feet when several score Cubans, most of them in exile here, edged through a group of Americans to greet him as he walked off the dock after arriving here by airplane.

5 Southern States To Map Labor Laws

Miss Perkins Meets With Committee in Atlanta.

Atlanta, Dec. 13 (AP).—Representatives of five Southern States, meeting with Secretary of Labor Francis Perkins today, voted to organize a permanent steering committee to promote "harmonious standards of labor legislation."

Miss Perkins named Turner Battle, an assistant in the Labor Department, to act as temporary secretary.

Composed of State, labor, social and education representatives, it was announced the committee will work out a legislative program for presentation to the legsilatures of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, South Carolina and Tennessee.

Miss Perkins outlined ten objectives as the consensus of interstate conference on labor and social problems.

Torch Death Jury Hears 'Hate' Diary

Widow's Book Claimed to Show Murder Motive.

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 13 (AP).—A circuit court jury trying Mrs. May Hanson for murder listened today as the prosecution read from a diary and letters in efforts to show a motive for the torch death of her divorced husband, Earl.

The "little brown book"—the diary the State maintains Mrs. Hanson wrote—made sarcastic references to Earl. In a letter written to Earl's employer, head of a milling machine company, were the words:

"But let me warn you that if he (Earl) is ever caught prowling around here again I'll vow he'll not look the same when he leaves."

Inventor, 65, Kills Daughter and Self

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP).—Leaving his sick chair, Charles T. Hentschel, 65, retired inventor, today staggered into the kitchen where his invalid daughter sat playing with paper dollars, shot her twice through the heart, and then returned to his chair and fatally shot himself.

The daughter, Elizabeth, was 26 years old. Both she and her father, according to neighbors, required constant care. The father had been thought unable to walk.

In a note to his wife, Hentschel said:

Nations Vote Pan-American Meet in 1934

Four Countries Accept United States Plan to Revise Tariffs.

Montevideo, Dec 13 (AP).—Pan-American Conference delegates in a burst of speed today voted to hold an Economic Congress of Pan-American Nations in 1934, at which Mexico's debt postponement proposal would be the chief topic of discussion. Santiago, Chile, was chosen as the site.

The delegates then voted to hold the next Pan-American Conference at Lima, Peru.

Meanwhile, representatives of the United States, Argentina, Uruguay, Mexico and Chile reached agreement on adjustments to the United States' tariff proposals, which were viewed as enabling the acceptance by all Pan-American nations.

The conference also tonight proposed directly to Bolivia and Paraguay that they establish an armistice in their warfare. The conference hoped for answers within 48 hours.

The United States' Cuban policy was fiercely attacked during the day.

Angel Alberto Giraudy, the Cuban minister of labor, asserted that the United States had intervened in his country by not recognizing the government of Ramon Grau San Martin.

"If Ambassador Welles' propagating the revolution as charged by the Uruguayan Minister to Havana is not intervention," he maintained, "if upholding a minority group against the wishes of the people is not intervention; if surrounding the island with warships is not intervention—then the United States never intervened in Cuba!"

Barreda Laos proposed as a substitute for the Hull tariff measure the statement, "The Pan-American conference agrees that high tariffs and other trade barriers contribute powerfully to prolong the present world crisis."

12 Feared Lost as Ship Sinks Off British Coast

London, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Twelve persons were feared to have drowned when an unidentified steamer of about 600 tons was seen to sink off the Suffolk coast tonight, as one of the worst storms in years swept the English Channel and the North Sea.

Lifeboats from shore were unable to approach the sinking ship, due to heavy seas. Numerous other ships were distressed along the British coast during the gale, and lifeboat crews in the Coast Guard worked heroically to rescue them.

Liberal Liquor Law Forecast For Virginia

Survey Ends; State Stores, Local Option May Be Effective March 1.

Richmond, Dec. 13 (AP).—The Virginia State Liquor Control Commission today completed recommendations on liquor legislation, which will be presented to the General Assembly when it convenes in January.

The recommendations, together with a draft of the proposed measure, were turned over to the division of legislative research to be whipped into correct legal form.

Indications are that the measure will call for a liberal policy on sale of beers and wines, with sale of hard liquors restricted to State-operated stores.

These stores, it was reported, would sell to citizens without permit cards, but sales would be of sealed packages only, with no consumption on the premises permitted.

It was reported that the plan calls for creation of a permanent control commission of three to administer the law, who would be named for long terms at salaries approximating $7,500 annually.

If approved by the General Assembly by a four-fifths majority, the control law may become effective by March 1, instead of on June 1, with a simple majority.

Presidential Fetes To Benefit Resort

5,000 Balls Set Jan. 30 for Warm Springs Fund.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Plans for separate presidential birthday balls in more than 5,000 communities next January 30, to raise a permanent endowment for the Warm Springs Foundation for victims of infantile paralysis, were announced today.

The balls will honor President Franklin D. Roosevelt on his fifty-second birthday. He is president of the Warm Springs Foundation.

Henry L. Doherty is chairman of the committee in charge. Others on the committee are Gen. John J. Pershing, Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Harvey S. Firestone, Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Owen D. Young, Will H. Hays, Col. Edward M. House, Otto H. Kahn, and John L. Lewis.

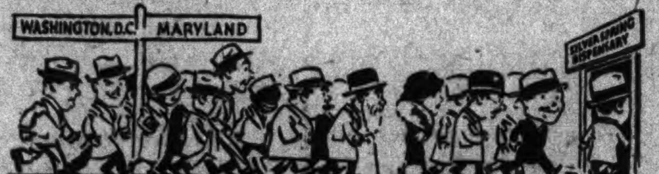
Two Counties Are Oases

Washingtonians Pour in Montgomery and Prince Georges; Women Customers Insist Liquor Is for Medicinal Purposes Only.



Disciples of Bacchus are pouring into Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties from Washington by the thousands daily after generous supplies of Christmas cheer.

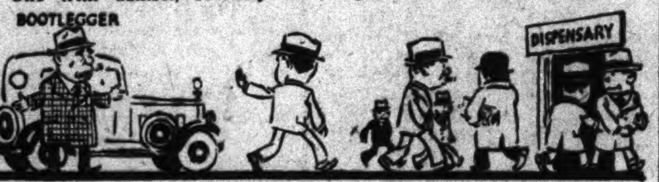
A reporter ventured forth yesterday on a personally conducted tour of nearby whisky stores and restaurants. He found most of the legal liquor buyers drove Washington automobiles. Though outnumbered by men, women customers were numerous. Rich man, poor man and here and there, strangely enough, a bootlegger—all were treated alike.

Business was especially brisk at the Silver Spring dispensary of the Montgomery County Liquor Board. A majority of the men sauntered up to the counter, took a fleeting glimpse at the price list and ordered without dilly dallying. Few of the women were so businesslike. Milady seemed ill at ease. Almost invariably she drummed the counter with nervous fingers, cross-examined the clerks and studied wine lists after the manner of a person deciding the itinerary of a world tour.

"Just for Medicine."

Well-trained clerks refrained from so much as batting an eye when woman after woman prefaced her inquiry by explaining she needed liquor "because we have illness in the family."

One trim damsel, serenely unaware that age is without significance in selection of such a beverage, wanted to know whether the gin she chose was aged.



Men, as well as women expressed curiosity about whether it would be safe to enter Washington with their purchases. Attendants answered they had heard of no arrests for such conduct.

A trembling, weather-beaten old man asked:

"Are you sure this stuff isn't poisonous?"

1,700 Customers Daily.

John C. Walker, general manager of all Montgomery County dispensaries, reported the Silver Spring store has been visited by between 1,200 and 1,700 persons daily since it opened a week ago.

Women patronizing the Bethesda dispensary appeared guided largely by distinctive labels in making purchases. While blended rye was in greatest demand at Silver Spring, imported wines were most popular at Bethesda. Attendants declared their stocks, depleted in the first days of repeal, now were large enough to withstand all inroads.

Several repeaters—men and women who returned for additional supplies almost daily—told clerks they could drink the legal product hour after hour without headaches on "the morning after the night before" as in the bootleg era.

Dispensary officials explained their price lists changed from day to day as they experimented with different brands to learn what the public wanted. Blended rye brought $2 to $2.15 a pint and $3.50 to $4.25 a quart. Bottled in bond rye sold for $3.50 a pint. Bourbon was $4.25 and Scotch $5 a quart. Gin sold for $2.50 a quart. Wines ranged from $1.50 to $6.75 a quart, depending on age and brand. Haut's sauterne, the wine most in demand, sold for $2.65 a quart.

Predicts Quart for $1.50.

Walker predicted the Silver Spring, Bethesda and Rockville dispensaries would place on sale blended rye at as low as $1.50 a quart Monday on receiving a large shipment from Kentucky. He conceded marked decrease in business was anticipated when liquor is legalized in the District.

"We have held our prices as low as possible," Walker declared. "We haven't tolerated graft and we don't intend to gouge the public."

"When is a restaurant not a restaurant?"

Such was the question confronting the Prince Georges County liquor commission as it began issuance of licenses. The law permitted sale of whisky by the drink in restaurants. The board at first was undecided whether to regard roadside lunch stands as restaurants. Lawyers suggested any public establishment with a kitchen was a restaurant. That opinion since has guided the board.

About two dozen liquor licenses have been issued by the board. Some permit sale for drinking on the premises while others authorize sale in package for home consumption. Restaurants reported a tremendous increase in business. Rye sold for 25 to 35 cents a drink. Waiters served drinks at tables only. Blended rye brought from $4.50 to $5 a quart.

Though prices of legal liquor were regarded as unusually high in some quarters, bootleggers were said to have virtually ceased functioning for the time being in both Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

Atheism in Schools Hit by Dr. Branson

Adventist Leader Sees "Wave of Skepticism."

Institutions of learning which teach that God is a myth were characterized by the Rev. W. H. Branson "as the greatest demonstration of ignorance and folly in the world," in an address last night in a Week of Prayer program.

Dr. Branson, president of the North American Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, declared the "world today is being flooded with a tidal wave of skepticism and infidelity which is largely the result of the kind of training the youth have received in institutions of learning."

Berle Selected For N. Y. Post

"Brain-Twister" Is Chosen by LaGuardia, Who Picks Cabinet.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Mayor-elect Fiorello N. LaGuardia, seeking men to reform the city's government, today turned to President Roosevelt's so-called "brain-trust" and named Prof. A. A. Berle, jr., as city chamberlain.

Berle, an adviser to Mr. Roosevelt during the Presidential campaign, accepted the office and then announced he would work for its abolition.

In addition to Berle, the cabinet selections were:

Corporation counsel, Paul Windels.

Later in the day, LaGuardia named Robert Moses to be park commissioner and William Hodson as commissioner of public welfare.

Moses, Secretary of State under former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, is chairman of the Long Island State Park Commission. LaGuardia said Moses would replace the five-man park commission now in existence.

Lecturer Will Discuss Celebrities of Stage

He will tell reminiscences of Sara Bernhardt, John Drew, the Barrymores, Alice Barry, Mary Garden and William A. Brady.

Tchekoff's "The Marriage Proposal" will be staged by a cast of the players including Romaine Stewart, Chester Ring and Zack Mace under direction of Anton Hardt.

Britain Spurns Request To Press U.S. on League

London, Dec. 13 (AP).—The government today turned down sharply a suggestion that the United States be asked what its objections were to membership in the League of Nations.

Godfrey Locker-Lampson, Conservative M. P., made the suggestion in the chamber this afternoon, and asked if the British government would make the approach.

at $1 a gallon. Pressed for details by committee members, Murray said he "had a family to support" and felt he would be running a risk in divulging names and places.

Prof. Yandell Henderson, of Yale, one of the original proponents of 3.2 per cent beer, asked that Congress promote temperance by placing a low tax on "whisky that has been diluted at the distillery down to 10 or 12 per cent of alcohol, and supplied only in pint or half pint bottles." He asked all "proof spirits" be taxed $4 a gallon.

Speaking for the American Legislators Association, Henry W. Toll contended the Federal Government should allocate 50 per cent of its liquor revenues to the States if it is to collect for both Federal and State governments.

Opposing the interdepartmental committee's recommendations, he said the Federal Government "might as well take it all as give them 20 per cent."

Nickel Beer Forecast.

Paul Garrett, New York wine manufacturer, asked elimination of taxes on all wines for home consumption, while Judge Marion DeVries, of the Wine Producers Association and Grape Growers League of California, urged the tax on still wines be held to 8 cents a gallon so as not to "jeopardize" the American wine industry.

George P. McCave, of the American Brewers Association, who said more beer is produced in this country than is being consumed, declared "nickel beer is on its way."

W. G. Wellhofer, of the National Retail Beer and Liquor Dealers Association, and William L. Carffman, representing Philadelphia liquor dealers, said the present $1.10-a-gallon tax on liquor should be continued, to drive out the bootlegger. Wellhofer said there should be an investigation of prevailing wholesale prices.

Dealer Qoutas Withheld.

In announcing liquor import quotas by countries yesterday, Director Choate, of the F. A. C. A., failed to disclose the amounts allotted to each of the more than 400 dealers receiving temporary four-month permits, although a full list of the dealers was made public.

Imports will be permitted in the following amounts during the period December 6, 1933, through March 31, 1934: Wine, 1,631,253 gallons; champagne, 239,218 gallons; brandy, 147,310; whisky, 3,314,443; rum, 40,630; gin, 99,056; cordials and liqueurs, 103,027.

France was allotted 784,000 gallons; Great Britain, 607,000; Germany, 399,000; Spain, 395,000; Japan, 187,000; Netherlands, 110,000; Portugal, 60,000; China, 35,000, and Greece, 25,000. The remaining 1,893,137 will be imported from Canada and other countries.

Brewers to Ask Tax Cut.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—The board of directors of the United States Brewing Association, representing 115 breweries over the country, has decided to petition Congress to reduce from $5 to $2 a barrel the Federal tax on 3.2 per cent beer and to set the tax on beer above that alcoholic content at $5.

First Hero Medal Awarded to Pilot

Mal B. Freeburg Saved 9; Praised by Roosevelt.

The bravery of an air mail pilot who saved the lives of his eight passengers, himself and a copilot, was rewarded yesterday by President Roosevelt. The Air Mail Fliers' Medal of Honor was presented to the pilot, Mal B. Freeburg, of Minnesota, by the President with words of praise. Freeburg thanked him, saying, "What I did was not so much."

Freeburg's feat was the maneuvering of his plane to safety after one of the three engines tore loose from its fastenings and threatened to bring disaster to the plane. He is the first pilot recommended for the medal, which was presented under authority of Congress.

Morgenthau and Sze Are Invited to Dinner

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., and the Ambassador of China, Dr. Alfred Sze, have been invited to attend a dinner in honor of Raymond Ashbery, field secretary of Cornell University, to be given by the Cornell Club of Washington in the Racquet Club at 5:30 tonight.

All members of the club have been requested to attend, Edward Holmes, club secretary, said.

Cold Freak!

Rockville Streets Not Icy Like County Roads.

With all other roads in Montgomery County covered with ice, streets in Rockville and the highway leading to Norbeck were strangely free of ice late yesterday. Though wet, the surface had not frozen.

Throughout other sections of the county cars were abandoned on slippery hills, and sand was furnished where the movement of traffic became impossible.

Children in Takoma Park tried to take advantage of the condition of the streets and go sled riding, but police stopped them for fear motorists would be unable to dodge the sleds.

Feet Betray

Alleged Chicken Theft Is Tracked by Police.

Charged with operating a "chicken-stealing ring" near Ritchie, Md., three colored men were yesterday held for the grand jury by Magistrate Horace Taylor, Upper Marlboro. They are Louis L. Williams, 28, Greensboro, N. C.; Thomas Allen, 22, and William Allen, 25, of Ritchie.

The men were tracked to their homes by means of lime sprinkled about the chicken house by Prince Georges County police.

Policemen Elon Turner and Oscar Beall, who made the arrests, said the men were caught after a raid on the Frank Bowman Poultry Farm, Ritchie. Bowman lost 300 chickens.

Lobbyists Face Crime Charges

said that in every case in which one agent has been stopped by being declared "persona non grata" or otherwise, there probably are a hundred still active.

One of the most flagrant cases to come to the attention o P. W. A. occurred in an Illinois city. The representative of an engineering concern approached city officials interested in obtaining a public works allotment and informed them of his "influence" in Washington. It was agreed that in return for obtaining the desired allotment he should receive 10 per cent of the entire sum as "engineering" fees.

This situation came to the attention of Public Works officials. City officials were informed that no such arrangement could be tolerated. The engineering concern, with which the man was connected, disclaimed all knowledge of the arrangement and discharged him from its employ.

Agents Hurl Threats.

At the P. W. A. office, it was said it was not unusual for agents to threaten political reprisals, to threaten "exposures" and to threaten to block projects unless they were given their way.

Some of the agents are professional lobbyists, residing in Washington or elsewhere, who make a busines of obtaining or attempting to obtain public favors. More often, however, the representatives are "home talent," individuals who have convinced their clients that they have influence in Washington and that unless they are taken along and paid a fee when a visit is made to Washington or a State headquarters by a delegation seeking money, there would be just no use of making the application.

"We can usually spot such home town 'specialists,'" one PWA official said. "Usually they have less to say than anyone else in the delegation. Frequently they have no knowledge whatever of the project under consideration. But they have convinced their employers that their very presence will so impress Government officials that the success of the mission is assured."

One group of applicants from a New England city informed PWA officials that they had been told that unless they paid a fee to a certain port collector, it would be useless for them to expect to obtain public works money.

Building Ban Impossible.

It was said that it is not legally possible to bar such agents from the Interior Building or even to spot them until after they have attempted to exert their alleged influence. It was added that the P. W. A. is determined to "demonstrate just how much influence they have."

It was pointed out that the P. W. A. system of making allotments makes the use of influence particularly difficult. Projects must be approved by legal, engineering and financial departments and finally by the board and the adminstrator. It was said it would be particularly difficult for P. W. A. lawyers, financial experts and engineers to cooperate in favoring a particular project, because investigations are assigned independently to the various departments. Thus a particular lawyer, for instance, would have considerable difficutly in learning which engineer had been assigned to a given project.

NRA Also Overrun.

Although the $3,300,000,000 fund of the P. W. A. has proved particularly attractive to individuals seeking to get their hands on easy money, the special agent racket has not been confined to the P. W. A. NRA has for months been overrun by a swarm of agents and experts who have sold themselves to clients seeking approval by the Relief Administration for their project. Gen. Johnson has endeavored to restrict their activities to legitimate channels, but the "influence bootleggers" are persistent. He also has warned of the uselessness of employing agents to exercise imaginary influence.

At NRA, however, employment of attorneys and experts frequently is necessary in order that cases may be presented and evidence given at public hearings. It was said, however, that frequently nonexistant "influence" has been sold to persons seeking NRA favors.

Officials designate all such persons as "lobbyists." However, the word is particularly unpleasant to persons so employed.

"The only man I have seen in Washington in months who announced himself as a lobbyist was a man seeking approval of a 13-month calendar," one official said.

Prince Georges Liquor Permit Denials Scored

Commission Bars Sale in Four Towns; "Wets" Charge "Frameup."

Liquor interests of Prince Georges County tomorrow will ask the county liquor commissioners to reconsider their action in refusing to grant liquor licenses to Mount Rainier, Hyattsville, Riverdale and Laurel, Md.

The commissioners, with a 2-to-1 vote, yesterday decided no temporary licenses would be issued the towns until sentiment could be more completely determined.

Arrangements are under way in each of the towns for a referendum, although this can not be legal without permission of the Legislature.

In Mount Rainier the refusal to issue the licenses has aroused bitter criticism on the part of "wets" who charge they were "framed" by the "drys."

Commission's Statement.

The Liquor Commission issued the following statement:

"The board has given the question of granting or not granting temporary licenses for the sale of alcoholic beverages within the corporate limits of the towns of Hyattsville, Laurel, Mount Rainier and Riverdale, serious consideration and has reached the decision to withhold approval of such licences at this time.

"In reaching this decision the board has taken into consideration what it feels are reasonable requests from the governing bodies of these towns that it withhold such licenses until such time as the real sentiment of the citizens of the towns on the matter is definitely and satisfactorily established before it. It feels that such sentiment has not as yet been established.

Up to Legislature.

"An element also taken into consideration was a recommendation from the county members of the Legislature that such a stand be taken by the board."

The formal statement was issued by A. Gwynn Bowie, attorney for the commissioners.

Four "off sale" licenses were issued other places in the county. They were given Mrs. Ellen V Miller and L. M. Schultz, Seat Pleasant; John A. Parker, Berwyn and Louise A. King, Floral Park, Md.

Policeman Finds 273d Stolen Car

N. Y. Officer Nicknamed "Eagle Eye."

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—"Eagle Eye Gus" chalked up another one today, making 273 altogether.

Gus, known formally as Patrolman Gus Schalkham, is the Police Department's champion stolen car spotter. In fact, he's so good that he has been given a roving assignment and does nothing else.

By Frank Getty.

Leesburg, Va., Dec. 13.—The brother of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley, and the colored former burglar accused of her murder confronted each other in the Loudoun County court room this afternoon, at the height of the presentation of the Commonwealth's evidence regarding the assault which took the lives of the popular Middleburg sportswoman and her aged maid, Mina Buckner.

Paul Boeing, dapper, high strung, aesthetic, and George Crawford, the squat, ill-favored prisoner, nodded and smiled at each other and in a measure removed the atmosphere of horror the prosecution evoked, through pathological testimony, in weaving its web of evidence around the accused.

Nothing of the January morning tragedy two years ago, when Mrs. Ilsley and her maid were beaten to death, was missing from the nervously given testimony of the, finder of the bodies, but the theory that the wealthy matron feared bodily harm at the hands of the accused was hard hit.

Sister Held No Fear.

Boeing, the well-groomed young Minneapolis furniture designer, with tears in his eyes, told of his panic upon finding the murdered body of his sister. He testified on cross-examination Mrs. Ilsley had not feared an attack by anyone and that by their common consent he had absented himself from the cottage in which she was slain on the night of the crime.

It was while he was sleeping in the Manor House on the Ilsley estate, as a precaution against burglary, he said, that his sister and her maid were slain.

The murdered woman's brother testified he knew nothing of a report she had consulted a Washington detective agency for protection against Crawford.

The prosecution brought out that burglaries had been frequent that winter on the estates of the Middleburg fox-hunting set, but Boeing testified he had taken Mrs. Ilsley's dog and gone to sleep in the Manor House, and that neither he nor she had considered the possibility of anyone entering the cottage.

Gen. Mitchell on Stand.

A succession of witnesses, including Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, several doctors, some neighbors of the slain woman and two Negroes, preceded and followed Boeing on the stand.

Only when he was being identified by witnesses did Crawford, slouched for the most part in his chair, the most inconspicuous person in the crowded courtroom, take any interest in the proceedings. When he was pointed out by witnesses, including his wife, Berda Deneal, the chunky, furrow-browed Negro beamed good-naturedly, and was restrained with difficulty from popping to his feet and bowing, as he did when identified by Boeing.

After the jury had been selected at the start of the day's session, the Commonwealth put on ten witnesses—six, including the coroner and two physicians, Boeing, Gen. Mitchell and a neighbor—to testify to the finding of the bodies and the brutality of the crime, and four, including Crawford's former mistress, to start the apparently lengthy process of proving the prisoner's guilt.

Pathologist Testifies.

Much of the day was given over to testimony of doctors, one Washington, pathologist, Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, getting involved in a lengthy technical discussion.

It was from the pathologist that the Commonwealth evoked testimony to the effect that Mrs. Ilsley, fighting for her life, had scratched skin and hair from her assailant, and that remnants beneath her finger nails proved later, to have come from the head of a Negro.

For a time, it looked as though there would be a legal battle over the murder weapon—after, cross-examination of Coroner John A. Gibson drew from him the fact that he believed the women had been slain with a heavy iron bootjack, found covered with blood in Mrs. Ilsley's bedroom.

While Dr. Gibson said he saw hair clotted in the blood on the bootjack, it later developed the Commonwealth did not intend to press this as the weapon which bashed in the victims' heads, because of a purported confession of Crawford's in which an entirely different instrument is said to have been named.

No Defense Witnesses.

The defense headed by Dr. Charles Houston, dean of Howard University Law School, cross-examined throughout the day, but have not yet summoned or sent for a single witness.

Houston explained this by saying he was awaiting conclusion of Berda Deneal's testimony, which was interrupted by adjournment. It is upon the story of this diminutive Negress, who lived in Boston with Crawford as his common-law wife, and to whom he is alleged to have written damaging notes before and after the date of the murder, that the Commonwealth is depending to lead up to introduction of the prisoner's alleged confession.

An additional witness from Boston arrived tonight to testify regarding the confession, which Crawford later refused to sign, in which he is supposed to have told of breaking into the Ilsley cottage with an accomplice, a Richmond Negro, who actually committed the two murders.

Commonwealth's Attorney John Galleher said tonight that an intended witness, who had told of Mrs. Ilsley's terror of Crawford, and her seeking the protection of a Washington detective agency, had fled and could not be found Worker's Wife Awarded Wealth, Bars Reporters.

New York, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Mrs. Ellen McManus Murphy, wife of a New York subway guard, would have no truck with the newspapers today after they had learned she is to receive a $165,000 legacy from the estate of Eugene Magevney in Tennessee.

The door was bolted against reporters and the only words coming from Mrs. Murphy, whose husband makes $20 a week, were delivered through the panels in a rich brogue.

"I have me plans," she shouted, "but they're all for myself and mine. Go away with ya!"

"And will you go back to Ireland, Mrs. Murphy?"

"Sure!" came her response.

Magevney died 60 years ago, but it was not until recently that the Tennessee Supreme Court decided Mrs. Murphy should share in his estate.

Denial of Cruelty Wins Clemency

Florida Convict Given 10-Year Term Cut.

Tallahassee, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP).—The State pardon board today cut 10 years off a man's sentence because he wrote a letter denying charges of cruel treatment and unfair punishment to prisoners in Florida road camps.

Gerald O. Steele, sentenced November 3, 1931, to 15 years for armed robbery in Dade County, was the lucky man.

Nathan Mayo, State prison commissioner, notified him that "I have read your letter to the pardon board and the governor specially appreciated it."

Austrian Fascist Stand Is Awaited

Statement Expected on Proposal Cabinet Ban.

Vienna, Dec. 13 (AP).—From a meeting tomorrow of the powerful Fascist Heimwehr, a statement was expected regarding the home guardsmen's stand in a tangled Australian political situation.

While Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss battled against German Naziism, his Christian Social party agitated for elimination of Heimwehr representation in the cabinet, and the Heimwehr itself urged a "Fascist renewal of Austria" and a curtailment of political parties' activities.

These days one does not hear so frequently the prediction: "A Nazi victory in Austria means immediate war!"

Union Attacks Woll's "Sound Money" Talk

Cleveland, Dec. 13 (AP).—The Cleveland Metal Trades Council today forwarded to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, a demand that Matthew Woll, third vice president, be removed from office because of his speech at a "sound money rally" in New York, November 27.

The demand was sent to Green by James P. McWeeney, council president, after the council had unanimously adopted a resolution asking that Woll be removed.

Virginia Suggests Survey To Help Jobless Architects

Canvass of Historic Places Would Put 1,200 to Work.

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 13 (Spl.). Colonial houses in this and other sections of Virginia are included in a recording survey of significant specimens of American architecture suggested to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes as a means of relief employment for achitects under the Civil Works Administration.

The project involves the expenditure of approximately $450,000 to hire about 1,200 men of arcitectural training for two months or more It would be possible for the men to go to work almost at once, with a minimum of equipment, supplies and general overhead expense.

Charles E. Peterson, chief of the Eastern division of landscape and architectural planning of the Office of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations, is the originator of the plan. He proposes a general canvass of structures erected between the earliest colonial times and 1860.

The list of building types would be almost a complete resume of the architect's art, including public buildings, churches, residences, bridges, forts, barns, mills, shops, rural outbuildings, and other types of buildings of which there are existing good specimens.

If the proposal is adopted, a National Advisory Committee of seven men will be created, four members to be named by the American Institut of Architects, and three to be named by the Director of the Office of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations.

Architects would be advised by this committee, for which traveling expenses would be provided. Its members would receive no salaries.

The proposal, which would provide a permanent record of the fast diminishing early American colonial architectural types invaluable to history and architecture, has received the indorsement of the National Commission of Fine Arts and the American Institute of Architects.

Police Relief Group Sued for Insurance

The Metropolitan Police Relief Association and three of its officers yesterday were named defendants in a suit filed in District Supreme Court, which seeks to enforce payment of a life insurance policy.

Katherine Simpkins, 1432 R street northwest, filed the suit. She declared she was named beneficiary in an association policy carried by Hugh McDermott, former policeman, who died November 8. She said she has been refused payment of the face value of the policy. Attorneys Carl O. Marshall and R. M. Hudson represented her.

Refuses to Resign Her Job as County Chairman.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP).—Mrs. Bula Croker, widow of the Tammany chieftan, steadfastly held her ground today in refusing to resign as chairman of the Palm Beach County Civil Works Administration Council, while Marcus Fagg, State executive officer, threatened to send in an outside administrator unless the situation is ironed out.

Mrs. Croker and her entire council have been asked to submit resignations, but, asserting that "things have been going on that are irregular," the widow said she not only would refuse to quit but would take the platform "to tell the people what's been goin on."

Gilbert Wynekoop Adjudged Insane

Brother-in-Law of Doctor Avoids Trial in Attack.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—Dr. Gilbert Wynekoop, brother-in-law of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, held for the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, was adjudged insane today by a jury. He had been arrested many times for molesting women.

He was ordered to the Illinois Hospital at Menard, and thus escaped trial on a charge of attempted attack on a nurse.

The Platt Amendment.

It is interesting to note that Jefferson Caffery, who goes to Cuba as President Roosevelt's personal representative, pending recognition of a government there, when he becomes ambassador, is empowered to continue discussion of modification to the Platt amendment to the treaty of 1901 between the United States and the island republic.

In his statement on Cuban affairs, issued at Warm Springs last month, the President said, "We have wished to commence negotiations for a revision of the commercial conventions between the two countries and for a modification of the permanent treaty between the United States and Cuba."

Manifestly, in the light of developments, one of the major modifications the President had in mind concerned the amendment, also embodied in the Cuban constitution, which reads: "The government of Cuba consents that the United States may exercise the right to intervene for the preservation of Cuban independence, the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty, and for the discharge of obligations with respect to Cuba imposed by the Treaty of Paris on the United States, now to be assumed and undertaken by the government of Cuba."

The amendment is an irritant in our relations not only with Cuba but with other Latin-American countries. Cuban political groups have maintained that it was an unwarranted intrusion upon their sovereignty, and their Spanish-speaking neighbors have used it to stir up feeling against this country. Its practicality in its present form has been brought into serious question by changed conditions and sentiment.

We have physically intervened twice, once in 1898, when the weak young Cuban republic needed to be helped to its feet, and again in 1906, when President Palma was faced with revolution and President Theodore Roosevelt sent in troops. Our interests in Cuba have grown enormously since then; even now they are estimated at $1,750,000,000. In the very nature of things—geography, economic forces, political relations—we are the most potent outside force in Cuban affairs.

We have several times brought pressure to bear diplomatically and economically. Certainly, it will be admitted on all sides that we had some part, at least, in the downfall of the Machado government. Machado was faced with revolution and, indeed, revolution came, but we did not find actual intervention either necessary or desirable.

In modifying the Platt amendment and the treaty, we need not abandon that special interest in Cuba which we naturally have because of geography, if nothing else. The Monroe Doctrine remains in force. Our investments in Cuba, and her position with relation to the Gulf of Mexico, the Panama Canal, and the American mainland, guarantee that we shall be as alert to her welfare as we have been in the past. Modification of the amendment would remove an irritant and evidence a higher respect for the sovereignty of a neighbor.

Art for Artists' Sake.

Unwittingly, it seems, the Administration has walked straight into a controversy that may put into the shade all the scrimmages of the NRA, the wrangling of the A. A. A. and the dialectics of the Treasury Department. The project to employ 2,500 artists for the decoration of Government buildings looked innocent enough on the face of it. But it appears that the C. W. A. authorities had not taken cognizance of some slight divergence of views in the profession of art.

Some conservative artists in New York are inclined to regard the project as a surrender on the part of the Government to those terrifying moderns. Shall customs houses, postoffices and zoological parks be adorned by dizzy figures and futuristic lines? The thought is anathema to artists of the old school. Even the prospect of 2,500 artists obtaining jobs at this critical time in the artistic history of America has failed to soften their attitude.

To Harry W. Watrous, president of the National Academy of Design, the C. W. A. project reveals "an atmosphere of exploitation of so-called 'modern' art." George Elmer Browne, president of the Allied Artists of America, declared that "it is not only humiliating to the Nation's leading art groups to be completely ignored but it is discouraging to those genuinely interested in the welfare of American art and artists." A "partisan policy of administration" that "would create a national injustice in the esteem of the public believing in fair play" seems to be feared by the American Artists Professional League.

Mrs. Juliana R. Force, director of the New York organization that will supervise expenditure of the artists' relief fund, pooh-poos this criticism. "My instructions from the Government," she says, "are to relieve artists in distress, not to promote any particular kind of art." But each school has its own notions as to how Uncle Sam's Indian reservations, hospitals and irrigation dams should be embellished. And so the controversy goes on.

It remains to be seen whether the Young Liberals can hold the inner lane on the artistic track. But it is safe to forecast the organization of a few advisory, arbitration and compliance boards in the artists' division of the C. W. A.

Being Fair to Facts.

In an editorial entitled "On Being Fair to Ourselves," Walter Lippmann maintains that the United States, like Great Britain, was forced to suspend gold payments, because of inability to complete the deflationary process made necessary by maintenance of the gold standard.

The United States is pictured as a nation struggling desperately to deflate until at the end the banking system collapsed. The British, on the other hand, are described as lukewarm upholders of the gold standard, whose inability to deflate wages was at bottom the cause of the downfall of the pound.

Here are the facts:

Great Britain suspended gold payments in September, 1931, because she faced exhaustion of her gold reserves due to external drains of panic proportions. To meet these demands which had resulted in withdrawals of $1,000,000,000 of foreign balances during a period of two months, the Bank of England borrowed $250,000,000 from the Federal Reserve Banks and the Bank of France.

But the run started by the financial collapse in central Europe continued and the Bank of England was compelled to ask for further aid. Following the overthrow of the Labor government, the new "National" Government obtained a second loan of $400,000,000 from private banks in the United States and France. This sum, too, soon approached exhaustion and suspension of gold payments finally followed, when the gold on hand was sufficient only to cover the amount of the emergency loans.

British resistance to wage cuts, coupled with budgetary difficulties, no doubt helped to increase foreign uneasiness regarding the outlook for the pound. But the basic trouble was assignable to the fact that the pound had been stabilized at too high a rate, leaving the country with an unbalanced international trade account, which made it dependent upon foreign funds to finance trade and capital operations.

Contrast this situation with that of the United States in the spring of 1933. Foreign balances had been reduced by that time to abnormally low figures. External gold drains had been met successfully, and when the banks reopened, following the March closing, gold and currency began to flow back into circulation from domestic hoards, and even on balance from abroad. We were a creditor country on current account; we were secure against the kind of external capital run to which the Great Britain had succumbed; the domestic panic was over; and gold reserves were, as Mr. Lippmann concedes, "very large."

Mr. Lippmann says, however, that we must "not be dazzled by the glitter of gold. The problem of adhering to the gold standard is a wholly different problem; it is whether internal costs are sufficiently in adjustment with the gold price level so that business can yield a profit." In his view we had to abandon gold because under the gold standard, we should have been forced to keep on deflating until costs had been adjusted to that mysteriously compelling gold price level which was luring us to destruction. As that level is only an average of the prices of goods and services which constitute the costs of business, we are led to infer that we had embarked upon an endless process of price cutting from which the gold embargo alone could rescue us.

This, of course, is an assumption unsupported by proof and indeed belied by the evidence afforded by past crises and recoveries. Under the gold standard, the United States has enjoyed years of prosperity in which business has expanded and prices have risen, and it has survived years of severe depression accompanied by sharp declines of prices.

These recurrent crises are traceable to innumerable factors that have little or no connection with our monetary standard. During and after the late war, for instance, we experienced a great inflationary rise of prices, followed by a serious collapse in 1920-21, as we faced the necessity of adjusting our trade and industry to a peacetime basis.

The gold standard did not bring about the post-armistice price collapse nor did it hamper a rapid recovery thereafter.

Again, in the spring of this year we were approaching, if indeed we had not already passed, the climax of a prolonged and extraordinarily painful deflation—the inevitable aftermath of previous overlending, overborrowing, excessive speculation and misdirected industrial activity. The general bank closing followed, but after the reopening and prior to declaration of the gold embargo in April, signs of trade improvement accompanied by rising prices were in evidence.

There were unmistakable indications that recuperative forces already were at work both in this country and in the rest of the world to bring about recovery. Large gold reserves and abundant credit resources were available to support a business upturn.

There was a revival in business activity after our departure from the gold standard, but it was based, in considerable measure upon speculative purchases of goods and commodities, and the advantages, if any, which accrued from the gold embargo probably have been more than offset by the flight of capital from the country as a result of monetary uncertainty.

The interesting thing, however, is that the proponents and defenders of the gold embargo now are attempting to justify it on the ground of necessity, but their definition of "necessity" is entirely different from any that has ever been recognized in the history of the world.

Going Through the Motions.

With all the ceremonial staging of which Nazi genius is capable, the Reichstag convened Tuesday in the magnificent old Kroll opera house, opposite the burned Reichstag building in Berlin. A great hakenkreuz flag, suspended from the ceiling, was the background for the pale, high-cheek-boned Capt. William Goering as, with floodlights playing on him, he convened Germany's parliament for its winter session. Eight minutes later he adjourned it.

In that interval, he delivered a speech freighted with praise of Der Fuehrer, Hitler, whose "great organizing genius," he said, made it unnecessary for deputies of the Reichstag to trouble themselves to pass any laws or hold any debates on public questions. Politely, but firmly, Capt. Goering told them they were free to go home, or about their business. Meekly and calmly, since they were all handpicked by Hitler and his lieutenants, the deputies applauded and then filed out.

It is not quite clear why the German chancellor should naively go through the motions of preserving the form of parliamentary government when its substance was abandoned long ago in favor of decrees. The only purpose it serves is to give him an opportunity every now and then to hold a one-way election, to the result of which he can point as evidence of the "solidarity" of the German people.

A Friendly Suggestion.

Representative Smith's plan of taking District supply bills out of the hands of the regular appropriations committee of the House deserves careful consideration. There is no essential connection between the District budget and the regular appropriation measures. On the other hand, there is a very close relationship between the District's expenditures and other local matters that are handled by the House District Committee.

Under present conditions the District budget is formulated as if the local government were a Federal bureau or department. After being approved by the Commissioners the budget estimates are sent to the Bureau of the Budget, where they are usually subjected to the National influences that shape the Federal Government's program of expenditures. In Congress the local budget is handled by subcommittees of the House and Senate appropriation committees. Too often reductions in the Federal budget are automatically applied to appropriations for the District, even though such a policy may lead to the accumulation of an excessive surplus.

Obviously, the District budget should be formulated in accordance with local conditions. It is unreasonable to let the Federal Budget Bureau alter the estimates of the District budget officer and the Commissioners. Much better results might be obtained by a direct transfer of the District budget estimates to the House and Senate District committees for study in connection with the actual needs of the Capital as well as potential revenue.

Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, and Chairman Norton, of the House committee, have manifested a great deal of interest in the welfare of Washington and its institutions. The groups which they head are in a much better position to decide what expenditures should be made here than are members of the appropriation subcommittees.

A change in the procedure of handling District financial problems might go a long way toward straightening out the difficult issue of fiscal relations between the District and the Government.

Dr. Sirovich and the Food and Drugs Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My attention has been called to an article under the caption, "Along the Potomac," in which you make reference to the pure food and drugs bill which I sponsored in Congress in cooperation with Senator Copeland, of New York. So many glaring misstatements, with allusions to my activities in behalf of the bill, appear in the article that they require enumeration, item by item.

In the first place I did not receive the idea of preparing this bill from Prof. Tugwell. Until recently we had never met. During my four terms in Congress my primary interest has been in pure food and health legislation.

During the last eight years I have made a number of speeches on the floor of the House of Representatives on these subjects, particularly with reference to the establishment of a national institute of public health and on the Federal control of the narcotic evil.

Due to my training in medicine and my 25 years of experience as a practicing physician, and for 20 years as the director in chief of a New York hospital, as well as my status as a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons, my colleagues in Congress frequently have done me the honor to consult me on food and health legislation.

Last year I contributed a series of articles, daily, to the Daily Mirror, of New York City, and these continued until my departure for Europe, in which I particularly stressed the need for strong, pure food legislation and in which I urged the inclusion in legislation by Congress of many of the elements of the Copeland-Sirovich pure food and drugs bill.

I do not claim complete originality for the ideas expressed in this bill, though I have worked independently of anybody on these principles and ideas for many years on the floor of the House. I was, therefore, working for pure food long before any pending legislation was contemplated by any one. * * *

Since 1931 I had been cooperating with Dr. F. J. Schlink, editor of Consumers Research, a publication with over 80,000 subscribers devoted to pure food in the interests of consumers, so when Dr. Campbell sent me his draft I incorporated in it the vital matter of my own draft and sent the amended copy to Dr. Schlink that he might make suggestions to further protect the consumers of food and drugs, without injury to the rights of the honest manufacturer or processor who did not adulterate his product nor sell food unfit for human consumption. * * *

Much of the language of the pending Copeland-Sirovich pure food and drugs bills is in the present public law covering pure food and drugs, which law was passed in 1906 and amended in 1912, 1913, 1919, 1927 and 1930. Therefore, the pending Copeland-Sirovich pure food and drugs bills are the work of many minds and the result of innumerable conferences between interested parties.

My interest is solely the protection of the American public by law from food and drug adulteration by charlatans, quacks and other dishonest persons or concerns whose activities are a menace to the health of the American people. No honest manufacturer, processor, packer or seller need fear that he or his legitimate business will suffer. On the contrary he, will be protected against the racketeers in food and drugs, no matter what dissimulating guise they may assume.

WILLIAM I. SIROVICH.

Thanks From the Chest.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want you to know how much every official of the Community Chest, including myself, appreciates the splendid work of The Washington Post in promoting the recent Community Chest campaign.

The manner in which you threw open the columns of your newspaper, not only to the running stories of the day, but for those splendid advertisements which you handled free of charge as well, certainly played a highly important part in raising the $1,500,000 obtained by the Chest for the unfortunates of Washington.

I feel also that a letter of thanks to The Post would be incomplete if it did not mention the splendid work done by Mrs. Vylla Poe Wilson and Miss Elisabeth E. Poe, who covered the story for The Post. The accuracy of their reports in every detail was most gratifying.

I realize, of course, that it was your sense of civic duty that promoted the generous placing of the facilities of your newspaper at the disposition of the Chest campaign, but I want you to know that it has made a deep impression upon all of us who hold the success of the Community Chest close to our hearts.

What Will Be Done About It?

"In Chicago Edward Weiss, on trial for complicity in torturing Theodore Zutaut to death, begged his attorney to change his plea to guilty in exchange for a sentence of 14 years in prison, and was interrupted by the return of the jury with a verdict of not guilty."

There has been much eloquence and righteous indignation over the recent outburst of lynching in this country, and it has been amply justified. But eloquence and indignation are not powerful in preventing crime. A little direct action works better.

It was not long ago that I was told by a judge in one of our large cities that only 3 per cent of our murderers ever come to trial, and only a small proportion of these ever get sentenced. If statistics are to be believed then it is safer to commit murder in this country than it is to run the gantlet of automobiles on a crowded street. President Roosevelt was at his best a few nights ago in his condemnation over the radio of the scandalous situation in this country in regard to lynching, but there are a few of us who are more interested in knowing what he is going to do about it.

At Least, a Poet Appreciated the Starlings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with much interest your recent appeal for "birds that have inspired poets," to round out the birds of literature collection in our zoo. It is a delightful idea. But horribile dictu! If Dr. Mann will turn to page 41 of Grace Harlowe's charming little "Birdlover's Anthology," he will find the following, by no other than the worthy Charles Kingsley:

The Starlings.

Early in springtime, on raw and windy mornings,
Beneath the freezing house-eaves, I heard the starlings sing.
"Ah, dreary March month, is this, then, a time for building wearily?
Sad, sad, to think that the year is but begun."

Late in the autumn, on still and cloudless evenings,
Among the golden reed beds I heard the starlings sing.
"Ah, that sweet March month, when we and our mates were courting merrily!
Sad, sad, to think that the year is all but done!"

You Eat the Fruit to Get Nourishment, Not to Make a Show of the Cores

By Robert Quillen

You have heard a great deal concerning the importance of reading books.

You have been scolded and ridiculed in the public prints because your knowledge of books is limited.

You have been given to understand that familiarity with books is essential to culture.

And doubtless you have been led to believe that the best people, of the kind described in stories, have read all of the worth-while books now in existence.

If that is true, it is high time to examine the other side of the picture.

In the first place, no person living or dead, has read all published books, or all modern books, or all important books. If a youth of 20 years should enter one of the great national libraries today and hereafter should read from morning till night, every day in the year, until death claimed him at the age of four-score and ten, he would die with this task scarcely begun.

In the second place, the books that should be read are comparatively few.

It is a waste of time to read books that add nothing to your present store of ideas and knowedge, books that are composed of false ideas and books you will not remember.

To read books that repeat familiar truths is as stupid as it would be to search for something already found; to read books that are untrue is to give heed to a fool or a liar; to read books you won't remember is to throw away a few precious hours of your life.

Of course you may read books for entertainment, without hope of learning anything; but such reading adds nothing to your culture. As an evidence or means of intellectual development, it is no more profitable than a game of bridge.

In the third place, a book worth reading at all is worth reading thoroughly, and you can't read such a book with justice to yourself and the author unless you know the exact meaning of every word in it.

You can skim through a good book in a day; but that isn't reading it. You have skipped unfamiliar words; you have absorbed but a fraction of the author's meaning, and at the end of a year you will have forgotten the whole of it, including the title.

You need not envy the people who have "read everything." Most of them haven't really read anything. They have merely scanned the words.

It is better to select one well-ripened fruit and to masticate and digest it completely, than to nibble at scores of fruit, green, ripe and rotted, and scarcely discern the flavor of any.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

ONE of the greatest revelations to come out of the tilt between the Young Liberals and George Peek is that Crack-Down Johnson is not considered hard-boiled by his New Deal associates at all, rather he is looked upon as a softy. I am surprised that it did not receive more attention because insofar as the general public is concerned he is very tough, indeed.

BARGERON.

Yet, if we are to believe all that we hear in connection with the A. A. A. fracas, it is Young Liberal Tugwell who writes so blithely, so poetically of life, who is really hard while behind the roar of Crack-Down Johnson there is really a heart of gold, and the tenderness of a mother bird. Apparently, we will have to revise our study of human nature.

So tough is Young Liberal Tugwell, we learned, that those food industries and others who had been trying for months to get codes out of the A. A. A. were tickled pink when they were turned over to the much milder NRA. Now who would have ever believed that this was the situation in our midst?

• • • •

CRACK-DOWN has been running up and down the country shouting epithets and coining new terms of contempt and reproach, and in general so conducting himself that we accepted him as the driving force of the New Deal. But the Young Liberals would have us believe that this was all to cover up an inferiority complex; that he is most timid in the presence of the industrialists and business men; that instead of his being the big wind, he is a very gentle breeze.

It is all very strange and most difficult to believe.

I suppose we are getting an example of Crack-Down's timidity now in the NRA hearing for the dry cleaning and pressing men.

• • • •

MAYBE it is what the Young Liberals consider gentility when an NRA compliance director gets a bunch of men before him and calls them fools and threatens them with terms in jail. It is certainly one of the most unusual spectacles we have ever had in these United States.

Now there is not the slightest way in the world, not legally, by which the Government can put these men in jail. Yet a man named Davis bullys and threatens until he is red in the face, and some of the cleaners and pressers at least are frightened into acquiescence.

This same man, too, agrees that he didn't live up to the prohibition law because he did not like it. But what he thinks is now a law, he insists is backed by force of public opinion. I doubt seriously that public opinion, in as muddled state as it is at present, will support the Government in bringing here to Washington a man who has been making a living in a one-room shop in Kalamazoo by pressing and cleaning clothes, and bullying him until he is scared out of his wits.

• • • •

TO the Young Liberals that is softy stuff, not the tough stuff they are made of.

It is probably softy stuff in their eyes, too, when the Federal Trade Commission reports that one of its agents called on a stubborn cleaner and presser in Texas and made him see the light of day. In view of what we see happening right here before our eyes to the cleaners and pressers, it would be interesting to know just what tactics the Federal Trade Commission used. Manifestly, it was something with which the cleaner had nothing to do. The cleaners and pressers, by no hook or crook, can be classed as engaging in interstate commerce, you know.

But if these are softy tactics in the view of the Young Liberals, if Crack-Down is really the "timid soul" of their minds, one wonders just what they would call hard. Just what, for instance, would they do to the cleaners and pressers?

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

The best way to interest children in the Bible is through pictures; a great many small boys and girls love to draw, whether they have any creative skill or not. When I was a child, my mother offered me $5 if I would read the Bible through from beginning to end. Having no financial assets and plenty of time, I accepted and earned the money.

There are 1,188 chapters in the Bible, of which 928 are in the Old Testament and 260 in the New. If one reads three chapters every week day and five chapters every Sunday, one will finish the Bible within the year.

It is a good idea to suggest to a child that he draw a picture illustrating every chapter; this will appeal to his artistic sense, and make the Bible stories seem more real. This is what I did as a child, and I would give a large sum of money if I owned those illustrations now.

The next best thing to drawing pictures oneself is to give a child a book that has recently been published, called "Matthew Merian's Illustrated Bible." The pictures are reproduced from a volume published nearly 300 years ago. Over 200 have been selected; on every page there is a large engraving with the original title and doggerel verse, with added comment. This would make an inexpensive and valuable Christmas present and in my judgment would stimulate interest in the Bible narrative.

Bullitt's Calls In Moscow End 16-Year Breach

Envoy Formally Received by Kalinin, Litvinoff, Amid Good Wishes.

Moscow, Dec. 13 (AP).—Sixteen years of official isolation from each other between the United States and Soviet Russia were broken today when William C. Bullitt presented his ambassadorial credentials to Mikhail Kalinin.

The ceremony was accompanied by more than an ordinary cordial exchange between the president of the general executive committee and the American envoy, and was marked by the emphasis of both men of the attitude that, while the United States and the Soviet Union represent two widely divergent political and social systems, this in itself presents no bar to their successful cooperation.

Both pledged their respective governments to forward "not merely normal, but genuinely friendly relations" betwen the two countries.

Upon leaving the Kremlin, where the ceremony took place, after an hour's visit, Mr. Bullitt proceeded directly to the Foreign Office, where he called formally on Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, who himself returned only recently from the United States.

Later the American held a reception for the Soviet and the Foreign Press in his suite in the National Hotel.

Will Return Here Soon.

He told newspapermen he expected to remain here only long enough to decide on a site for the American Embassy and then would return to Washington to recruit his staff.

Bullitt and Kalinin met for the first time in the old winter palace of the Kremlin, the executive offices of the Soviet Union.

"I do not come to your country as a stranger, my profound interest in it has existed for many years and I come with a deep conviction of the importance and historical significance of my mission," Mr. Bullitt said.

"That mission, Mr. President, is to create not merely normal but genuinely friendly relations between our two great peoples who for so many years—were bound to each other by traditions of friendship.

Says Both Seek Peace.

"A firm establishment of world peace is a deep desire of both our peoples, and a close collaboration of our governments in the task of preserving peace will draw our peoples together.

"Each of our nations in its own manner is seeking with the same indomitable will and limitless energy, but by different methods, to promote the welfare of its people."

President Kalinin replied with cordial greetings for President Roosevelt, and said:

"The outstanding role which you personally, Mr. Ambassador, have played in the matter of mutual approachment of our two countries is well known to the wide public in the Soviet Union and the very fact, therefore, that it was precisely you who was chosen by the President of the United States as the first Ambassador to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in itself is considered by us as an act of friendship."

French Senate Defeats Tax on "Foreign Labor"

Paris, Dec. 13 (AP).—The Senate finance committee rejected today a measure which would tax employes of "foreign labor" 10 to 15 per cent of their salaries.

The measure, approved by the Chamber of Deputies, met protests by hundreds of American former service men who married and settled in France. They feared they would lose their jobs.

Boris, Queen Leave Belgrade in Blizzard

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 13 (AP). A blizzard howled through Belgrade streets today and flung a frigid curtain over the departure for home of the Bulgarian king and queen, Boris and Ioanna.

When a police squad arrived it found more than 1,000 men surrounding two clerks, who were attempting to explain where the checks might be.

Agencies' Pay Slash Delayed

New Rate for Emergency Employes Expected December 30.

Although the reclassification of employes in emergency agencies is practically complete, payments probably will not be made under the revised schedule until December 30, it was learned yesterday.

Employes of these agencies had wondered whether the pay envelopes they get tomorrow would be based on the new schedule. This new rate, in most instances, will reduce the salary now received by about 15 per cent. Only NRA workers, whose new salary rate was put into effect some time ago, will be paid tomorrow at the new rates.

The committee classifying the emergency jobs in line with regular Government posts has "practically completed" its work. As the proposed new classifications have been sent to the heads of the new agencies, the committee has suggested they be made effective in the next pay period.

Securities Act Likely to Get Scant Revision

President Favors Changes Only to Clarify Its Provisions.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt believes that any revision of the new securities act should be directed only toward clarifying its provisions.

This expressed attitude yesterday was expected by the Administration to terminate all speculation over modification of legislation at the forthcoming Congressional session.

The view previously had been voiced by Chairman Fletcher of the Senate Banking Committee that the only changes desirable were those to make the law clearer and more difficult to evade.

The law was enacted at the special session to protect the public against fraud in the issuance of securities. There have been recurrent rumors recently that substantial changes were in prospect.

One of the most controversial features of the legislation has been the provision that holds all concerned in issuing securities liable for any misstatements of fact insofar as their truth could reasonably be ascertained. Opponents of the act have contended the liability provision was not clear in what the word "reasonable" means.

Critics argued that the act imposed a fiduciary responsibility, such as that of a trustee of a fund holds, whereas the responsibility should be that of a "prudent man." Proponents have replied such a change would weaken the act.

Dollar-Pound Tie-Up Feared

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Stabilization of the dollar by tying it to the pound would create conditions "very harmful, if only temporary, and positively disastrous if long continued," James H. Rand, jr., chairman of the committee for the Nation, said today.

"Ugly and discouraging rumors are finding increasing acceptance in New York and London that negotiations between banking interests here and European banks are in progress and will result soon in stabilization, tying our dollar to the English pound," said Rand.

The daily announcement of the dollar price for gold, he said, has been merely "a chalkmark on a blackboard," while the purchasing power of the dollar has been controlled in foreign exchange markets, largely influenced by "the powerful equalization fund and free gold market of England."

Each month's delay in restoring the price level, he said, is costing the country, in production irretrievably lost, not less than $1,500,000,000. He urged raising the Treasury price of gold to $41.54, "which our committee's calculations show is necessary for a prompt restoration of the 1926 price level.

"Unless we are willing to abdicate our Government's immediate power over our own money, then the R. F. C. or the Treasury must stand ready to exchange dollars, without limit, for all the gold that may be offered at the dollar price we set, exactly as the Bank of England operates for pounds on the London free gold market."

Just Folks.

Two Ways Of Saying "No."

Some men say "No" so easily
As if the lines of care
Deep-printed for the world to see
Were vainly graven there.
But little time have they to spend
With strangers' grief and pain.
Quickly the plea for aid they end
And get to work again.
Others with tenderness regard
The obvious signs of woe
And plainly show they find it hard
To have to answer "No."
They give up time to troubled men
To hear their stories through,
Lending an ear in pity, when
There's nothing they can do.
SINCE all must often answer; "No"
Throughout the busy day,
'Tis very difficult to know

Job of Balancing U. S. Budget Spurs Drive for Cheap Dollar

as much as possible as that is his job and that there is no quarrel over budgetary matters.

As to what to do with the surplus, there were those who would apply it to past debts, while some groups in Congress would spend up to $10,000,000,000 more for public works; it will take three or four weeks to work out the question. The Administration views it not as political but as a social, economic problem, a question of keeping people from starving and one contingent largely on whether business improves and what conditions are later in the winter.

Thomas Forecasts Dollar Cut.

While the complex budget situation preoccupied the White House, Senator Elmer Thomas, who called there early in the day, predicted the "three money groups," the dollar devaluationists, the silverites, and the greenbackers, would combine to force reduction of the gold content of the dollar by one-half if the President does not do it first. Thomas reiterated that his main objective is to put through his bill to have the Treasury impound all gold, double its price (to $41.34 an ounce), and keep the $4,000,000,000 or more of "profit" so figured. Thomas would use this to pay the Government's bills or as a base to issue at least two and a half times as much new currency.

Unless the President declares the devaluation at the full limit of his authority, 50 per cent, Thomas said, Congress will make mandatory what is now permissive. He felt sure both houses of Congress would pass such a bill, although he was not certain it could be passed over a veto.

Apropos of the latest stabilization rumors, Thomas warned that if the President undertook to stabilize at a point represented by the present $34.01 an ounce R. F. C. price for gold there would be a battle against it in Congress, which, he predicted, would echo into coming election campaigns. This price is too low, he holds, and said he had some time ago gained the impression from the President that even a doubling of the gold price was not enough to drive the dollar down where debts could be liquidated at 1926 levels.

Senator Johnson Here.

Senator Hiram Johnson, who arrived from California, denying he had been summoned by the President or that he was being considered for a Supreme Court place, said he would discuss emergency expenditures with the President.

He said he intended to support the Roosevelt program.

"The country is going through a complete revolution," he continued. "In my opinion there is a determination on the part of most of the people to carry on and carry through. There are certain to be political alignments possibly different from those in the past. There is a loosening of party lines."

He doubted that realignments would result in new party labels.

"1929 Gods Stripped."

"The gods of 1929, whom you have seen marching in disarray before the Senate Stock Market Committee, have been stripped so bare that there are no longer any of them to be reckoned with at all," he added. "There is one consolation. While we've known only a little about finance, we know now that the great leaders of finance know nothing about it."

He said labor has an unparalleled opportunity because the country is moving toward a "great leveling of humanity."

The gold price was held again at $34.01 an ounce, adding more weight to the assumption that this is about the top price, but inferences that it implies "stabilization" find no official support.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau denied that dissent over monetary policy had led to the impending withdrawal of Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, or to the resignation of Assistant Secretary Thomas Hewes. He praised both in the highest terms.

U. S. Offers CWA Men Medical Care

where public institutions are not available. In every possible instance—probably in a majority of cases—Federal medical facilities exclusively will be used. Should the nearest public hospital be filled, the Government would pay transportation costs to another institution.

States May Bear Burden.

A definite policy on whether the Federal Government should reimburse States, counties or municipalities providing hospitalization for C. W. A. employes remains to be fixed. Officials explained, however, that States, counties and municipalities probably would be asked to bear that burden.

Officials recognize, it was learned, that accident risks are high in many types of work to which CWA employes have been assigned. Actuary tables have been consulted by experts seeking to estimate the cost of medical service. The study is not yet complete.

Once a medical fund is set aside by the CWA, actual operation of the service will be delegated to the United States Employes Compensation Commission. Tentative rules for guidance of the commission were adopted November 27 by the CWA.

Injured workers would be paid 66 2-3 per cent of their regular wages as long as they are disabled. Such payment would begin three days after the injury. Persons totally disabled would receive compensation for life.

Commenting on assignments to Walter Reed of Conservation Corps men, Frank T. Hines, veterans administrator, declared no former service men had been denied hospitalization because of a shortage in veterans' hospital facilities.

Denied by Economy Act.

The economy act, however, denied Government hospitalization to veterans without service-connected illnesses or injuries. When this act became effective, thousands of men with nonservice connected disabilities were discharged from Federal hospitals. No veterans are now being admitted to Walter Reed Hospital.

"At the present time," Gen. Hines added, "we are furnishing hospital or domiciliary care to 46,958 patients, including 490 members of the Civilian Conservation Corps, and 276 emergency cases. In the total of 46,958, there are 14,096 service-connected cases and 31,839 nonservice-connected cases."

The Veterans' Administration policy, Hines said, has been to utilize its own facilities as far as practicable, but a little more than 1,100 cases remain in other Government hospitals.

"Hospital treatment and domiciliary care are assured to all service connected cases, and ample provision has been made also for the needy nonservice connected cases," he said. He explained virtually the only cases his unit is not authorized to care for are those of an acute general medical and surgical nature not permanent in character.

Hines Cites Facilities.

The Veterans' Administration, Hines said, can at any time "care for veterans of any wars, including the Boxer Rebellion and the Philippine Insurrection, if they served 90 days or more and were honorably discharged, if they have no adequate means of support, and are now suffering from any permanent disability, or tuberculosis, or neuropsychic ailments incapacitating them from earning a living.

"If any such veterans need clothing for the protection of their health, or if they require special clothing because of the wearing of prosthetic appliances while they are in our hospitals or homes, we can furnish the clothing, and the appliances, too, if they are financially unable to procure them.

"In addition to veterans of wars, any soldier who served for 90 days or more and was honorably discharged from active service in the Army, Navy or Coast Guard, for a disability incurred in line of duty and is now suffering from a permanent disability or from tubercular or neuropsychic ailments, so that he is unable to earn a living, also may be cared for in our facilities and be furnished any necessary clothing or appliances which he himself is not able to obtain."

Senator Arthur R. Robinson, of Indiana, declared last night that "the preference given C. C. C. men over veterans for hospital treatment is outrageous, and must be stopped to avoid a National scandal."

He said he plans to introduce as soon as Congress opens a bill repealing the economy act in its entirety.

Stettinius Resigns NRA for U. S. Steel

Virginia, Mr. Stettinius entered the General Motors Corporation in 1924. He is also a director and vice president of General Aviation Corporation, director and executive committee member of North American Aviation, Inc., director and executive committee member of Transcontinental Air Express, Inc., and a director of Eastern Air Transport—all companies in which General Motors is interested.

His new appointment will be effective April 1, the Associated Press reported. He will take the place of William J. Filbert, who will succeed to the chairmanship of the finance committee on the retirement of Myron C. Taylor, who wishes to devote more time to his position as chairman of the board.

Reporting widespread interest in his selection, the Associated Press at New York said:

"Wall street could not recall another instance in recent years, barring that of Taylor himself, in which the corporation reached into another branch of the industrial field for either young blood or more mature experience to fuse with its management. Those who have been in a position to see him in action have asserted that he inherits a good share of the talent which his father possessed for organization in finance and business."

The elder Stettinius was retained in 1915 by Morgan & Co. to organize the purchase of munitions and materials for the British and French governments. Subsequently, he became surveyor general of supplies for the War Department, a member of the War Council, Second Assistant Secretary of War, and special representative of the War Department in Europe.

Besides being known as one of the most capable of the younger executives, the younger Stettinius has received unofficial awards for being one of the most prepossessing in appearance.

He moved ahead rapidly after joining the General Motors Corporation in 1924 through the Hyatt Roller Bearing Co., a subsidiary. In 1926 he was made assistant to the vice president in charge of accessory divisions, and in 1930 he became assistant to President Sloan. He was elected vice president in Memphis, Dec. 13 (AP).—Double pneumonia today claimed the life of C. D. Smith, 69, Memphis capitalist, former president of the Pggly Wiggly Corporation and noted railroad builder.

He died at the hospital to which he was taken a week ago by airplane after being stricken while visiting friends near Greenwood, Miss.

Mr. Smith came here 32 years ago from Birmingham. He retired from railroad construction activities 30 years ago.

Mrs. Wampler Takes Stand For Husband

Precedent Set in U. S. Court as Wife Gives Testimony.

Baltimore, Dec. 13 (AP).—Final testimony in the case of T. Morris Wampler, Washington attorney on trial for alleged evasion of income tax payments for 1930 and 1931, was taken in United States District Court here today. Arguments will be heard tomorrow.

The trial today was featured by Mrs. Wampler as a defense witness. It was the first time that a woman had taken the stand in defense of her husband here since the Supreme Court handed down a decision allowing it.

Mrs. Wampler corroborated her husband's statement that one item of $1,000, which the Government claimed should have been put on his income tax blank, was money that belonged to her. She said she gave it to Wampler to buy stock.

United States Attorney Simon Sobeloff called Charles H. Bergazin, a Washington lawer, who denied a statement by Wampler on the stand that he had given Bergazin $16,000 to settle Mrs. Beatrice G. Cornelius' claim against Edward B. Dean, sr., 80-year-old Washington real estate man, who repeatedly retained Wampler to settle claims brought by women.

Wampler had testified that Bergazin had given him a release for Dean, showing the payment of the full $16,000. The Government, however, contended that Wampler settled the case for $5,000 and kept $11,000 for himself—not putting the amount on his income tax return.

Sunset Hour Not Known, So Barber Goes Free.

Abramo Di Phillips told Judge Ralph Given he opened his barber shop at 808 Bladensburg road northeast a half hour early Monday night because he was unable to tell when the sun set. The case was dismissed.

Di Phillips was arrested for violation of the congressional act of last December, which compels barbers to close their shops one day out of seven. He was supposed to close from sunset Sunday to sunset Monday.

Roosevelt Credited With Symphony Aid

Attention given National art and culture by President and Mrs. Roosevelt has added significance to Washington's National Symphony Orchestra, Clarence A. Aspinwall told the Rotary Club in an address yesterday in the Willard Hotel.

"Men, after attending a concert or two, find that good music has tonic effects," Mr. Aspinwall said.

Lehman Defends Aid's Mortgage Rehabilitation

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Criticism of the mortgage rehabilitation program of George S. Van Schaick, superintendent of insurance, brought a caustic answer tonight from Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who pledged full faith in Van Schaick's administration.

Lehman's defense was considered a reply to Max D. Steuer, New York City attorney, and Tammany sachem, who assailed Van Schaick.

Amateur Pilot Grade Created For New Fliers

Private License Made More Flexibile by Commerce Board.

Liberalization of rules for air pilots and the establishment of a new grade—amateur pilot, with 25 hours' solo flying time required—were outstanding among the amendments to the air commerce regulations, announced yesterday by Eugene L. Vidal, director of aeronautics.

The revisions represent the result of several months' study by Maj. J. Carroll Cone, assistant director of aeronautics in charge of air regulations. The amendments include:

Establishment of new ratings for Department of Commerce approved flying schools to provide for the grade of amateur pilot's license.

Enlargement of the privileges of the private pilot and the limited commercial pilot, permitting them to carry guests, executives or employes of companies employing them unlimited distances and to demonstrate aircraft to prospective purchasers.

...ALL LIFE MEMBERS OF THE BACK-SEAT CLUB

THIS YEAR the Back-Seat Club got its first real break when DRAFT was abolished by Fisher No-Draft Ventilation. Can anything equally startling take place in 1934?

It can and will. Jar and bump and bounce will be abolished! The 1934 General Motors cars will not be the 1933 cars improved. A new and revolutionary principle in motor car design will be introduced. Engineers call it "individual front wheel suspension." We prefer to call it "giving the car Knee-Action Wheels." If you will look at the diagram at the right you will see why we have chosen this non-technical description.

The 1934 cars are ROOMIER than the cars of 1933—an advantage you will quickly appreciate. They are gracefully lined, beautifully styled and appointed, as General Motors cars always are. But the big change is the new, stronger, more flexible front-end assembly—the Knee-Action Wheels. Your very first trip will prove what a glorious thing it is to have the soft springs, not the passengers, absorb the jars and bumps.

In driving, the hands have little to do but set the course—so smooth is the motion even at high speed, so steady is the grip on the road. If you are a member of the Back-Seat Club, the difference in your comfort is simply beyond description.

Lose no time in seeking your first ride in a 1934 Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Buick, La Salle, or Cadillac. Or, if we may revise the phrase, your first glide. For the word ride connotes a certain amount of jar and jounce; our 1934 cars will glide—rolling noiselessly behind them the smooth unruffling miles.

HOW KNEE-ACTION WHEELS WORK

Your present car is stiff-legged. An I-beam front axle is joined to the frame by stiff front springs. So when you hit a bump the front of the car bounces, the rear pitches, and you are jarred.

See how serenely a man meets a bump. One knee bends easily, lifting its leg. The other leg is not affected; equilibrium is undisturbed. The knee, not the body, takes the jar.

Now, 1934 [illegible] more I-beam axle, no [illegible] springs. The wheel assembly, flexibly mounted on its own soft spring, rises and falls like a knee to soak up the shocks, while the car glides on.

An interesting booklet is available describing in more detail the fundamental principle of this new, independent front-wheel spring suspension. Simply address General Motors Corporation, New York or Detroit.

Mrs. Townsend Gives Colorful Music Morning

Miss Gladys Swarthout and Richard Crooks Please as Artists.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Inevitable as was the disappointment over the absence of Gertrude Kappel, who had been obliged by illness to cancel her engagement in Washington, the patrons assembled yesterday morning in the Mayflower Hotel for Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's sixty-ninth musical morning found abundant compensation in the artistry of Gladys Swarthout, who shared the program with Richard Crooks. Last-minute substitutions are not always as fortunate as these proved to be.

While Miss Swarthout's contralto flaunts to flaming tones, it reveals within its limitations of power finely shaded gradations of color. Moreover, the singer employs these tints with a skillful plasticity of phrasing that enhances their values on a relative scale. By the illusion of contrast, her lower tones seem to glow with a deeper rubescence than they actually possess against the mat whiteness of her high register. One suspects they the voice was not heard at its best, for there was an occasional veiling of tone that hinted at an impeding hoarseness.

Miss Swarthout's artistic finesse was at once apparent in the recitative and aria from Handel's "Rinaldo," with which she began her part of the program. Making no attempt at the grand style, she adapted it to the range of her tonal palette and emphasized its lyric rather than its dramatic quality, and at the same time suffused it with emotional urgency. The same deft application of means to an end was effective in "Amor Dormigliona" of Barbara Strozzi.

Other Offerings Colorful.

With her second group, the audience warmed noticeably under the influence of her personality and the subtleties of her art. Santoliquido's "Tristezza Crepuscolara" was read with a delicacy of intonation that eminently suited its twilight mood of melancholy, and there were exquisite bits of coloring in Respighi's "Pioggia," like irised glints from the falling raindrops. Both the "Traum Durch die Daemmerung" of Richard Strauss and the disparate fleetness of Joaquin Nin's "El Vito" were handled expertly.

After this display of vocal refinement, the audience asked for an extra number, which was granted with the Habanera from "Carmen." Her concluding group of songs by American composers contained "The End of the Song," by Powell Weaver; Manning's "The Rickshaw Man," Mortimer Browning's "The Philanderer," a humorous setting of Natalia Crane's "The Janitor's Boy" by Jacques Wolfe, and "The House on the Hill" by Ernest Charles.

Tenor Also Pleases.

Richard Crooks, whose lyric tenor voice was at its persuasive peak, opened the joint recital with Cavaradossi's aria, "Recondita armonia" from "Tosca," a choice that found immediate favor with his hearers. He sang it with fervor and yet with a restraint that did not tax the fine timbre of his tones. Like his colleague of the day, he knows how to adjust his resources, and never oversteps the bounds by striving for an unattainable robustness.

At his second appearance he presented Liza Lehmann's "Ah, Moon of My Delight" charmingly and followed it with two songs by his accompanist, Frank La Forge, "Retreat" and "Supplication." The auditors clamored for more, and received a beautifully intoned reading of "Le Reve" from "Manon."

His final group was devoted to Richard Strauss whose "Zueignung," "Die Nacht: Morgen" and "Heimliche Aufforderung" were sung with a fine lyrical poesy. This time one extra number was not enough for the demands of the audience, and he followed Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me" with "Only a Song I Bring to You" by Franz Lehar.

Both singers had excellent support at the piano, the sensitive and sympathetic work of Mr. La Forge being closely approached by that of Nils Nelson, who assisted Miss Swarthout.

Still Lives

Chicken Heart, Beating 20 Years in Dish, Filmed.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The chicken heart which has lived in a glass dish for 20 years at the Rockefeller Institute will go into the movies next week.

This heart, the world's most famous example of keeping a piece of flesh alive outside the body where it belongs, was originally a bit of the heart of a living chicken. Its cells grow and divide unendingly, when fed on a special diet of the substances forming living bodies.

So far as science knows the heart can be kept alive forever. Part of it must be removed at frequent intervals to prevent it growing so large that there would not be food enough.

The movies will show its manner of living and its tiny ceaselessly moving muscles. The pictures were taken with a micro-camera developed by Heinz Rosenberger of the Rockefeller Institute. They will be shown at the American Museum of National History at the annual exhibit of the New York Microscopical Society.

Bates to Stay In Solitary or Reveal Ransom

U. S. Attempts to Uncover $100,000 Portion of Urschel Cash.

The Government has delivered an ultimatum to Albert Bates, convicted kidnaper of Charles Urschel, of Oklahoma, that he will remain in solitary confinement until he divulges the hiding place of $100,000 allegedly received by him as his share of the $200,000 Urschel ransom.

This announcement by Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan brought a threat from Ben B. Laska, attorney for Bates, that he may present charges of "brutality against all those responsible for keeping Bates in solitary confinement," according to an Associated Press dispatch from Denver, Colo.

Keenan, who prosecuted the case against the kidnapers of the Oklahoma oil millionaire, delivered the ultimatum to Bates on a visit to Leavenworth Penitentiary, where George "Machine Gun" Kelly is serving a life term for his participation in Urschel kidnaping.

The attorney for Bates informed the Associated Press "unless Bates is being held in solitary confinement for violating some prison rules, I will file charges against the officials responsible." Laska declared Bates knows nothing about the $100,000 unrecovered ransom money.

Keenan said he told Bates that he had received $100,000 of the ransom money. "He didn't deny he had received the money. I said any man with $100,000 is an exceedingly dangerous prisoner and I told him he could remove this characteristic by turning in the money," Keenan said.

The convicted Urschel kidnaper has been in solitary confinement for six weeks and is permitted to see only his attorney, who is always accompanied by a prison official.

"Machine Gun" Kelly, Keenan said, is perhaps the most unpopular prisoner in Leavenworth and his boasts that he will make his escape by Christmas have brought him the name "blabbermouth." The other prisoners blame Kelly, he said, for the extra precautions which are being taken at the prison.

Minister Predicts Big Soviet Air Fleet

Paris, Dec. 13 (AP).—Aviation Minister Pierre Cot told the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies tonight that "in two or three years Soviet aviation will be five times more powerful than that of England or France."

M. Cot, who toured Russian aviation works last summer, was loud in his praise for the technical development, the experimental zeal and ability of the personnel in the Russian air forces.

He declared that the Soviet Union had planes capable of transporting three or four tons of explosives a distance as great as from Moscow to Berlin, and was building new 40-ton models having a wider range.

Bureau Backs U. S. Program For Farm Aid

Roosevelt's Policies Given Federation's Support at Convention.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—The American Farm Bureau Federation today gave virtual blanket approval to President Roosevelt's agricultural policies, suggesting only that his devices for improving the farmer's lot be broadened in scope and strictly enforced.

Expressing desires of its nearly 1,000,000 members, the federation spent the last day of its fifteenth annual convention discussing 27 resolutions, and dealing with questions ranging from monetization of silver to the need for eradicating tuberculosis in cattle.

To the agricultural adjustment act, under which the Administration has conducted its farm program for seven months, the bureau gave its unanimous support. However, the convention suggested "enough time and effort have been given to reconcile opposition to this legislation, which opposition largly consists of those who have enjoyed unfair advantages under the old system of processing and distributing."

Resulting in Bankruptcy.

"Such delay is resulting in the bankruptcy of many more farmers and can not be further condoned."

Too much attention can not be given by the Government, the delegates agreed in another resolution, to restoration of "an honest dollar" in order to give agriculture a price parity and enable debts to be paid in the same value of currency as they were contracted.

Considerable discussion was given to both resolutions, and delegates insisted on the wording being changed in several instances, so that the documents could not be considered as criticism of the Administration.

The emergency farm mortgage act of last spring received favorable comment, but again the farm leaders objected to delay.

Regarding export trade in farm produce, the bureau urged that the Government "extend proper credit to the Soviet Union, to enable it to buy our farm products."

Immediate granting of independence to the Philippines also was urged.

Tariff Barriers Backed.

Congress was called upon in the Federation's recommendations to guard against letting down tariff barriers, which might cause the Nation to be supplied from the outside with produce on which farmers have cut down production under the A. A. A. Mention was made of the importation of oils or fats.

During the discussions, several farm leaders charged that farmers were being made to pay the processing tax imposed on certain products in order to raise funds for payment of benefits to those who reduce production.

"That is in direct violation of the spirit of the A. A. A.," said W. H. Settle, president of the Indiana Federation, "but it is being done.

"When the processing tax was increased recently to 50 cents a hundred, from 10 cents, that very week the hog market dropped 40 cents. So it was the farmers who eventually paid the 40 cent tax increase."

George M. Putnam, of Concord, N. H.; C. R. White, of Ionia, N. Y.; Earl C. Smith, of Detroit, Ill.; R. W. Blackburn, of Thermal, Calif., and M. L. Noon, of Jackson, Mich.

Graeco-Americans Ask Insull Return

25,000 Sign Petition for Magnate's Deportation.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—A petition signed by more than 25,000 American citizens of Greek extraction asking the Greek government to deport Samuel Insull as an undesirable alien will be sent to Athens Saturday, the American-Greek Democratic Association announced today.

The petition will be mailed on the liner Ile de France and dispatched by air mail from Paris.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—Samuel Insull's management of huge public utility holdings was attacked today by two stockholders who filed suit to trace $14,000,000 of the earnings of Commonwealth Edison Co.

Detective Chief Unhurt In Automobile Crash

Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, escaped injuries yesterday when his automobile was struck by a car at Sixth and C streets northwest.

Wallace and Peek Speak From Same Platform

commercial radio companies to force them to merge their properties in the public interest. The committee proposed that all communications companies have the right, long enjoyed by the telephone companies, to merge their properties without violating th Federal antitrust laws.

The report submitted to the President was preliminary in character, describing the existing situation in the communications field and making two general proposals—rigid Federal control and immunity from the antitrust law for mergers of communications companies. No effort was made to work out the details of either of these propositions.

Would Require Years.

Apparently, as far as Congress can go, would be to establish a regulatory communications commission, agitated on Capitol Hill since the World War, and relieve the communications companies from the provisions of the antitrust laws. The work of merging the companies would be one for their operating heads to consummate, subject to the approval of the regulatory agency. This task might take three or four years—just as railroad consolidations, not yet consummated, have already taken 13 years.

Whether Congress is willing to permit monopolistic mergers of communications companies is not known. In the last session the House authorized a merger of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies, only to have the Senate reject it. Such a merger would reduce rates 20 per cent, it has been estimated by David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, who favors a unified communications system.

The manner in which the communications companies would be merged, it is believed, would influence the action of Congress. One proposal has been to combine all companies transmitting symbol communication—telegraph, wireless and cable—into one unit and those companies transmitting vocal communication—telephone and radio telephony—into another.

British Scheme Proposed.

Another proposal has been to combine the Radio Corporation with the International Telephone & Telegraph group, which includes Postal Telegraph. A third plan under discussion proposes that all domestic communication facilities be unified and all international facilities merged into another company, a scheme similar to that in Great Britain, where, however, the postoffice operates the domestic service.

Surveying the situation, the communications committee found that existing problems are most acute in the telegraphy field. The Western Union, which at the end of last year had 21,950 offices, compared with 25,061 at the end of 1929, dominates that field. Yet it has suffered from the depression, dropping from $15,577,039 profit in 1929 to a deficit of $830,605 last year.

The committee found that a large percentage of the Western Union offices are economically unproductive, being maintained out of revenue earned in the larger cities. The Postal Telegraph Co., with 2,800 offices located chiefly in the larger cities, where a duplicating service is given by Western Union, has been, a heavy money loser. Its deficit for 1931 was $3,725,000—a year in which Western Union had a profit of $5,975,000.

The Western Union operates cable lines to the West Indies, Europe and with the British to South America. The International Telephone and Telegraph, which owns the Postal, has a cable service to Europe, the West Indies, South America and the Orient and a radio service to West Indies, South America and the Orient. International also operates domestic lines in other countries.

The Radio Corporation of America, through subsidiaries, maintains radio service, both telephonic and telegraphic, to most of the world, although being handicapped because of a lack of offices throughout the country. While Western Union and Postal have the offices, they prefer to feed their own cable lines. The Western Union, however, lacks any facilities across the Pacific.

French System Cited.

Comparing telegraph facilities here and abroad the committee found that France, with a unified system and only one-third this country's population, has more telegraph offices than the United States, and Germany, with one-half the population, has one-third more offices.

It appeared to be the committee's preliminary conclusion that the efficiency of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which, with its 13,700,000 telephones out of a total in the country of 17,400,000, has a monopoly in the telephone field, demonstrated the value of unification of all communications. Although recognizing the A. T. & T. as the best of its type in the world, the committee pointed to complaints that its services were too expensive.

The committee favored a strict supervision of this telephone combine as well as all communication services, pointing out that reduced rates would result from a regulation of profits, overhead expenses and intercompany charges and through the prevention of discriminatory practices.

Would Curb Speculation.

Other advantages of regulation cited by the committee would be to limit depreciation charges, prevent speculative management, prevent watering of stocks and require an extension of service to localities and homes now without service. In respect to the latter, the committee cited the possibility of using the same wires for both telephone and telegraphic transmission without intereference.

The committee pointed out that although the Interstate Commerce Commission is charged with the duty of regulating telephone and telegraph companies, it has been unable to exercise that power because of the burden of its railroad problems. It also found a statute giving the Postmaster General ratemaking powers, although it has never been exercised.

The only phase of communication under regulation is that of the radio, but the committee felt that it was contrary to governmental economy and maximum efficiency to have the regulation of wireless communication in the hands of the Federal Radio Commission and the regulation of wire companies under the I. C. C. Its thought was that responsibility for regulation is so scattered as to be injurious to the companies as well as public interest.

Details Unfinished.

Details of the plan to centralize control in one commission have not been worked out, but several of the committee members lean toward the organization contained in the bill of Senator James Couzens which called for a five-man commission to be named by the President. This would supersede the Radio Commission. Senator Couzens introduced his bill in the Senate four years ago, but difficulties developed and it was not reported back from the committee.

The members of the interdepartmental committee, which prepared the report for unification and control of communications, was headed by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper. Other members were: Dr. W. M. W. Splawn, advisor, House Committee on Commerce; Dr. Irvin Stewart, Department of State; Lieut. Comdr. E. M Webster, Treasury Department; Maj. Gen. Irving Carr, War Department; Capt. S. C. Hooper, Navy Department; Maj. Gen. C. McK. Saltzman, Commerce Department; Dr. J. H. Dellinger, Bureau of Standards; Herbert L. Petty, Federal Radio Commission; Senator Dillard, Representative Rayburn.

Gas Victims Saved By New Antidote

Methylene Blue Revives 2 Given Up for Dead.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Physicians today hailed the recent discovery of methylene blue as an antidote for carbon monoxide poisoning, as two automobile mechanics resumed their work after having once been given up for dead.

The victims, Theodore Krause, 38, and Byron Defee, 27, succumbed to the deadly gas while sitting in a bus with the motor running to keep them warm. After all the usual rescue efforts had failed, physicians employed injections of methylene blue and brought them back to life.

Virginia Leaf Growers Plead For Early Aid

Farm Administration Will Call Fire-Cured Buyers Seeking Price Pact.

(Associated Press.)

The Farm Administration moved yesterday to bring growers and buyers of Virginia dark, fire-cured tobacco into agreement on an equitable price for this year's crop.

J. B. Hutson, head of the administration's tobacco division, said he would ask the buyers to meet with him next week. The growers pleaded with him yesterday to do something to boost their returns, which they said fell far short of production costs.

He promised to send out by tomorrow the contracts which growers must sign to come within the 25 per cent fire-cured reduction plan for 1934. The tobacco farmers said they were anxious to put through the agreement before their markets, closed by proclamation of Gov. Pollard, reopened after January 1.

The administration hopes the buyers of dark-fired will act as the flue-cured tobacco buyers did in agreeing to what Agriculture officials consider a just price.

If this succeeds, Hutson said, it will be unnecessary for the administration to consider a proposal by the growers to have all grades for which less than 3 cents per pound is offered taken off the market.

U. S. Approves Survey Of Railway Employes

Study of the employment and earnings history of 300,000 railway employes, to furnish a factual basis for labor legislation in Congress, was approved yesterday as a C. W. A. project by Harry L. Hopkins.

The project will employ 2,012 workers in nine States, including 100 skilled and supervisory workers in the District of Columbia.

Scientist, Who Mastered 'Cello After 40, Plays Here Tonight.

The radio, which has been condemned by many musicians as a debaser of their art, should, and may, give birth to a new interest in music and inspire greater numbers to learn to play some instrument.

Dr. William Francis Gray Swann who will be the Arts Club's guest of honor tonight, holds that view. Director of the Bartol Research Foundation of the Franklin Institute, Swarthmore, Pa., and internationally known physicist, he comes to Washington to play the cello in a recital at the Arts Club tonight.

The trend toward shorter working hours and the attendant increase in leisure time which will be forced upon society is another factor which will help make surgeon and bookkeeper, lawyer and bricklayer take up music, Dr. Swann believes.

In a brief interview yesterday, he stressed the value and the need of recreational avocations which hold forth always some new challenge, some unplumbed attraction. Golf is a good one, he said; ping pong fair. Playing of a difficult musical instrument is among the best.

Grown-ups should not let themselves become discouraged because their musical training was neglected in childhood.

"More can be accomplished by the adult who plunges himself seriously into the study of the violin than the unwilling youngster who is coerced and threatened into practicing on the piano by granny," declared the scientist-artist.

He himself took up the cello as a child, but it wasn't until he was 40 and had achieved eminence here and in his native England as a research physicist that Dr. Swann began to consider the cello "seriously." Now at 49 he conducts one of the largest symphony orchestras in Philadelphia.

DR. WILLIAM FRANCIS GRAY SWANN.

His recital will be a potpourri of his conclusions on the relationship between music and mechanized industry and his interpretation of classic compositions. He will play Brahms' E Minor Sonata with Miss Minna Niemann, and the concerto for cello by Hayden.

These 6 illustrations of use of the new universal transfer between all cars could be extended to show hundreds of other changes. There are nearly 200 junction points at which 2 or more lines meet. At every such point there is the free transfer privilege between cars. (For transfers to buses, see text below.)

● Car riders now have the utmost freedom in transferring between all car lines. A passenger can use his transfer to change from one line to another as often as necessary in a continuous trip.

All Capital Transit transfers have, of course, the following general limitations:

TIME: A transfer must be used on date of issue within the time indicated.
PLACE: Transfers must be used at the stated intersections, or within one stop each way.
DIRECTION: Transfers are not good for "doubling back" on the same or a parallel line.

You can see that the present transfer policy is an extremely liberal one. We hope you find it convenient and profitable.

TRANSFERS FROM STREET CARS TO BUSES

Street car conductors now issue two kinds of transfers: "Cash fare transfers" and "token fare transfers," depending on whether the passenger pays the 10c cash fare or uses the 7½c token on the car. While both kinds are equally good for all connecting street cars, there is this difference when transferring to buses:

The "cash fare transfer" is good on all buses where the fare is 10c or less.

The "token fare transfer" is good on all 7½c buses previously accepting a free transfer from street cars.

Notables Attend Morning Musicale

Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Wilson Among Those Enjoying First of Mrs. Townsend's Concerts.

The First Lady, Mrs. Roosevelt, and two former First Ladies, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. William Howard Taft, were among those who attended the first of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's morning musicales of this season yesterday morning at the Mayflower. Mrs. Roosevelt had as guests in her box Mrs. Lewis W. Douglas, Mrs. Adolph Caspar Miller, Mrs. Blaise de Sibour, Miss Mary Patten, and Mrs. Curtis Dall. The First Lady wore a handsome coat of black broadtail trimmed with sable and a smart black hat with an aigrette on the side.

Mrs. Wilson was in a black satin gown with a wide-brimmed black hat, a handsome mink coat, and her customary shoulder-bouquet of orchids. Mrs. Taft had on a black gown with touches of white, and a smart black and white turban. A black coat trimmed with silver fox completed her costume.

Mrs. Townsend's series of concerts is one of the most delightful features of the winter season in Washington, and is attended by a large group, representative of diplomatic, official and resident circles. For the last ten years Mrs. Townsend has made every effort to bring the best artists to the Capital, presenting them in an informal and intimate way. Yesterday the artists were Miss Gladys Swarthout, leading contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who made her first concert appearance yesterday in Washington, and Mr. Richard Crooks, popular tenor of the Metropolitan. Miss Swarthout sang in place of Mme. Gertrude Kappel, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan, whose appearance was prevented by illness.

Following the concert Mrs. Townsend, who had received those attending the concert in a delightfully informal way in the Chinese room of the Mayflower, entertained at luncheon for the artists. The Ambassador of Italy was the ranking guest at the luncheon, and the other guests included Representative and Mrs. Charles A. Eaton, Mrs. B. Sumner Welles, the Military Attache of the Italian Embassy, Lieut. Col. Marco Pennaroli; the Secretary of the Embassy, Signor Giuseppe Tommasi; the Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Leitner, Mrs Patrick J. Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Santini, of New York; Mme. van Kaathoven, Mrs. Eugene B. Roberts, Miss Marian Worthington, Mrs. Richard Crooks, Miss Rebecca Wellington, Mr. U. Grant Smith, Mr. Jefferson Patterson, the third Secretary of the French Embassy, M. Claude-Achille Clarac; the third Secretary of the German Embassy, Herr Gustav Struve; Mr. and Mrs. Frank LaForge and Mr. Nils Nelson.

Mrs. Homer Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, and Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, were among the guests in Mrs. Clarence N. Goodwin's box. Other guests with Mrs. Goodwin were Mme. Peter, wife of the Minister of Switzerland, and Mrs. Bruce Kremer. Mrs. Goodwin entertained at luncheon following the concert.

Mme. Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Panama, was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Sheridan O'Connell and her sister, Miss Julia Sheridan, entertained at luncheon, following the recital.

Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, wife of the Assistant Secretary of War, was among the guests in the box of Mrs. Mark L. Bristol. Mrs. Alfred Pembroke Thom entertained in her box at the concert, having as her guests Mrs. William H. King, Mrs. Jesse H. Jones, Mrs. J. Thompson Wailes, Mrs. Charles B. Drake, Mrs. Bernard B. Jones, Mrs. Carlos del Mar, and Mrs. A. H. Biggs, of Cleveland. Mrs. Thom later entertained her guests at luncheon at the Mayflower.

Others glimpsed at the concert were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of Associate Justice Stone, who wore a smart brown ensemble; Senora de Espil, wife of the Ambassador of Argentina; Mme. Veverka, wife of the Minister of Czechoslovakia, and her daughter, Mlle. Nella Veverka; the Minister of Denmark, Mr. Otto Wadsted; Mrs. John R. Williams, Mrs. Lee P. Warren, Mrs. Ingalls Sard, Mrs. Blaise M. de Sibour, Miss Alice Davis and Miss Helen Davis, daughters of Mr. Dwight Davis; Mr. William Ryan, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Senor Fernando Piza, Mrs. John Caswell, jr., Mrs. Malcolm McConihe, and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman.

Also present were Mrs. Hollister Sturges, Mr. William Phelps Eno, Mrs. Frank J. Hogan and her daughter, Mrs. John Guider; Mrs. John Lewis Smith, Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, Maj. Julia Stimson, Mrs. William Livingston Crounse, Mrs. Kurt Hetzel, Mrs. Edgar Snow, Mrs. Royal T. McKenna, and Mrs. David S. Hendrick.

Supreme Court Dinner At White House Tonight.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain at dinner this evening in the White House in honor of the Justices of Supreme Court of the United States.

The Ambassador of Germany, Herr Hans Luther, will entertain at dinner tomorrow evening in honor of the Ambassador of Turkey, in the embassy on Massachusetts avenue.

The Ambassador recalled the invitations for the dinner which was to have been given last evening in honor of Fraulein Gertrud Kappel, who on account of illness was obliged to cancel her engagement to sing for the first of the series of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's morning musicales.

Women's Democratic Club Reception Honors First Lady

Last evening the Woman's National Democratic Club held a reception for members of the club, in honor of Mrs. Roosevelt, in the clubhouse from 9 until 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, president of the club, presented the guests to Mrs. Roosevelt, and was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, first vice president, and Mrs. Rose Yates Forrester, second vice president.

The First Lady wore a handsome gown of white brocaded satin, fashioned with a deep V neckline and a circular skirt. Mrs. Hamlin was in a gown of white chiffon beaded in tiny srystals, while Mrs. Meigs wore a gown of bright green lace. Mrs. Forrester wore a gown of pale gray crepe.

The club was decorated with red roses and Christmas greens, and light refreshments were served in the large colonial dining room. Alternating at the table were Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the Secretary of War, who wore a gown of black satin trimmed with crystal beads; Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, gowned in black velvet with cap sleeves of rich cream lace; Mrs. Henry A. Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, who also wore black satin; Mrs. Blair Bannister, Mrs. Harry Covington, Mrs. Emily Newall Blair, Mrs. Samuel Herrick and Mrs. Edward Keating.

A part of the guests were invited for 9 o'clock and the others for 10 o'clock, so the club was never too crowded, and had the charming atmosphere of a reception in a private home.

Among those seen were the Administrator of the NRA and Mrs. Hugh S. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Kenneth Simpson, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Ralph Worthington, Mrs. George Eckels, Mrs. Burt New, Mrs. Eleanor Connelly, Miss Elizabeth Howry, Mrs. William F. Dennis, Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Henderson, Mrs. Anna C. Farrar, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hubbard, Mrs. Conrad H. Syme, Col. and Mrs. William Mark Conrad, Mrs. J. T. M. Johnston, of St. Louis; Mrs. Effingham Townsend and Mrs. Oscar Jarecki.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Harlee Branch, Mrs. Major Cook, Miss Constance Dane, Mrs. William Davis, wife of the newly appointed director of the National Compliance Board of the NRA, and Mr. and Mrs. Brent Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Russell entertained at dinner last evening at the Arts Club in honor of the visiting Philippine Commissioner, Mr. Isauro Gabaldon. The other guests were Senator and Mrs. Gerald P. Nye, Representative and Mrs. James Freer, Mr. S. Concepcion and Mr. and Mrs. Jose Meleucio, the latter the daughter of Gen. Aguinaldo.

McInnerneys Honor Pierre du Pont.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. McInnerney, of 825 Fifth avenue, New York, have arrived for a few days at the Shoreham. They will return to their home in New York later this week and expect to be in Washington again next week. Mr. McInnerney is a member of the Industrial Advisory Board of the NRA. They entertained at dinner in their apartment Tuesday evening for Mr. Pierre du Pont, chairman of the Advisory Board; also Mr. William A. Harriman, of New York; Mr. Robert L. Lund, of St. Louis, and Gen. Robert E. Wood, of Chicago, other members of the board.

Esther Rankin And Fiance Given Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Guy T. Scott will entertain at the Shoreham at a dinner this evening in honor of Miss Esther Rankin, of Washington, and her fiance, Mr. Raymond Weaver, of Huntingdon, Pa. The wedding of the couple will take place Saturday at the Anacostia M. E. Church. Mrs. Scott will be matron of honor at the wedding, and her guests include other members of the bridal party. Miss Rankin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Rankin, and is active in Girl Scout work in the city. Mr. Weaver is a graduate of Purdue University. They will go to California on the wedding trip.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Be Present At Symphony

Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe Will Entertain Box Party.

Mrs. Roosevelt will attend the National Symphony Orchestra concert this afternoon.

The First Lady will occupy the Presidential box at the concert at Constitution Hall, conducted by Hans Kindler. Rose Bampton, the brilliant young contralto now with the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be soloist. The concert, the third Thursday concert of the orchestra, will begin at 4:45 o'clock.

Mrs. Roosevelt will have as her guests Mrs. Charles Hamlin, Mrs. James Helm, Mrs. Malvina T. Scheider and Miss LeHand.

Other National Symphony boxholders, who have announced box parties for next Thursday, include Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, one of the leading spirits in the orchestra association since it was founded two and a half years ago. Mrs. Howe will have as her guests Mrs. Richard Darby (the former Ethel Roosevelt), Mrs. E. F. A. Andrews and Mr. Thomas Pearson, who is here on a visit from Paris.

Admiral and Mrs. H. P. Huse and Mrs. Joseph P. Cotton will be the guests of Mrs. W. L. Crounse, another box holder, while Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hitt will entertain in their box Mr. and Mrs. George Gaither, of Middleburg, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. William C. Seipp, of Middleburg, Va., and Mrs. R. H. Dunlap.

Mrs. B. L. Hardin will entertain in the box of Mrs. Calderon Carlisle, while Miss Alice Clapp's box will be occupied by Mrs. Rice, of New York, and Mrs. Staats.

No End of Books

Ernest Fiene Designs Book-Jacket for Sinclair Lewis' Next Novel, "Work of Art," Out January 24; F. Scott Fitzgerald Rests in Bermuda.

Ernest Fiene, whom Henri Matisse called "the most representative American painter," has done the book-jacket for Sinclair Lewis' novel, "Work of Art," which Doubleday Doran will issue on January 24. Mr. Fiene's paintings are to be found in such leading museums as the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Fogg Art Museum in Cambridge, the Whitney Museum in New York, the Harrison collection in Los Angeles, and the Mia collection in Japan.

Having got the manuscript of his new novel, "Tender Is the Night," safely in the hands of Scribner, his publishers, F. Scott Fitzgerald is off to Bermuda for a vacation with his wife.

Russians have not taken kindly to Carveth Wells' recent book, "Kapoot," published by McBride, written about his travels therein. That would seem to be the implication of a postcard Mr. Wells has just received:

"Dear Carveth: Come back to Russia and get shot!

"'Tovarich' (Believe It or Not) Ripley."

Light Fiction.

An omnibus, "ROMANTIC ADVENTURES: THE MAURICE WALSH BIG THREE." (Stokes, $2.50). A fat volume holding three novels by the Irish writer, Maurice Walsh—"The Small Dark Man," "The Key Above the Door" and "While Rivers Run." They are charming, often exciting romances of Ireland, the Scottish Highlands and the Grampian Hills, respectively. Mr. Walsh is a very pleasant writer, somewhat in the school of Donn Byrne.

A novel, "THE RED DEMON," by A. J. Wright. (Putnam, $2.) A dramatic story of Wall street and American finance, by a widely known business man in Buffalo who has been blind for 35 years. Very realistic and stirring.

A novel, "FLAME IN THE FOREST," by Harold Titus. (Macrae-Smith, $2.) Action in the North woods, and plenty of it. By a specialist in the knock-'em-down-and-drag-'em-out school. Good reading, indeed.

A mystery, "MURDER FLIES THE ATLANTIC," by Stanley Hart Page. (King, $2.) The murder takes place in a passenger dirigible flying from London to New York, so the culprit must be aboard. The detective is called by wireless and arrives by airplane while the dirigible is still in midflight. More deeds of blood take place, and it is all quite thrilling enough for the most seasoned mystery fan.

A western, "THE COWBOY FROM ALAMOS," by Charles H. Snow. (Macrae-Smith, $2.) The strong-minded cowpuncher who steps in and takes charge of the ranch. Also the rancher's daughter. The situation has occurred before in Western fiction. But there's an evening's entertainment in the book.

A mystery, "COUNTERFEIT," by Lee Thayer. (Sears, $2.) Redheaded Peter Clancy follows up the puzzle of a $100 bill amazingly counterfeited. It's a fresh theme, the story is very well told, and you should like it.

A novel, "TARZAN AND THE CITY OF GOLD," by Edgar Rice Burroughs. (E. R. Burroughs, Inc., Tarzana, Calif., $2.) Tarzan, the ape man, still goes blithely through adventure after adventure. Those in this book involve "the most beautiful woman in the world, the throne of the great god Thoos, and the horrors of the grand hunt." Grand for readers who want to escape from the NRA and the 15 per cent wage cut.

A novel, "THE PRINCE OF ENDREVAST," by John Robinson Pleasants. (Meador, $2.) A long, long story of princes and princesses in a kingdom of central Europe (to be found on no map), written in the most turgid style of Southern romanticism.

A novel, "THE PUMPKIN SHELL," by Estelle Thomson. (Suttonhouse, Los Angeles, $1.) Whimsy, but rather nice, nevertheless, about two old ladies of 70 who have to make their way in the world.

A story, "THE TRANQUIL BEASTS," by Temple Bailey. (Penn, 50c.) A reprint from Miss Bailey's book of short stories, "The Holly Hedge." Little Peter wondered if it were true that farm animals kneel in the barn at midnight on Christmas Eve, and he went to find out. A sweet story.

A story, "THE CRYSTAL BOWL," by Temple Bailey. (Penn, 50c.) Equally sweet, and also a reprint. Edith, the family villain, comes home on Christmas Eve to fetch away the bowl, a very valuable heirloom. But repentance overcomes her, and she gives the bowl to her brother, who needed it more. Both of these books by Miss Bailey are especially printed for Christmas giving.

THEODORE HALL.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

There are many remedies for migraine, each with its advocates and each having some merit. That there are so many remedies proves several things. One is that the disorder is a group rather than a single disease, or the disease going by the name is not a disease but is only a symptom and may be a product of any one of several diseases or conditions.

The other is that there is no remedy which is satisfactory except in the treatment of the cases to which it is peculiarly suited. The remedy which has proved satisfactory to one man and which is honestly advocated by him is found to be of no service when the next man tries it.

It is, unfortunately, true that there is no good test or sign by which we can judge which cases are most liable to be improved by a given treatment. There are some such signs that are guide posts, though of limited value. Many people speak of themselves as being of a bilious temperament. Some of this group have sallow complexions. They commonly give a history of constipation and periodic use of calomel or other laxatives and purgatives. The migraine use of this group will be helped especially by the temporary use of purgatives and enemas. Most of them can succeed very well in warding off attacks by breaking the purgative habit, by overcoming constipation without the use of drugs and by eating simple foods, and less of them, and by working or playing harder.

Many who lead sedentary lives can break their migraine habits by taking up farming or flower raising, or becoming devotees of golf or hunting. Dr Peter Bassoe says some of this long working hour, sedentary group will benefit from taking a glass of cream or good milk between meals.

In some there is a history of eyestrain and perhaps the flashes of light and floating objects are unusual. Some of these prevent attacks by having their eyes very accurately fitted and refraining from work in glare or by light otherwise poor.

Santinis Here On Wedding Trip

Former Mrs. Judah Married to Native of Rome.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Santini, of New York, are spending a short time in the Capital. Their marriage took place last Thursday in New York in the Municipal Chapel.

Mrs. Santini was formerly Mrs. Dorothy Patterson Judah, former wife of the former United States Ambassador to Cuba, Mr. Noble Brandon Judah. She is a daughter of the late Mr. John Patterson, of Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. Santini is a native of Rome, Italy, and a son of Commandante Pio Santini. Mr. and Mrs. Santini are on their wedding trip and will return to New York tomorrow.

It's a Matter of Years.

By Katherine Smith.

I came too late to know the bland,
Cool ways of suavity,
I find myself an infant lost
In age-old dignity.

So when my flippant phrases spurt
Where epics should be sung,
Remember and forgive—for I Am still so very young.

Worth Fashions New Frocks on Slender Lines

Olive Green, Deep Blue and Beige Favored for Midwinter.

Paris.—Soft colors and fabrics, slender lines and striking trims are the rule around which Worth fashions his new frocks designed for midwinter wear and hinting of spring fashions.

Olive green, deep blue and beige in soft pliable wools fashion the advance 1934 dresses. They are cut on a slender silhouette often finished with elbow-length sleeves and ornamented with striking belts and accessories to brighten up winter wardrobes.

New hats of felt and velvet are shown with the frocks. Most of them follow the design of the close-fitting toque, with trimming concentrated at the back rather than the front.

Beige kasha makes one advance frock designed with a simple bodice, slender skirt and elbow-length sleeves. It is finished with glittering gold buttons and worn with a waist-length cape of kasha trimmed in brown astrakhan. Olive green wool makes another which has a wide belt of the fabric edged in copper wire, while a third is designed of soft blue wool finished at the neckline with a cream-colored satin bow and worn with a blue velvet toque having a blue and green feather swirl at the back.

Black afternoon frocks designed with short or long slender sleeves form an outstanding part of the collection. One of them of black satin-striped crepe has a belt of twisted gold wires. Another of black ribbed crepe is trimmed on the bodice and at the cuff line with putty-colored crepe, while a third of black crepe has short puff sleeves of lattice work velvet.

Mrs. Amory on Way To Florida Home

Mrs. Charles Minot Armory and her daughter, Miss Gloria Baker, are spending several days in New York and will return to their home in Palm Beach, Fla., in a few days. They will be accompanied by Mrs Amory's younger son, Mr. George Vanderbilt, who will pass the holidays with his mother. Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, her other son, is hunting big game in South Africa with Mr. Winston Guest and Mr. Raymond Guest They are expected to return to this county in January.

Checkerboard Girl

A jaunty brown and white sports frock has color accents in the form of bright green scarf and belt. The frock's fabric is a spongy wool knit. A dark brown hat completes this attractive ensemble which is perfectly at home on the boulevard, at the hockey game, or snuggled beneath a greatcoat on a motor, trip.

What Today Means

"Sagittarius."

If December 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 10 a. m., from 3 to 4 p. m. and from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 5:45 to 6:50 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will make for disorder and will be generally antagonistic toward all that suggests routine, method and advance planning. It is probable that you will have a very severe disappointment of some sort on this date. Children should be carefully watched over and must be carefully guarded against overdoing: little bodies will be easily strained.

Born on December 14, you have great strength of purpose and although you will generally rub people the wrong way you will be able to rise above any obstacles that they may put in your way. You are a person of courage, both physical and mental. You make the best of conditions that are beyond your control and are slow to complain. You refuse, however, to tolerate troublesome conditions if they are not beyond your control. You jump right in and clean things up. You are a thoroughly dependable person and once you undertake to do a thing it is as good as done. You have no use for people who put off doing things till another day. Now is your time and you like to see things as near perfect as possible. You enjoy your moments of relaxation and take a great deal of pleasure in rather simple amusements. You enjoy games of cards. In fact games of all sorts. You like the theater and it is possible that you are an inveterate theatergoer.

If December 14 is the date of your birth, you are a kind person. You can think of the nicest things to do for the comfort of others and you seem always to be doing something to make another happy. You are most eager to do your share of what is to be done and wherever you are you just unceremoniously pitch in and do it. You are a person who enjoys clubs and the chances are that you belong to several and take a pretty active interest in them all.

The Family Marketer

Smyrna Umbrella Figs, Four Inches Wide, on Sale Here.

The Marketer stopped in astonishment before a table in a grocery store.

"Just look at the size of those figs!" she requested of herself. And herself, looking, agreed that she had never seen such big ones.

The Marketer turned to the store clerk.

"What do you call 'em?"

"Those are what we call Smyrna Umbrella figs."

"Only 38 cents a pound."

The figs are about four inches wide, and are packed in a row in a narrow five-pound box. The Marketer remembered the nutritive value of figs. That fact, coupled with the size of the Smyrna variety, and their obvious delectability, would make them a welcome gift.

Here is a fruit cake that is a fruit cake! The best you can buy—rich and luscious, bursting with fruits. A three-pound cake is $3.75; one of five-pound weight costs $5.00.

But the Marketer has discovered a simple and an economical way to make one. At the chain stores you can get all the dry ingredients for a fruit cake—the dates, currents, nuts and whatnots. All you have to do is add one egg and half a cup of liquid, bake it in the tin container the ingredients come in, and there you are, a fruit cake for a little over 39 cents. Don't you think that a truly wonderful preparation?

If you are on the lookout for an extra fancy plum pudding, the Marketer has found the place for you to go. The cakes at this store range in price 30 and 40 cents for a one-pound cake and 50 and 60 cents for the 2 pounds.

Among the Christmas fruits there is a place for brandied peaches. A quart jar, packed in sirup, is priced at $2.75; packed in liquid, the same quantity costs $1.50.

The peppers on today's menu cost 5 cents for two. The Marketer substitutes carrots instead of meat stuffing, which is generally used.

Stuffed Peppers.

4 sweet peppers
1 small onion
1 tablespoon fat
1 cup chopped carrots
1 cup cooked rice
½ teaspoon salt
Hot water

Cut a slice from the stem end of each pepper, or remove the stems and cut in halves lengthwise; remove seeds and white fiber. Cook peppers in hot water for 10 minutes; drain. Cook chopped onion in fat until yellow. Remove from stove. Add carrots, rice, salt and liquid to moisten. Fill peppers with the mixture. Arrange in baking pan, pour liquid around them to cover the bottom of the pan. Bake in moderate oven (370 degrees F.) for 30 minutes.

Dinner for Four at 69 Cents.

Season's Dresses in Soft Pastel Shades With Full Sleeves, Have Festive Holiday Air

Directed by Amos Parrish.

New York, Dec. 13.—Visiting the home folks over Christmas? Or having them visit you? Either way, social schedules for the Christmas-to-New Year's week are apt to be pretty full of lunches, bridges, teas and matinees. And the dress for such events is the one with an air of holiday festivity about it.

That's exactly what the new pastel dresses have. There's a quite dressy look to the way they're made . . . with soft necklines, soft full sleeves, soft bodice treatments. And certainly, the colors themselves are festive.

Plenty of Choice.

"I'm getting an aquamarine," you'll hear one of a group say. "And I a chartreuse," chimes in another. "Gold for me," offers a third. And "Personally I prefer that lovely dusty rose," announces a fourth.

They're all of them in fashion with their choices. And so are those others who pick a dusty blue, an orangey red, a coral or an oatmeal beige.

High Necklines.

Necklines draped high in front (as in the sketch) sometimes covering part of the throat, and necklines draped to the back in monks' cowl effects are details that just seem to belong in these soft dresses.

Smooth shoulders with sleeves fullness falling below are another. Fullness in the slender skirts is low, too.

The bracelet-length sleeve is popular with pretty-armed girls. And there are all sorts of simple trimmings such as pleated ruchings on shoulders, side closings, around the neckline or in a fin effect across the shoulders and down the sleeves.

Gold for Accent.

Self-fabric cording in a contrasting color, such as brown on an aquamarine or dusty rose dress, is another effective trimming used in belts, frogs or buttons.

And gold cord is also used for belts and to outline necklines.

Variety of Fabrics.

All these colors appear in almost any fabric you want. Canton crepe and chalky dull crepes; crinkled rough and fine pebbly crepes; mossy finished ones; heavy sheers; nubby crepes and tinsel thread crepes.

306th Cavalry Will Give Dinner-Dance

Many High-Ranking Officers and Wives to Attend.

The chairman of the social activities committee announces that plans are now complete for the first of a series of dinner-dances to be held this season by the Second Squadron of the 306th Cavalry Reserve at the Carlton Hotel on Saturday evening.

The dinner will be served at 8 o'clock and dancing will start at 10. Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding general of the Third Corps Area, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker. Impromtu addresses are to be given by other high-ranking officers attending. Acceptances have been received from other distinguished guests and members of the Diplomatic Service, including Col. and Mrs. John D. Long, chief of staff of the Sixty-second Cavalry Division; Col. and Mrs. John Phillip Hill, regimental commander of the 306th Cavalry; Col. Harry N. Cootes, former commanding officer of Fort Myer, and Col. and Mrs. Kenyon A. Joyce Col. Joyce is the present commander at Fort Myer. Many others have also accepted.

The patrons will be Col. John Phillip Hill, regimental commander, who will act as toastmaster, and Mrs. Hill; Maj. Harley C. Dagley, instructor for Organized Cavalry Reserve in the District, and Mrs. Dagley; Maj. and Mrs. Geary P. Eppley. Maj. Eppley is the squadron commander of the regiment.

Marquis Diana Will Leave for New Post

The retiring Counselor of the Italian Embassy, Marquis Pasquale Diana, will leave Washington today for New York, whence he will sail Saturday aboard the Conte di Savoia for Italy to join his family for the Christmas holidays. After which he will go to his new post in Berlin.

New Bandeau Gives Graceful Line to Figure

By Ruth Anne Davis.

With the new interest in the hourglass silhouette the V-ette brassieres give promise of being among the season's best sellers. The fact that so many frocks are dependent on the figure for a lot of their style naturally turns our attention to every method we can employ to have just that perfect rotundity.

By means of these brassieres we can achieve perfect lines for the most revealing costumes, and do so with utmost comfort. Unlike the usual bandeaux these have four distinguishing features—a modified diaphragm control; forked shoulder ribbons; an adjustable shoulder slide; and a semilow back for all day, or evening wear.

But that's not all. They have the truly Parisian "whirlpool cups" of concentric stitchings giving the effect of wiring, but having none of the discomforts.

The V-ettes come in sizes 32 to 40, or may be ordered in outsizes. They're obtainable in white, flesh, and tea-rose in fine net, or beautifully patterned lace.

Especially for Christmas, 1934, a beauty expert has created a new powder in an equally new box. Whereas its texture is fine enough to spread smoothly over the face, it was designed especially for wholesale use after the bath. A tubful of warm water and an aftermath of this exquisitely perfumed powder will turn an ordinary bath into an extraordinary pleasure.

The box itself is unique. It is made of silver crystal glass, highly lustrous, and never used before in this capacity. When the powder has been used, this delightfully different box is suited for the boudoir.

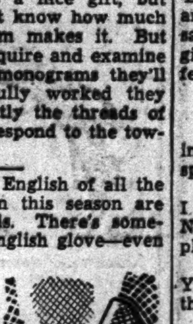
Since the good old American custom of "bottoms up" seems to be unaffected by repeal symptoms, an E street store suggests tossing them off with some of the real "bottoms up" cocktail cups on display this week.

For fear of the graybeard censor's heavy pencil, we skip over a description and meekly suggest that shoppers stop by and take a sidewise glance. They're worth the trouble.

Just as sure as the end of the week comes, a downtown department store is up and at us with some new offers to stimulate our interest in Christmas shopping. This week it's a monogram service they're sponsoring. Lately they've had so many specials on bath towels and sold so many hundreds of them that they've decided to go a step further and embroider initials on the borders.

Everybody knows that a soft Turkish towel is a nice gift, but everybody doesn't know how much nicer a monogram makes it. But if they care to inquire and examine these particular monograms they'll see how beautifully worked they are and how neatly the threads of the lettering correspond to the towel fabric.

Quite the most English of all the gloves we've seen this season are the woolly tweeds. There's something about an English glove—even though it was "made in America," which suggests a high pitch of indifference to heavy fogs and cold, wet days. It might be their sturdy, durable look, or it might be their air of wear me when and how you will, but I'm a stanch protector of cold hands. No matter what it is about English looking gloves, these black and brown mingled tweeds have that "something" we value in sports apparel.



Ask your mirror its honest opinion of your face and it might, after some reflection, make plain to you that beauty can not dwell where blemishes abound.

The tantalizing little pimples and rough spots which have a way of devastating complexions may be attacked most subtly by a blemish lotion. It's spread over the affected areas to disguise them temporarily. But when it's removed imagine the pleasure of finding the rough spots gone!

This lotion is very good as a powder base for oily skins.

There's no use hearkening to the call of the snowclad hills and ski tracks without gathering together a first-rate winter wardrobe. A large department store assures us that, regardless of everything else we might need, we'll simply have to have some of the brushed wool sweater sets. Delightful winter sports outfits they are, too!

There's a sweater with such long woolly surface it looks positively "furry." A high, turnback, turtle collar fits high around the throat with a choker snugness. A little pert—terribly pert!—cap which matches the contrasting border of the sweater may be rolled up to make a topnotch snow cap, or folded down in regular ear-muff fashion.

Motherhood Transcends All Arts, Says Theater Founder

To Nurture a Child's Physical and Spiritual Growth to Balanced Maturity Is to Use Every Art and Science, Says Prof. F. H. Koch.

The greatest creative work of woman is that of producing individuals and shaping their destinies and the women who are most outstanding in the arts are in themselves symbols of maternity.

Prof. Frederick H. Koch, founder of the first folklore theater in America, voiced that idea yesterday when asked to give his opinion of women as artists.

"Of course," he said, "I know I am going to get into a lot of trouble making a statement like that. John Erskine and I almost had a battle about it once. Erskine's idea is that the creation of individuals is merely biological, and that in order to fulfill themselves, women must find expression in some of the other arts.

"But in what one phase of art can a woman find so many ways of self-expression as in guiding the growth of a child? To take a tiny helpless baby, and care for it and teach it through all its years of growth is to make use of all the artistry and most of the sciences of the universe. The woman who can, after years of effort, gaze upon a well-rounded individual, with strength of character, and intelligence alive and sensitive to the beauty around him, has more reason to be proud of her work than the actress who has played a great role, or the painter who has painted a great picture.

Points to Actresses.

"There is a special quality about women who have been outstanding in the theater," Prof. Koch continued. "Their lives seem to transcend their art. The great Bernhart, at 70, could surround herself on the stage with young girls and, through the magnificence of her personality and the gallantry of her spirit, shine as if lighted with an inner light, while those around her seemed in darkness. Eleanor Duse's greatness as a woman shining through the greatness of the actress gave her a radiance which makes her unforgettable.

"These are women whom the whole world knows," he said. "There are others not so famous, but whose work has not been less significant. In a back woods North Carolina community, known as Ebeneziar Neighborhood, Genevieve Woodson, who teaches in a one-room school, has founded a 'Log Cabin Treater.' She says her first reason for building it was to give the people something to work at so they wouldn't use all their spare time fighting. Since it was built it has become the center of community life. I was recently invited over to one of their performances.

From old wooden boxes covered with wrapping paper and painted, all at a cost of 60 cents, they had created their stage setting. The footlights were three oil lamps set up on grocery boxes.

"The people in the audience came in overalls and their Sunday 'store clothes.' The enmity of the past forgotten, they sat and laughed hilariously at scenes from Carolina folk plays. These plays showed people like themselves whom they knew and understood. Between acts, an old country woman sang 'Barbara Allen.' A crude performance in many ways, perhaps, but satisfying a vital need. A small beginning of great things," the professor prophesied.

Modest About His Work.

Professor Koch is modest in telling about his work in founding and sponsoring the folk play.

"The beginning was very simple. I was teaching at the University of North Dakota. A boy handed in a play about a storm in New York.

"'Have you ever been in New York?' I asked him. He replied that he had not."

"'Then why write about a storm in New York when you live in the cyclone area of North Dakota?' I asked him. That was the beginning of the folk play idea.

"Today this has grown into the plan for a people's theater, which will typify our people, and express the soul of America. You can see from the example set at the University of North Carolina how this will work. Sixteen years ago, when this movement was started in Chapel Hill, North Carolina was regarded as dramatically dead.

"The scope of this small theater has widened, until today its influence is felt all over the South. Even in the most remote mountain, the dramatic instinct is finding expression through folk play. Prominent playwrights have written their first plays in the playwritting class, and produced them in the playmaker theaters. Paul Green, whose 'In Abraham's Bosom' was a Pulitzer prize-winner, was one of the first students. Other playwrights who have written of their own people as a result of this movement and have won recognition are Hatcher Hughes, with his 'Hell Bent Fer Heaven;' Ann Bridges, with her 'Coquette,' and Lulu Vollmer's 'Sun Up.'

"Probably the most influential of these was Paul Green. Because his epic play, showing the efforts of a Negro teacher to lead his people, was the real beginning of the Negro theater.

Negro Actors Praised.

"The Negro actors are among our finest. They have vividness of imagination, a freshness and vitality which is lacking in white actors, who have much of the fire civilized out of them.

"And so you can see," Prof. Koch summed up, his eyes alight with enthusiasm, "how in the Negro theater the wheel has come full circle. From plays written by white people, acted by white actors, to those written by Negro playwrights and acted by Negro actors.

"All this is an essential part of the people's theater, which must not neglect some of our richest material through prejudice.

"Thus, you can see," he concluded, "how the people's theater will include all of American life, from the great National Theater Miss Le Gallienne desires to the Negro and his log cabin theater in the back woods.

"There has never been a time when such a theater would serve a greater need. People have so much leisure nowadays and they need to use it wisely. By taking an active part in the production of art they will gain more in spiritual productiveness than they could in any other way. And those special qualities which women alone possess are an essential factor in the building of such a theater."

Winter Weather Is Nature's Own Skin Astringent

Perfect Antidote for Pores Relaxed by Summer Heat.

Snappy, freezing weather is Nature's own astringent for toning and firming women's complexions. But women may dare this natural astringent, as it were, only after they have carefully prepared their skin.

Once or, better, twice a day, the face should be thoroughly swabbed with cotton moistened with skin tonic. This should be followed by a film of cleansing cream, smeared over the face, throat, hands and wrists—all skin areas likely to be exposed to the elements.

When the cleansing cream has been removed with tissues, a nourishing cream should be patted into the skin with the finger tips and palms. The eyelids and underneath the eyes should be very lightly treated. Then, if under 30 years of age, you may swipe the face with a dash of witch hazel. Over that age, you may require a sterner cosmetic astringent.

Before beginning your preparation-for-winter beauty treatment, always anoint the lips with glycerine or colorless pomade. By the time you are ready to apply your make-up, the lips will be baby-soft and will take lipstick beautifully, even though you do not need extra color on your lips, in winter time by all means use a colorless lipstick or a faintly tinted one, as nothing is so softening and protecting from winter's chapping winds.

Late fall and winter walks, which exercise muscles and quicken the circulation, will tone both skin and entire body. Even damp days, when rain or snow whip the face, are good for the skin it has been properly treated before going out. It is a most stimulating tonic.

Summer heat and perspiration soften the skin and lubricates it with extra quantities of oil and moisture. The pores become relaxed. For a short period, this is beneficial, but by the end of summer, the relaxation is apt to have been carried a bit too far. That's where Nature steps in, with her freezing-weather astringent.

Composer Says Spirituals Derive From Minstrelsy

Danville, Va., Dec. 13.—The Negro spiritual never had its origin in Africa, according to John Powell, composer and pianist, in an address here on American church music. The principal derivation, he said, is early minstrelsy for the melodic structures of Africa are entirely different to those adopted by the Negroes.

The speaker also expressed the belief that folk song antedates the Gregorian chant, and that much of the early Catholic music was founded on folk tunes.

Midnight and Celestial Blue Paris Favorites

Molyneux Uses Blue Coq Feathers; Schiaparelli Chinese Blue.

Most of the important Paris designers have the blues. From blackish midnight shades to pale celestial tones, blues are featured in their latest creations, especially for evening.

Molyneux has made an entrancing capelet of coq feathers which shade from dark to extremely light blue, to be worn with a light blue velvet gown. He has placed deft touches of ivory on a navy blue moire capelet which accompanies a moire gown in the same color. The ivory note is repeated in the gown's girdle. Schiaparelli prefers rich Chinese blue for some of her smart new formal things.

Lanvin has introduced an adorable evening suit in brown paillettes with pink baghera blouse. The jacket is tiny and straight. The skirt is long and dignified. This couturiere has been extremely successful with evening suits consisting of dull crepe black skirt, lame blouse, and fur or dull crepe infinitesimal cape.

Nuts Scarce, Squirrels Go West in Search of Eatables

The winter of 1933-34 may go down in the books as the date of the great big trek of the little gray squirrels.

The rodents are up to something. In Massachusetts, Connecticut and Eastern New York they are on the march, according to an Associated Press report.

Not all squirrels; just the gray squirrels.

A woman motorist reported seeing hundreds of them scampering across the Bear Mountain bridge over the Hudson River. She had to drive carefully, she said, to avoid running them down.

"Nobody seems to know how far they go," said George G. Goodwin, assistant to the curator of mammals at the American Museum of Natural History. "The situation is comparable to the movements of the lemmings in Norway where thousands of them go out to sea and are drowned."

Squirrel enthusiasts gave voice today to a variety of opinions.

"So the squirrels are going West, eh?" said a gentleman busily engaged in scraping ice off the sidewalk. "They probably expect to find more nuts out there. Some say it's a bad year for nuts in this part of the country. The squirrels show their common sense in following the food supply. And it's time there's a big bridge for them to go across at Bear Mountain.

Woman, Who Has Lent a Hand In Many Lands, Full of Hope

By Laura Vitray.

An old oil lamp and a Victrola with a squeaky voice stand like museum pieces in a position of honor in a splendid hospital at Valdobiadene, Italy. They are mute witnesses to the friendship that exists between the peoples of two nations.

Yesterday Mrs. Charlotte Miller Heilman, who has just been awarded the Florence Nightingale medal for her achievements with the American Red Cross at home and abroad, recalled the story of the old lamp and the worn and rusty music box, with tears in her eyes at the gratitude of a people far away.

"It was soon after the war," she said, "that I rode in a camion over the bumpy roads with the lamp in my hand and the Victrola beside me to that devastated and forsaken region, where the hospital now stands. It was a land of crumbling ruins, into which a dazed and stricken peasantry were slowly filtering, searching for some stick or stone of what had been their homes.

"In the center of the desolation we put up a barracks hospital to give first-aid to the refugees. I was practically alone to organize and to carry on the work, but the peasant women as they returned to the wreck of their village, rallied about me, and constituted themselves a most efficient hospital staff.

Tended the Suffering.

"We cared for the sick, we brought new little Italian babies into the world, we operated on those who were gravely ill.

"Across the Piavi River from our little town rose the famous Monte Grappa, the mountain that Italy turned into fortress, honeycombed with underground passages and rooms. Sometimes the army officers came over and lent us a hand.

"On the day I left Valdobiadene it was pouring rain. But in spite of the rain the little peasant children, hundreds of them, marched in the streets with the nuns of the convent nearby, to bid me farewell. They carried little paper Italian flags they had made out of the paper bands that came around the packages of knitting wool we had distributed.

"At the head of the parade walked a woman bearing the Red Cross flag.

"And that night, on a table spread with a bed sheet and set with the humblest fare, they tendered me a banquet I shall never forget. The floor of the room was entirely carpeted with wild flowers, over which I walked. As I sat at table, likewise strewn with flowers, out of the night came the sound of singing voices. Looking out into the dark, I saw hundreds of tapers slowly mounting the hill, in the hands of men and women who wished thus to express their blessing upon America.

International Friendship.

"Out of such incidents, international faith and friendship are slowly knit. They survive the harsh, stifling crudeness of war, as that splendid hospital still survives our first crude shack."

Mrs. Heilman has been a good-will emissary of America and American generosity in many lands.

In 1920, through the contributions of American school children, members of the Junior Red Cross, she was sent to Athens to carry on our project of mercy for the "rehabilitation of Europe." There, noblewomen, members of the king's cabinet, and the aristocracy, worked tirelessly under her direction, even as the Italian peasant women had done. Under her advice they established a Permanent Welfare Service, that began with the feeding of the Greek soldiers' hungry little ones, and that survives today as a visiting nurses' service among the poor of Athens.

Mrs. Heilman was in Athens for three years. When Smyrna burned and the starving and helpless refugees, a million and a half strong, poured into Greece, her Grecian ladies were ready to do active rescue work among them.

Serbian Hospital.

In Serbia in 1920, too, she established a 50-bed barracks hospital at Monastir, with no other expert personnel but herself and a Russian surgeon. The peasants aided in the most difficult operations.

In Rome, in Genoa, in Florence, she founded, at the request of the Italian government, schools for the training of public health supervisors and nurses. These schools have today become a prominent feature of Italy's public health program.

"Recently," Mrs. Heilman said, "one of the students from the school in Rome came to America to continue her studies on a Rockefeller scholarship. Her coming made me realize how the web of international goodwill, like that of international hatreds, once started, goes on growing and growing.

"The friendship and the sympathy—the outgoing of feeling and understanding of one people for another—this is the force, mightier than cannon, which can gradually weld the nations together into a new world."

Home in Washington.

Mrs. Heilman, who makes her home permanently in Washington, is now the assistant national director of the Red Cross Public Nursing Service of this country.

Her works of mercy have not been confined to foreign lands. In Florida, after the hurricane, when the dikes surrounding Okechobee Lake burst and the waters poured down over the low marshlands, she was at hand, helping rescue the thousands of miserable families caught like rats in a trap, in their poor shacks and bungalows. As those who escaped drowning arrived drenched and wounded and dumb with terror at the little town of Sebring, they found a tall, gracious, calm and tender lady busy organizing a relief hospital out of the thin air.

In Olean, N. Y., when a typhoid epidemic came near wiping out the entire population of the town, Mrs. Heilman needed but 24 hours to have a full-fledged hospital at work, where only an old abandoned institution had stood before.

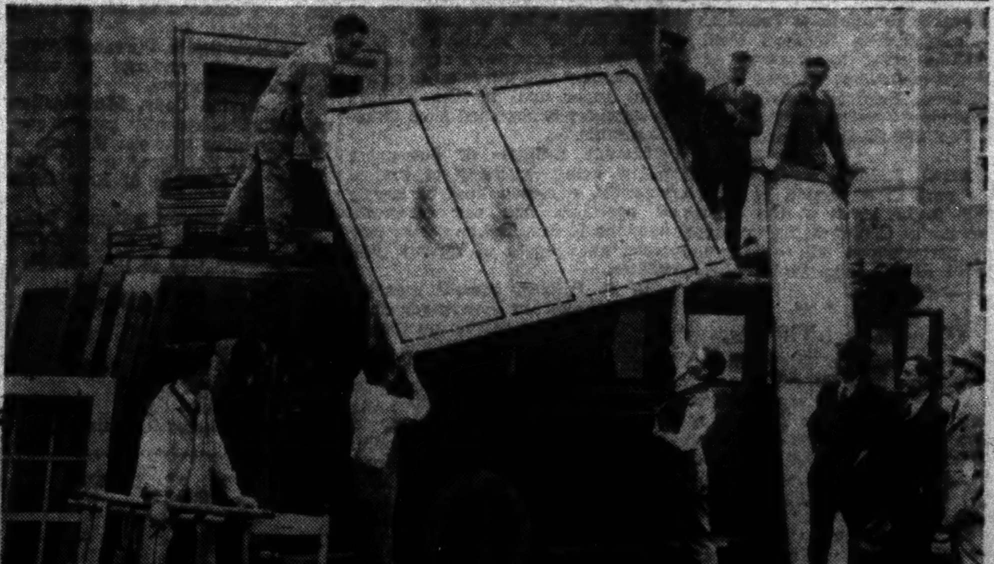
But the honor that came to Mrs. Heilman yesterday was an international one. The Florence Nightingale medal was granted her by the International Red Cross committee at Geneva, Switzerland.

Winchester Women Plan Old-Style Fashion Show

Winchester, Va., Dec. 13 (Spl.). Old-time dresses, bustles, big sleeves, Merry Widow hats and other reminders of the style of another day are being fetched from the closets of many Winchester homes in anticipation of the second annual Fashion Show to be held here shortly after Christmas by the Woman's Civic League.

In addition to the dresses and and other costumery of years ago, it is planned at this year's show to introduce dances of the different periods and also songs and orchestral music.

The Fashion Show is to be held for the benefit of the milk fund, sponsored by the Civic League, which seeks to provide undernourished children in local schools with milk each day. Mrs. H. B. McCormac and Mrs. A. S. Pennypacker are in charge of advance arrangements for the show.



PROF. FREDERICK H. KOCH, founder of America's first folk lore theater, believes in motherhood women find the natural field for developing those gifts of spirit and personality which make them supreme in the world of the theater. As an instructor in a Western university, Prof. Koch happened by chance on a student playwright who gave him his first oportunity to expound his theory that the American theater, to achieve real greatness, must deal honestly with the folk-life of the Nation.

News Writers Here for First National Meet

They'll Listen to Their Own Speeches for a Change.

Tired of attending other people's conventions, the newspaper reporters of America are holding a convention of their own—the first in the history of journalism. Even the copy boys are to be present, if only by proxy.

Tomorrow, the first session of the American Newspaper Guild will be called to order, with no president in the chair, no vice president in hiding, no treasurer to collect dues and no secretary to record the names.

The first order of business, however, will be the election of officers. After that, the newspapermen's convention will be just the same as anybody's convention; with speeches, badges and everything.

At a preliminary skirmish—to be held at a luncheon in the auditorium of the National Press Club tomorrow at 1 o'clock—the delegates to the first annual convention of the American Newspaper Guild will be welcomed to the city by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who will give the boys the keys to the Cage of the Blue Eagle.

Over their coffee cups, the visiting scribes in conference with the Washington correspondents will start the ball rolling toward the formation of the National Association of American Newspaper Guilds, with headquarters in Washington, this being the home town of National associations.

Every train coming into Washington is bringing newspapermen. Delegates from every newspaper guild now in existence will be on hand. Flags are flying over the Press Club as the boys prime for the first flurry.

Opposed to speeches made by other people, some of the scribes are bringing with them manuscripts of their own—all bent on occupying the rostrum. One of the keynoters will be Heywood Broun, 200-pound silver-tongued orator of the Bronx cocktail belt, in New York. With him comes John L. Eddy, secretary of the Newspaper Guild of New York, also slated for a speech.

Aside from Gen. Johnson's appearance, there will be a few remarks by Dr. Leo Wollman, of the Labor Advisory Board, and Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward McGrady, pinch hitting for Secretary Perkins.

With the slogan in mind, "a good time was had by all," the newspapermen are ready to swing into the strenuous activities of their first convention. There is only one fear, that the reporters will be so busy with the business of the convention that they may not get their share of space in the newspapers. They are here for the purpose of organizing the craft—and they want the newspapers to know about it.

Long Protests Bonds' Decline

Senator Charges Loss in State Issues Through Board Valuation.

New Orleans, Dec. 13 (AP).—Senator Huey P. Long today lodged a formal protest in Washington against what he described as "depreciation of State bonds" through the Federal Reserve Board's collateral valuation, "just when we were feeling that things would break upward."

After addressing a telegram on the subject to President Roosevelt, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Gov. Black of the Federal Reserve Board, Senator Long said if it did not "get action" he would leave immediately for Washington to press the complaint. The telegram said:

"Just when we were feeling that things would break upward and had renewed hopes, along comes the Reserve Board and says they must depreciate the security and collateral value of Louisiana bonds which had no default on any payment of interest or maturity at any time.

"Understand this is being done on other State bonds. I urge that such action not be taken against any State that is not in default on its bonds because now when good sound values should be held up, it would be a crime to start another course of depression in this country. Nothing can cause greater depression than depreciation of State bonds throughout this country."

Schools Organize Vocational Body

A vocational guidance association, comprising divisions 10-13 of public schools, was permanently organized yesterday at the Shaw Junior High School, where representatives of all colored secondary schools met.

Therese Cochran Alexander, director of guidance in secondary schools, was named president. Honorary presidents include Dr. Ambrose Caliver, of the Office of Education, Interior Department, and Dr. Howard H. Long, assistant superintendent of schools.

Other officers named were Susie R. Quander, J. C. Webster and Obeziene Walker, vice presidents; Leanna Johnson, recording secretary; E. H. Lawson, corresponding secretary; Thomas E. Batson, treasurer. The association will seek affiliation with a National organization as a branch of the Vocational Guidance Association of the District of Columbia, established since 1928 in divisions 1-9 of public schools.

Roland Young Is Father.

Los Angeles, Dec. 13 (AP).—Roland Young, film actor, paced a hospital corridor today as his wife, formerly Elizabeth Henderson, presented him a daughter weighing 8 pounds.

BAKER

CHARGING there has been a "marked tendency during recent years" to reduce the number of women holding supervisory positions in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, members of Local No. 105, National Federation of Federal Employes, last night adopted a resolution of protest.

It points out that at one time four divisions of the bureau were headed by women while now there are none with a feminine chief. Local No. 105 is comprised of women employes.

Another resolution was adopted, calling upon Director of the bureau to distribute available work in the units so that overtime and payless furloughs may not be in effect at the same time. The motion also urges that whenever there arises a need for additional personnel in other branches of the Treasury Department or other Government agencies, the Secretary of the Treasury be requested to assign personnel of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to those units.

Encouraging reports were made at the meeting on the hospital guild and the credit union.

A Christmas party followed the business session. Miss Gertrude McNally, National secretary, played Santa Claus before a beautiful Christma tree in the Cabint room. Miss Maude Miller led the singing of carols, accompanied by Miss Ellen Buckley.

Import Ban Put On Newsprint

Canadian Products Barred in "Dumping" Inquiry; Shortage Feared.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The New York Herald Tribune says the flow of newsprint paper into the United States from Canada has been temporarily stopped by order of the customs authorities pending investigation into alleged dumping of the product in this country.

The matter is regarded of vital concern, the newspaper says, as approximately two-thirds of all newsprint paper used by the Nation's newspapers is imported from Canadian mills.

Storage facilities of newspaper plants being generally of limited capacity, a steady flow of supply is necessary and any continued ban, the Herald Tribune says, may place newspapers in serious difficulties.

L. B. Palmer, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, is quoted as saying the organization had been informed of the situation and representations had been made to the Treasury Department at Washington, with a view to arranging for movement of newsprint pending outcome of the dumping inquiry.

The situation was brought about when a Los Angeles customs appraiser stopped a shipment of newsprint December 3 or 4, on suspicion of its being dumped below fair value.

Slayer Refuses Operation; Appendix May Cheat Chair

Stricken with acute appendicitis, Ross Caccamise, convicted slayer, was trundled to the operating table in Sing Sing Prison hospital today, but refused to submit to the knife.

"I won't go through with it," he said through teeth clenched with pain.

Surgeons were adjusting masks for what they had decided must be an emergency operation. Male nurses had sterilized the instruments when the prisoner-patient repeated:

"I won't go through with it."

Caccamise, 24, was asked to sign a certificate that he had refused the operation, which he did.

Orderlies wheeled him back to his cell in the death house and applied ice packs to relieve the pain. Caccamise said he did not want to undergo an operation without first seeing relatives, but Warden Lawes said he had not asked to communicate with his widowed mother, Mrs. Rose Caccamise, of Rochester.

The youth was sentenced to die for the slaying of Edmund P. Van de Water in Monroe County. He has been at Sing Sing since October 7.

With an appeal pending, he can not be put to death until April 1 at the earliest. Before then, physicians said, he may have a fatal attack of appendicitis.

Seven years ago a prisoner named Rutger Warder elected to submit to an operation and he is still at the prison, his death sentence having been commuted to life imprisonment.

58 Flee Model Prison In Spain; 30 Retaken

Barcelona, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Fifty-eight prisoners escaped today from a model prison here. The escape was discovered three hours later and 30 convicts were recaptured.

William Lamb, a British subject, was the only prisoner in the jail who refused to escape. He was held in connection with the recent murder of a cafe cashier.

France Seeks British Arms Declaration

Reich Negotiations Held Up Pending New Conference.

Paris, Dec. 13 (AP).—Diplomatic circles talked today of the possibility of a conference between Premiers Camille Chautemps of France and Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain regarding Britain's viewpoint on German relations.

M. Paul-Boncour also talked with Hugh R. Wilson, the American minister to Switzerland, who is en route to America on a leave of absence, and outlined the French insistence on security.

The foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies expressed concern regarding talks in Berlin by Chancellor Hitler and Ambassador Ande Francois-Ponset, and directed Edouard Herriot to get the latest information about them from the foreign minister.

France is anxious to get a British declaration on its position before determining the French stand on Chancellor Hitler's demands for equal armaments.

The British cabinet discussed disarmament in London Wednesday as a preliminary to another conference in Paris of Lord Tyrrell and Paul-Boncour. King George gave a 45-minute audience to Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary.

British Plan Ship Subsidy

Merger of Cunard Line With White Star Indicated.

London, Dec. 13 (AP).—Declaring that Great Britain should "hit back and hit hard at aggresive countries fighting" her shipping, Walter Runciman, president of England's board of trade, said tonight a subsidy for tramp ships was being considered by the government. Not only would it aid industry, he said in the House of Commons, but it would be a defense measure in the event of war.

Runciman's statement followed that today of Neville Chamberlain, that an early merger of the great Cunard and White Star North Atlantic Shipping lines is indicated.

When the merger is completed, Mr. Chamberlain asserted, he will present a program for facilitating completion of a huge Cunard liner 534, which would be the largest ship afloat. Work on the 534 was suspended more than a year ago.

The 534 would be a super liner, costing approximately $25,000,000 and with a tonnage of 73,000.

Steel Head Denies Break With NRA

Weir Says Company Backs Recovery Program.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—The Weirton Steel Co. is "doing its utmost" to advance the National recovery program, E. T. Weir, chairman of the board, said today in a letter to his employes, denying what he said were reports that his company was opposing NRA.

The company's dispute with the National Labor Board, Weir said, has nothing to do with NRA.

"It has come to my attention that reports are being circulated that the Weirton company is opposing he National recovery act," Weir wrote. "These reports are absolutely false, malicious, and without foundation."

Culbertson on Bridge

Finessing.

A finesse is a maneuver for position and the method of play that will gain a trick if the position of the missing honor or honors is favorable.

It has already been pointed out that in honor combinations held in sequence every card, both in Declarer's and Dummy's hand or in the hands of the adversaries, is of equal value. Therefore so far as the Declarer is concerned, if he holds King-Queen-Knave of a suit, it is a matter of indifference which one of these three cards he plays to the trick. Either the card led will win the trick or will force out the only higher card—namely, the Ace. However, we are not always so fortunate as to hold our honor cards in sequence. Many honor combinations are held in what is generally described as "tenaces"—that is, in such combinations as Ace-Queen-small, King-Knave-small, Queen-Ten-small and the like. When our honors are held in these combinations, in order to realize the full value of their trick-taking potentialities, we must maneuver for position. This, in its last analysis, is what the word "finesse" as applied to Bridge really means. For instance, holding:

A Q

It is apparent that if we lay down the Ace and subsequently lead the Queen, we can capture but 1 trick in the suit, regardless of the position of the outstanding adversely held King. The position of the King is unknown. It may be held either by East at the right of the Declarer or by West at the left. If East holds the King, we can maneuver the leads in such a way as to lead from the Dummy to our own hand, playing the Queen in case East does not play the King. Thus the Queen will have won a trick and the Ace will capture another. If West holds the King, we have lost nothing. A finesse, then, is a method of play that will gain a trick if the position of the missing honor or honors is favorable. With honors in sequence, such as King-Queen-Knave-Ten, it is a matter of complete indifference how we play it. We will set up 3 tricks in the suit. The sequence is so strong that it is a solid mass.

N
7 6 2 W E K J 9
A Q 10 8

Here we have a major tenace sitting over a minor tenace. Thus in this example, if we can so maneuver for position as to lead the suit three times from the North hand to the South, we will capture every trick in the suit, disregarding the fact that our suit is full of holes.

The method by which this would be done would be to first maneuver to place the lead in the North hand and then to lead the 3, and when East plays the 9, to cover with the Ten. When this card holds the trick, it then appears quite certain that our maneuver for position has been successful. At least one of the outstanding adversely held honors has been encircled and is subject to capture if we can so maneuver as to again place the lead in the North hand. We will assume for the purpose of this discussion that the North hand contains sufficient entries to permit us to complete the encircling movement. Again, from the North hand we lead a small card, and East plays the Knave. We now play the Queen, and while the play by our opponents probably indicates that at this time we could lead the Ace and drop the outstanding cards in the suit; nothing can be lost, if we have entries in the North Hand, by again leading the suit toward the South hand to make certain of the complete success of our maneuver for position.

The finesse is one of the most important plays in Bridge. A thorough understanding of the principles upon which it is based and the mechanics of its use is essential to every good player. In planning the play of the hand, when we see that the sure tricks available for the fulfillment of our contract are not in sight, it is one of the most frequent means of seeking to develop the additional tricks needed for the making of the contract.

Mall Drainage, Bridge Jobs Awarded Soon

First of $600,000 U. S. Development Projects Ready to Start.

Bids will be taken soon on a water and drainage system for the Mall, the first project in a $600,000 public works program to develop this downtown area, the Office of National Capital Parks disclosed yesterday.

Specifications are also complete for the new bridle path bridge in Rock Creek Park and the contract will be awarded soon, it was said. This bridge, on Rock Creek-Potomac Parkway between Massachusetts avenue and Taft Bridge, will replace the one washed away by the high waters during the heavy rainstorm last August.

The new equestrian bridge will be virtually storm-proof, of concrete and masonry construction. Its predecessor was of wood, as were three other bridle path bridges and five foot bridges which were destroyed or irreparably damaged. It will have a 58-foot center span and be 145 feet long.

Plans for all the new spans in Rock Creek Park have been approved by the Fine Arts Commission. They will be built with PWA funds.

D. C. Milk Price Inquiry Opens Again Monday

Questioning of Distributors Will Be Completed in Two Days.

Hearings before the Senate milk investigating committee, conducting an inquiry into District milk prices, will be resumed Monday, it was announced yesterday by Senator William H. King after a conference with Special Investigator Elwood H. Seal.

The witnesses to be called are: Thomas M. McInnerney, president of the National Dairy Products Corporation, which has 513 subsidiaries and controls 60 per cent of Washington's milk distribution; A. A. Stickler, treasurer of the company, and Henry N. Wollman, of Philadelphia, an official of the corporation.

All testimony will be concluded within two days, according to Mr. Seal. McInnerney will be questioned with respect to his acquisitions of dairy firms and Stickler will be called upon to trace the financial operations of the company. Wollman will be questioned regarding his relationship with Dr. Clyde L. King, milk arbiter of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, who was accused and subsequently denied charges of attempted "price-fixing."

If necessary, Senator King told Seal, the committee will sit at night in order to conclude the hearings.

Sentences Today In Reichstag Fire

Death Demanded for One Who Confessed Blaze.

Leipzig, Germany, Dec. 13 (U.P.). The trial of five Communists on charges of treason and arson, growing out of the Reichstag fire in Berlin the night of February 27, drew to a close today and sentences were expected tomorrow.

The prosecution, summing up, declared that Marinus Van Der Lubbe, young Dutch stonemason, who has confessed to setting the Reichstag building on fire, was guilty of arson on four counts and high treason on two, thus meriting the "full punishment under the law."

The penalty for high treason is death.

$50,000 Necklace Lost, Is Returned

Found by Wife of Waiter; Rewarded $5,000.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The $50,000 pearl necklace lost by Mrs. Alfred Ettlinger, of Cary, Ill., while she was strolling through Central Park last Sunday, has been found and returned.

At the home of Mrs. Ettlinger's father, John Hertz, large-scale taxicab operator, it was said tonight that the necklace was found by the wife of a waiter and that he returned it today through an insurance firm.

The insurance company paid a $5,000 reward.

Leader Rallies Virginia Drys

Richardson Tells Program at New Market.

New Market, Va., Dec. 13 (Spl.). The Rev. Edward J. Richardson, superintendent of the Virginia Anti-saloon League, gave the first of a series of lectures on the new program of the drys in Virginia at Beaver Creek Church of the Brethren in Rockingham County tonight.

He opposed the return of the saloon and told the gathering what measures drys should take to guard their interests at the State Legislature in January.

Other lectures will be delivered by Mr. Richardson at Valley Church of the Brethren, Thursday; Mount Sidney Methodist Church, Friday, and Mount Bethel Church, Sunday.

Beautiful Doll House Awaits Lucky Child at Post's Party

Pleas for Gifts Made by Mothers Who Fear Bleak Xmas.

A beautiful toy doll house with eight rooms, each of them fully furnished, will be the possession of some lucky child at the Post Toy and Doll Fund theater party at Keith's Theater on Saturday morning.

The doll house was given by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gemeny, of Washington, to aid the Toy Fund. The larger the audience at Keith's Theater on Saturday, the more toys there will be in the Toy Fund headquarters at the Washington Building.

Each child who attends the show is asked to bring a brand new toy for admission. The doors of Keith's Theater will open at 8:30 a. m. on Saturday morning and the show will start promptly at 9 a. m.

Typothetae Aids Fund.

Good news came yesterday from the Typothetae of Washington, representing the commercial graphic arts industry of the city in the following letter.

"City Editor, The Washington Post.

"Dear Sir:

"The Typothetae of Washington, representing the commercial graphic arts industry of Washington, heartily indorses The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund and will do its bit to promote it at its Christmas party next Monday, December 18, at the Raleigh Hotel.

"This meeting will be the 743d consecutive weekly meeting of the association and a toy or doll for The Washington Post Fund will be the price of admission.

"Very truly,
"G. A. WALSH, Secretary."

The Post thanks the Typothetae for its kindly thought of The Post Toy and Doll Fund and hopes the Christmas party will be a great success.

At Christmas time, mankind celebrates the birth of a little Child, Who came into the world in lowliness, but clothed with all the majesty not only of His place as the Son of God, but also of human birth.

In Washington there are women, awaiting the birth of their children, who are destitute and without means to make a Merry Christmas for the children already in the world. Such a mother is the one who wrote in a trembling hand yesterday to The Post Toy and Doll Fund as follows:

Plea for a Child.

"Dear Santa Claus Lady:

"I am writing this letter to ask you if you could make my little girl happy for Christmas. She wants a doll so bad. Every night she asks me if Santa Claus will bring one this year. She wanted one last year but her Daddy was out of work and could not get her one. She had a carriage given to her, but there was no doll for it.

"It is impossible for us to get anything, for her daddy only works part time and it takes every cent to pay the rent. And we only half way eat.

"She is 6 years old and goes to school. They sent me word that I should buy her milk in school, but I can not do it. We are expecting another baby the last of December. So you see it takes every cent. Please try and make her happy with a doll."

Must this mother's plea be in vain? The Washington Post is sure it will not—through the kindness of the many friends who have sent dolls to the Post Toy and Doll Fund.

"Sidewalks of New York" Stirs Simmons' Memory.

Memories of a hectic campaign in 1928 that cost him a 30-year-old Senate seat because of his opposition to Alfred E. Smith's Presidential candidacy must have come back to former Senator F. M. Simmons yesterday, the Associated Press reported.

The venerable North Carolina Democrat, for years a power in the Senate, appeared before the Public Works Technical Board of Review in behalf of a road project near his New Bern, N. C., home.

As he rose to his feet, a hurdy-gurdy wagon outside the hearing room in the Interior Department sent up its raucous tunes.

Forum to Hear Pickett.

The problem of stranded workers in industry will be analyzed by Clarence E. Pickett, of the subsistence homesteads division of the Interior Department in an address at the Friends Forum meeting house, 1811 I street northwest, Sunday at 8 p. m.

Sale of Stock For Industrial Bank Started

New Name Approved, With Opening Slated Soon; Merger Plan Gains.

Approval of a new name for Industrial Savings Bank by the Comptroller of the Currency was announced yesterday by the reorganization committee for this restricted institution.

The new bank will be known as the Industrial Bank, instead of Industrial Savings Bank, but is reopening as a savings institution. Sale of $65,000 worth of stock for the new bank was begun. This amount represents a capital of $50,000 and a surplus of $15,000.

Members of the committee expect the new bank will be open by or, shortly after, January 1. A quick stock sale is expected, because considerable stock pledged earlier in the year for reopening of the bank as a National institution may be converted to the new proposal. Directors for the new bank now are being selected, and their names will be submitted within a few days to the Treasury Department for approval.

Officers of Mount Vernon Savings Bank, which is to reopen as a unit of the prospective Mechanics-Franklin Savings Bank, reported agreements to the consolidation representing 82 per cent of a required $1,500,000 in deposits. This is a 5 per cent gain since Saturday. More than two-thirds of $150,000 necessary stock has been sold.

Officials of Franklin National Bank, another component in this combine, still are awaiting the Treasury Department's decision as to what percentage of deposits may be made available on the bank's reopening.

When this is determined, stockholders and depositors will be circularized for agreements and solicited for $200,000 necessary stock. The unrestricted Washington Mechanics Savings Bank also will sell $50,000 stock to complete the consolidation.

Wholesale Prices Go Upward Again

Statistical Bureau Reports for December Period.

Wholesale commodity prices resumed an upward movement during the second week of December, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

The bureau's index showed a fractional rise of two tenths of 1 per cent over the preceding week, and a gain of 12½ per cent over the corresponding period a year ago. The rise in prices was attributed to a general strengthening of market quotations.

General gain in market prices of clothing, raw silk and rayon was noted. The general index was within eight-tenths of 1 per cent of the highest mark etsablished this year. It was 11.3 per cent above the index for March 4, 1933.

Proposal to Fix Wheat Prices Hit

World Parley Disagrees With Plan.

London, Dec. 13 (AP).—The International Wheat Marketing Committee found many undesirable features today in a Franco-German formula calling on exporters to fix prices on outgoing wheat and wheat flour.

American and Canadian quarters indicated that they feel exporters are passing the buck by fighting shy of artificial price-fixing, on the grounds they believe their governments will not accept or enforce such agreements.

Representatives of exporting nations were said to prefer that wheat importers take steps to increase consumption, so as to gain the desired price boost for grain.

Boy, 12, Testifies Of Death Threat

State Ends Case Against Carolina Mountaineer.

Waynesville, N. C., Dec. 13 (AP).—A 12-year-old red-headed mountain boy, produced as a surprise witness, brought the State's case against three mountaineers charged with the murder of Thomas Price to a dramatic close today.

The witness, Robert Buchanan, said he heard Dewey Potter, one of the defendants, threaten to kill the 62-year-old retired Union Pacific Railway executive a few minutes before Price was shot from his horse on a lonely mountain trail the afternoon of September 24.

"I am going out to kill every one of them," the youthful witness quoted Dewey Potter as saying a few minutes after Wayne Potter, his 14-year-old son, told him Price had just ridden by a mountain pass with his horseback party.

Judge Meldrim Of Georgia Dies

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 13 (AP).—Judge Peter W. Meldrim died here today after a brief illness. He was 85.

Judge Meldrim was a Confederate veteran, a former president of the American Bar Association, a State legislator, and a former mayor of his home city.

As chairman of the Georgia delegation to the National Democratic Convention at Denver in 1908, he saw William Jennings Bryan nominated for President.

Flaw in Parole Rule Is Sought To Relieve Jail

Appeal Urged in Decision Requiring All Eligible Prisoners Here.

To avoid the possibility that 300 convicts will be brought from Government prisons to Washington, Sanford Bates, superintendent of United States penal institutions, yesterday declared a decision of Federal Judge Marvin Underwood, Atlanta, should be appealed.

Judge Underwood ruled Tuesday the District parole law is retroactive. This decision means prisoners sentenced from the District and who have become eligible for parole from having served one-fifth of their sentences must be returned to the District to make application for parole.

The decision was made in the cases of George Davis and Parker H. Lee, colored, both convicted of murder here several years ago. The judge ruled Davis and Lee must be returned to Washington to apply for paroles under the statute.

Jails Already Crowded.

It was pointed out that the District Jail and the reformatory at Lorton, Va., already are overcrowded.

"The decision should be appealed, for I am inclined to believe it is in error," Mr. Bates said last night. "Both Davis and Lee were sentenced long before a Parole Board was created in the District."

Under the judge's decision, all Federal prisoners would be returned to the District as soon as they became eligible for paroles, to remain either until paroled or parole denied.

Meanwhile, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of District penal institutions, and Isaac Gans, chairman of the Parole Board, studied the decision.

See Flaw in Decision.

According to Capt. Barnard, the decision of the Atlanta jurist fails to take into consideration the District law, enacted about a year ago, first creating the Parole Board.

"Prisoners who were sentenced here before the Parole Board came into existence certainly would not come under any such ruling," observed Capt. Barnard yesterday.

"Such a ruling would apply only to those prisoners convicted within the last year or so," added Capt. Barnard.

Lewis Carroll Fantasy Opens For Xmas Run

Portrayed by Great Cast; Revelry in Rome; Theater Chat.

By a special booking arrangement, Warner Bros. Metropolitan Theater announces the showing of the most widely heralded picture of the year, "Alice in Wonderland," for the holiday week starting Saturday, December 23. Contracts for this extraordinary picture have just been signed by John J. Payette, zone manager of the Washington territory for Warner Bros.

After living for generations in story book land, all the strange unusual people that roam the pages of Lewis Carroll's beloved fantasy, "Alice in Wonderland," are said to have come to life on the screen, in Paramount's picturization of the famous story.

Sweet, remarkably intelligent "Alice," the Cheshire Cat, the Garden Frog, the White Knight, Humpty Dumpty, King of Hearts, the Mock Turtle, the Mad Hatter, Tweedledee and Tweedledum, the March Hare and all the other funny people the in the film—played by such Hollywood stars as Richard Arlen, Roscoe Ates, Gary Cooper, Leon Errol, Louise Fazenda, W. C. Fields, "Skeets" Gallagher, Cary Grant, Raymond Hatton, Baby LeRoy, Mae Marsh, Polly Moran, Edward Everett Horton, Roscoe Karns, Jack Oakie, Edna May Oliver, May Robson, Charlie Ruggles, Alison Skipworth, Ned Sparks and Ford Sterling. Charlotte Henry a recent Washington visitor, plays the title role.

Naturally, the story of the picture is to all intents and purposes identical with Carroll's immortal yarn. Practically all of the scenes in the books are reproduced faithfully in the film.

In selecting this attraction for the holiday week, Mr. Payette had in mind the unusual appeal of the picture to the entire family.

Lenore Ulric is reported from Hollywood to be planning a rigid diet to take off 10 pounds of superfluous weight before beginning her next picture. She wishes to reduce to her normal 102 pounds and is confident she can do so by omitting lunch and reducing the quantity of other meals. And maybe not dining and wining the dramatic editors quite so much?

That Roman Orgy.

When "Roman Scandals" is formally released for public exhibition, Washington will view a late model musical extravaganza that goes in for spectacular effect in the grand manner and makes up in dazzling splendor what it occasionally lacks in fresh and devastating humor.

The considerable audience of exhibitors assembled from the four corners of the Washington territory—along with a fair scattering of show folks from the other theaters and a generous sprinkling of the ubiquitous press—that looked in on the picture at the Tuesday midnight trade preview in Loew's Fox greeted it with seemingly spontaneous enthusiasm and, after the screening was over, chortled no end upon its many superiorities as an example of inspired burlesque.

There were moments when this gay and comparatively thoughtless appraisal seemed to be wholly justified. Then, again, there were times when it did not.

Mr. Cantor, it is reluctantly reported, resorts to a few hoary comedy tricks that are flagrantly beneath his high rating as a comedian of the first flight. In many of its structural qualities, too, "Roman Scandals" reverts to an older order—the "chariot race" finale, for example, which, in the final analysis, is merely a sensational elaboration of the old Mack Sennett idea of the "chase" as the only logical conclusion of a picture purporting to be a comedy.

Georgeous Musical Numbers.

However, these are, in the large view, minor faults when compared with the grandiose scenes and pompous situations in which the picture abounds. Seldom, outside of "Footlight Parade," have musical numbers been staged with such opulence, and certainly never have more ravishingly beautiful young women been put on display than in the slave market scenes of this glittering pageant of pulchritude.

These purely spectacular intervals of the play depict a grandeur that was probably only the Rome of some proud emperor's lively imagination and ardent hope. If Rome ever was really like that, the history books failed to record it!

Unfortunately, some of the bizarre effects revealed during the musical interruptions of the picture's serio-comic narrative have already reached the screen prematurely. One suspects that in the "Keep Young and Beautiful" number—or whatever it is called—the steam-bath illusions were supposed to be exclusively divulged in this ornate Goldwyn vehicle for the popeyed purposes of Master Eddie Cantor. They reached the screen a little ahead of time, however, in "Meet the Baron."

Will Pack 'Em In.

Nevertheless, "Roman Scandals" seemes destined to attract huge audiences and play to wild enthusiasm. It is that kind of picture, pitched in a high key, romped through at a speedy tempo and just risque enough, now and again, to pique the interest of the seeker after the thrill of vicarious adventure among the orchids.

If Gloria Stuart, Ruth Etting and Verree Teasdale, in their theoretically flowing robes, do not prove to be sufficiently eye-filling, the young ladies chained to the Century of Progress Building, that somehow got into the slave mart of ancient Rome, assuredly will!

Mr. Goldwyn and his associates evidently are of the firm conviction that the American public has no imagination and never heard of physiology!

"Ned McCobb's Daughter."

Three acts of tense realism, lightened by the dry humor of Maine folk, up Kennebec River way, will be presented in "Ned McCobb's Daughter," which the Drama Guild of Washington will offer tomorrow and Saturday nights at 8:40 o'clock in Wardman Park Theater.

Presented in this city by permission of the Theater Guild of New York, this drama by Sidney Howard is an interesting study of New England character, notably in the leading figure of the story, Carrie Callahan, nee McCobb, who stands like a lighthouse with a revolving light, above a sea of moral corruption," and who outwits an unscrupulous bootlegger, without losing her integrity of character. This unscrupulous bootlegger, Babe Callahan, will be played by Harold Weinberger, and Carrie Callahan, the gallant daughter of old Ned McCobb, erstwhile sea captain, by Caroline McKinley.

The supporting cast includes many familiar names in the Drama Gulid producing group, among them being Maurice Jarvis, as Capt. Ned McCobb; Marvin Beers, as George Callahan; Martin Scranage, as Nat Glidden; James Otis Porter, as Lawyer Grover; Anton Hardt, as Ben McCobb; Howard Frederick, as the First Federal Man; John Lammey Stewart, as the Second Federal Man, and Wilma Wright Flood, as Jenny.

With the Washington Bryn Mawr Society sponsoring the opening performance on any stage of "The Lake," the new play starring Katharine Hepburn, supported by Frances Starr and Blanche Bates, Manager Stephen E. Cochran forecasts a complete sell-out for the première at the National Theater Monday night. Not only will the Monday night audience be one of the largest of the season, according to all present indications, but it also will be the most distinguished and most fashionable. Late word from New York is to the effect that Roberta Beatty has withdrawn from the cast of "Roberta" to take over a leading role in the new Jed Harris production. Worthington Miner also has withdrawn from the direction of "The Lake," which is now being staged personally by Mr. Harris.

Comedy!

If you only could have seen yourself when you slipped and fell on that icy pavement last night! My dear, you've no idea!

Fox Pastiming Unusual Value

George White's "Scandals," for the first time at popular prices, on the stage, and John Boles and Lilian Harvey in "My Lips Betray," as the screen attraction, comprise the entertainment that Loew's Fox Theater presents tomorrow.

George White personally presents this latest, and what is called his best edition of the "Scandals," with a wealth of luminaries, scenic beauty, comedy, catchy songs and the famous George White beauty chorus.

Shaw and Lee, jesters of eminence, are the principal comedy stars, in a cast that includes the Loomis Sisters, Lucille Page, Ross McLean, Gloria Mossman, James Howard, Herman Rose and others. Lew Brown and Ray Henderson wrote the music and lyrics.

Lilian Harvey makes her second American screen appearance in "My Lips Betray," in which she is co-starred with John Boles. It is an audacious, romantic comedy of a girl who rides in a king's car and is suspected of being his favorite—a false assumption that soon becomes true enough. It is an intrigue of love with a continental flavor, set spicily to music. El Brendel, Herman Bing and Irene Brown are leading artists in support.

In Revival of His Best Film

Starting tomorrow, Warner Bros. Metropolitan Theater will present George Arliss in "Disraeli," generally acclaimed one of the greatest pictures the noted English star has ever made, and one of the finest pictures to come out of Hollywood.

During the past three years, Warner Bros., who produced this opus, have had so many requests for "Disraeli" from fans and theater owners, that they decided to reissue the picture nationally.

Originally produced and released in the fall of 1929, "Disraeli" proved the sensation, not only of America, but of all Europe. Everywhere fans flocked to see the talented Arliss in his portrayal of Benjamin Disraeli, the Jewish Prime Minister whose sagacity and courage played such an important part in England's destiny, especially in the purchasing of the Suez Canal.

So impressive was "Disraeli" that the picture won every award of the year made annually by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. To Arliss was awarded the medal for the best performance of the year. To Warner Bros. was awarded the medal for the best picture of the year. To Alfred E. Green, the director, was awarded the medal for the best directorial work of the year.

Perennial Hit A Fourth Week

RKO-Keith's is to continue Katharine Hepburn in Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women" for still another week, the fourth for the picture at the Fifteenth street house.

This further extension in playing time for "Little Women" constitutes another record creditable to this picture, which has already broken every attendance record, both weekday and Sunday.

Not only has Katharine Hepburn scored a most emphatic hit as Jo, but like approval has been accorded the performance of Joan Bennett, as Amy; Frances Dee, as Meg; Jean Parker, as Beth; Henry Stephenson, as Mr. Laurence; Douglass Montgomery, as Larry, and Edna May Oliver, as Aunt March.

The Walt Disney "silly symphony" in color, "Three Little Pigs," also is being continued. Pathe News constitutes the only other supplementary attraction.

The engagement of "Little Women" is now set to end Thursday night, December 21, when Frank Borzage's "Man's Castle," featuring Spencer Tracy and Loretta Young, will follow on the Keith screen.

Romantic Yarn With Ace Cast

Richard Arlen and Judith Allen, the film colony's champion newcomer, are co-starred in "Hell and High Water," a romantic drama of the waterfront, that comes tomorrow to Loew's Columbia Theater.

Written by Max Miller, author of "I Cover The Water Front," "Hell and High Water" tells the dramatic story of Cap'n Jericho, a cock-sure commander of a one-man navy, and Sally Drigg, an orphan whose waterfront existence has taught her to hate all men. Jericho, too, feels the same way about the opposite sex. The two are thrown together.

They hate the sight of each other and, after a series of humorous and absorbing quarrels and fights, eventually fall in love.

William Slaven McNutt and Grover Jones, noted writing team, produced and directed this picture for Paramount.

A newsreel and selected short subjects are added.

Tale of Youth On Earle Bill

Warner Bros. Earle Theater, for the holiday week starting tomorrow, will bring to the screen "Chance at Heaven," a radio picture, from a story by Vina Delmar.

Human, believable, down-to-earth romance, with sparkling humor and heart-tugging drama, is "Chance at Heaven," a filmization of Vina Delmar's popular magazine story, which presents Joel McCrea, Ginger Rogers and Marian Nixon in the leading roles.

Based on the love problems and search for happiness of three young people, "Chance at Heaven" will appeal especially to the heart of youth. It understands a boy's ambition to escape his monotonous rut; sympathizes with him when his romance with a social butterfly goes awry, and feels a glow of satisfaction when he eventually finds true love with the sweet and wholesome girl he has known all his life.

In addition to the three principals, the cast includes Andy Devine, Lucien Littlefield, Virginia Hammond, George Meeker and Ann Shoemaker.

The stage portion of the holiday bill is headed by James Melton, popular N. B. C. radio tenor in his first Washington appearance. He will offer a group of songs to delight every member of the family. Other acts are Jane and Katherine Lee, the darlings of stage and screen; Don Ruiz and Bonita, the South American dancers, the five Jansleys and Audrey Sieber, mistress of ceremonies.

Bancroft Back At Old Tricks

George Bancroft makes his return to the screen in another virile role for which he is famed, in "Blood Money," a drama of the underworld, which opens tomorrow at Loew's Palace Theater.

"Blood Money" is Bancroft's first picture for Twentieth Century, the new producing organization releasing its pictures through United Artists. Rowland Brown, also its director, wrote this story especially for Bancroft, who has been absent from the screen for a year.

The story is an action-packed, thrilling drama of Bill Baily, the bail-bond king, who wields a ruthless power in politics and over the underworld. He is a power who names his own mayors, councilmen and city officials. But when this crooked Colossus crosses off the woman who started him on the road to success he learns how weak his "power" really is.

A Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Giantland," showing Mickey in another of this series of popular short subjects; "Dirty Work," with Yaurel and Hardy, a travelogue and news events complete the Palace screen offerings.

Stellar Radio Duo Appear on Rialto Screen

The radio stars that millions listen to every week are in pictures and their first film, a gay, melodic mixture of comedy, tunes and romance, is coming to the Rialto Theater Saturday.

"Myrt and Marge" is the title of the screen production in which Myrt and Marge, the creators of what is conceded to be the most popular dramatic program on radio, star. The story of the film has been written by Beatrice Banyard, in private life, Mrs. Willard Mack, wife of the eminent actor. Al Boasberg wrote the dialogue and directed the production.

The supporting cast includes Eddie Foy, jr., Ted Healy, Ray Hedge, Grace Hayes and Trixie Friganza.

Since November, 1931, when Myrt and Marge went over the Columbia Broadcasting System for the first time, they have risen to the very peak of radio successes.

Parents Win Fight to Heat Grant School

Engineer Will Start Stoking Furnace Early in the Morning.

Pupils and teachers at Grant School who have shivered through many wintry days because of inadequate heat, were promised a new deal yesterday in the form of additional radiators and an engineer who will begin stoking the furnace at 5 a. m.

A threatened withdrawal of students by parents yesterday was called off when newly-installed thermometers registered temperatures of 68 and 70 degrees. This unprecedented warmth in the school was made possible by an onslaught on the furnace at 5 a. m. by two mothers, three engineers and the school janitor.

To Start Work Earlier.

This corps of stokers will not be necessary in the future, said Jere J. Crane, business manager of District schools. The engineer assigned to the building will have to start working earlier, he explained, in order that the building may be properly heated by the time pupils arrive. Additional radiators will be placed in classrooms during the Christmas holidays, Mr. Crane announced.

Although satisfactory heat was registered by thermometers yesterday, parents continued to express dissatisfaction with general conditions. They complained that the thermometers were placed 5 feet from the floor on the same walls with radiators. They insist that the instruments be placed at the rear of classrooms nearer the floor, because children continued to complain yesterday of cold hands and feet.

Mrs. Ruth W. Hoover, one of the leaders of the militant parents, said that a check-up of conditions at the school will be continued daily. Whenever the temperature falls below 64 degrees children will be ordered home, she said.

This is permissible under a rule of the Board of Education, which prohibits children from occupying a classroom whose temperature is below 64 degrees. Despite this ruling, Mrs. Hoover said, children at the school have been kept in classrooms with a temperature "far below 64 degrees."

Windows Kept Closed.

In order that the classrooms could be properly heated yesterday, windows had to be kept closed, blocking ventilation, Mrs. Hoover said. The classrooms were stuffy, she reported. To rectify this, parents will ask for a proper ventilating system.

Upon receipt of a letter from the West End Citizens Association yesterday calling attention to conditions at the school, Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, communicated with Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, eliciting the promise from the latter that "school officials would do all in their power to make things comfortable for pupils and teachers."

"The pupils and teachers certainly haven't had things made comfortable for them in the past," Mrs. Hoover observed, upon being informed of this.

"I have seen teachers in classrooms wearing lumber jackets and overcoats, afraid to complain. I saw a 12-year-old girl trying to find a word in a dictionary, her hands trembling so that she could barely turn the pages. Children who could afford it wore two pairs of stockings and other additional clothing. Colds among the children have been frequent. I have good reason to know because I am manager of an apartment house in which live 50 children who attend the Grant School.

"There is no reason why children in the Capital should be expected to study under such conditions. We have tried to have conditions remedied without publicity, but it has been impossible. Let us hope that now we will receive proper attention."

Protests on Apex Building Probed

President Asks Fine Arts Body to Open Inquiry.

An investigation by the Fine Arts Commission of protests which have been made against construction of the Apex Building has been requested by President Roosevelt, it was learned yesterday. The action followed closely upon renewed agitation by the Federal Trade Commission to have the structure started soon. The Apex Building would be erected at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue, at the easternmost tip of the Federal Triangle.

Criticism is based on a claim that the building would lessen the attractiveness of the Archives Building, being erected across the way. The Fine Arts, as well as the Federal Trade and National Park and Planning commissions, are scheduled to be housed in the Apex Building.

Chairman Charles Moore, of the Fine Arts group, said plans for the edifice harmonize with those of others in the triangle, and that he saw no conflict.

Turn on the heat! This was the cry of parents of children at Grant School yesterday as they began a fight for more warmth in the ancient building. Collins Defends NRA Dismissal Of 50 Workers

The ordered dismissal of 50 employes from the NRA duplicating division, in spite of the fact the entire personnel had to work a 13-hour day Tuesday, was defended yesterday by Linton Collins, personnel director.

He did not know of the overtime which other officials said resulted from some one's failure to read orders and the subsequent printing of thousands of unordered documents.

The work of the duplicating division has been so reduced, Collins said, that it was no longer necessary to have 137 employes there. There was no alternative except to reduce the personnel by 50.

"They have not yet left, and I am sure that by the time they are to go we shall have found jobs for them, either in other NRA branches or in other Governmental offices," Collins said. "We have throughout the NRA civil service employes who were let out of their old jobs by the economy act. In the 50 are some of these—people who were given jobs which they knew to be temporary.

"We have had to let out employes in the past and so far we have succeeded in placing every one of them elsewhere. Needless to say, we strictly have followed the policy of allowing personal records and the need for a job to govern dismissals."

Many of those to be dispensed with are from the Commerce Department.

Japanese Fishing Ship Blows Up Off U.S. Coast

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 13 (AP).—The Oakland Tribune said today the ship which exploded and burned off Point Pinos, 85 miles south of San Francisco last night, was the Japanese fishing boat Utah.

The paper added that captain and crew escaped by taking to a motor tender just before the blast, making their way to Monterey today.

5 Judges Called For Duke Trial

Two Senators Also Ordered by the Defense in Disbarment.

Two United States senators and the five members of the District Court of Appeals bench are included in a list of 34 persons summoned yesterday by Attorney Jesse C. Duke as defense witnesses in his disbarment trial scheduled for Monday.

Duke will face charges of improper conduct for having made accusations against United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Justice F. D. Letts, District Supreme Court. He charged them with having sent up to the District Court of Appeals "a diluted, deleted, inaccurate, incomplete and false" bill of exceptions in a criminal case.

Duke also charged Mr. Rover and Justice Letts with "intentionally and deliberately" obstructing justice and falsifying records in the same case, which involved five members of a rum ring here.

These accusations constitute the basis for charges of misconduct. The grievance committee of the Bar Association, in calling the attention of the District Supreme Court to Duke's allegations, asked he be either suspended or "be removed from his office as a member of the bar."

District CWA Jobs Will Pay Union Wages

Protest Filed by Labor Group Brings Raise to PWA Scale.

Payment of the union wage scale to workers on District CWA projects was promised by Commissioner George E. Allen yesterday to a committee representing organized labor.

Protest that District officials in charge of CWA projects were holding down wages in violation of Federal CWA rule was lodged with Commissioner Allen. The Commissioner promised to seek an immediate ruling from Federal authorities in control of the projects and funds, and decision of the Federal authorities was given at another conference in the afternoon. The decision was expressed in the following telegram addressed to Commissioner Allen from John M. Carmody, chief engineer of the Federal CWA:

CWA Rules Cited.

"Rule No. 6, CWA rules and regulations, was intended enable administrators to meet wage scale situations where recognized agreements or understandings were in effect as of April 30, 1933, calling for rates higher than CWA minimums. This rule and other rules covering wage scales were lifted by CWA directly from PWA rules and regulations. It is our understanding that where contracts exist within the District covering works carried on under PWA, CWA is required to meet this scale."

"We are pleased with the decision and the courtesy and promptness of the decision by Commissioner Allen, John Locher, secretary of the Building Trades Council, said after the meeting with the Commissioner. "This ruling means that the union wage scale shall prevail on C. W. A. projects for skilled and semskilled workers."

Although the ruling did not prescribe union wages, but P. W. A. wages, the union representatives said they were satisfied, because the P. W. A. wage scales already had been set at union levels for the District.

Total Unaffected.

Adoption of the union scale will not make any material difference in the total of the C. W. A. pay roll, it was said. Commissioner Allen estimated that not more than 3 per cent of the total on C. W. A. rolls would be affected and the total money involved would not be much.

Those of the union committee who conferred with the Commissioner included F. M. Biggs, president of the Building Trades Council and Rodmen; Mr. Locher, Larry Kelly, president of the Building Laborers; Charles Scott, business representative of the metal lathers; John Fitzgerald, business representative of the plumbers; Arthur Schoenthal, business representative of the stone cutters; James McCracken, hoisting engineers; J. R. Pumphrey, bricklayers; Thomas A. Lane, international representative of the bricklayers, and C. F. Preller, representing the electrical workers.

Mines Bureau, District Nomad, Strikes Tents and Moves Again

Relief Offices Force It Out of Interior to New Quarters.

The Bureau of Mines, that floating unit in the Commerce Department, is on the move again.

Squeezed out of the Interior Building by the mushroom growth of emergency agencies, half the bureau was moved Tuesday night to the Washington Loan & Trust Building, at Ninth and F streets. The remainder was transferred last night to the McGill Building, around the corner, at 908 G street.

From his sick bed, Secretary Ickes expressed regret at the necessity of moving various offices from the Interior Building in order to give the space to recovery organizations.

He felt, however, that bureaus operating as separate entities could function away from headquarters better than the relief bodies with which he must keep in constant contact.

The Bureau of Mines moved into the Interior Building only last July, forced out of the Commerce Building by NRA. A few offices, however, remained until October, when they were shunted into the third floor of the Navy Building.

The bureau has been housed in the Commerce Building since its completion, prior to which it occupied the Winder Building for five years. Before that it was in the Interior Building, having been moved from there when it was transferred from the Interior to the Commerce Department.

From Interior to Winder to Commerce to Interior and Navy to Washington Loan & Trust and McGill—that is the bureau's moving record since Coolidge's administration.

Secretary Ickes also announced yesterday he has approved new quarters for the Army's chief of staff. They will be in the Barr Building, 910 Seventeenth street, from today on. Moving from the Walker-Johnson Building, 1734 New York avenue, started last night to place 26,000 square feet of floor space at the disposal of the Federal Relief Administration and Civil Works Administration.

Girls Testify at Trial Of 3 Under Mann Act

Trial of there men on charges of conspiring to violate the Mann act ended its second day yesterday with numerous girls taking the stand in District Supreme Court as Government witnesses.

Judge Claims Traffic Force Is Inefficient

McMahon Urges Hazen to Change Practices of Police Bureau.

Collateral Plan Change Favored; Conference to Be Held.

Sharp curtailment of authority and revision of the Police Traffic Bureau procedure may result from a conference yesterday between Judge John P. McMahon, of Police Court, and Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

Criticism of the Traffic Bureau operation under the present system was voiced by Judge McMahon. Commissioner Hazen said he agreed with some of the criticism.

Present rules requiring persons arrested for traffic violation to go to the Traffic Bureau on Indiana avenue to post collateral were criticized by Judge McMahon as unreasonable.

"I quite agree with the judge on that point," Commissioner Hazen said.

Sees Need of Change.

"We should work out some system whereby a man arrested on Good Hope road would not be required to go to the Traffic Bureau to post collateral for an overtime parking ticket."

The Commissioner, however, said he wanted to withhold final judgment pending discussion with Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, head of the Traffic Bureau before he was promoted.

Judge McMahon, who sought the interview, presented figures intended to back up his statement that the mounted force of the Traffic Bureau was not functioning efficiently.

He presented a typewritten report in which he cited 388 arrests for driving while drunk during the 13 months from September 1932 to October 1933. Most, if not all of these cases, Judge McMahon said, were made by ordinary patrolmen, or other policemen in responding to calls from citizens.

Collision Cases Cited.

Most of 283 cases cited by the judge involving leaving after colliding were made on warrants subsequently sworn out by citizens or as a result of pursuit by citizens until they chanced on a policeman, it was said.

Judge McMahon urged that policemen should prepare better the cases they presented in court.

Under the present system, the judge told the Commissioner, mounted police attached to the Traffic Bureau are not sufficiently supervised to insure the greatest efficiency. The judge proposed the men should be made responsible to precinct commanders, Commissioner Hazen said.

Pastors Condemn Lynch Law Rule

Baptist Clerics Back Stand of Roosevelt, Ritchie.

Mob violence and lynch law were condemned, Gov. Rolph of California was scored, and President Roosevelt, Gov. Ritchie of Maryland and Gov. Murray of Oklahoma were praised for their law and order stands in resolutions adopted by a conference of Baptist ministers of Washington and vicinity, held yesterday in Vermont Avenue Baptist Church.

The Rev. Robert Anderson was president of the conference and the Rev. Joseph W. W. Henderson served as secretary.

The resolutions were drafted by the Rev. S. G. Lampkin, the Rev. George C. Bullock, the Rev. John Paul Nichols, the Rev. M. A. Hunter and the Rev. M. M. Newsome.

Coyote, No Less, Roams D. C.—Just a Lost Pet

If you heard a strange cry that blended with the wintry atmosphere last night, it may have been a lost coyote.

Horace J. Pattie, of 4130 Seventh street northwest, reported to police last night that a pet coyote, brown, had strayed from home. The Patties have had the animal for 12 years.

Good morning! When Washington men are asked what they were given for Christmas, they like to answer by telling where the gift was bought as well as what the gift is. Those who give Meyers gifts are sure to satisfy particularly this natural feeling. Meyers gifts for years have been given to every section of our land through military and civilian routes.

13th Street To Be One-Way 3 Hours Daily

New Signal Lights Added in Program to Speed City Traffic.

Four new sets of traffic signal lights in downtown Washington and conversion of Thirteenth street northwest, between Spring road and Massachusetts avenue northwest, as a one-way thoroughfare during morning and evening rush hours, were announced by the District Traffic Advisory Council yesterday.

The lights, which were in operation for the first time last night, are at Fifteenth and E streets northwest, East Executive and Pennsylvania avenues, West Executive and Pennsylvania avenues, and Seventeenth street and Pennsylvatnia avenue northwest. They bring the number of street intersections controlled by traffic signals to 261. Four circles also have such regulation. The total of individual traffic light signals in the District is now 1,056, the council said.

The Thirteenth street traffic artery will be in operation some time next week, William A. Van Duzer, traffic director, said. Work on the new signs, which will mark every corner of the mile and a quarter stretch, are being painted. They will have black letters against a yellow background.

Between 8 and 9:30 a. m. Thirteenth street will be a one-way highway for southbound traffic, and between 4:30 and 6 p. m. northbound traffic.

The changes are the outgrowth of a movement launched several weeks ago to speed up traffic.

The Thirteenth street one-way stretch covers 27 blocks. Four signs are to be installed on each corner.

Lemaitre Delivers Lecture Tonight

Scientist - Priest to Talk at Catholic University.

Abbe Georges Lemaitre, Belgian scientist-priest, will give a public lecture tonight in McMahon Hall of Catholic University on his theory of the expanding universe, which has gained wide attention.

It will be the first of a series of three lectures. The noted scientist is a visiting professor at Catholic University, and when his lectures are completed, he will return to his laboratories in the University of Louvain.

2 Men Accused Of Selling U. S. Jobs Indicted

Pair Charged With Taking Money on Promises to Obtain Posts.

Two men charged with accepting money in return for promises to obtain Government appointments were indicted yesterday by the District grand jury. They were indicted under an act of Congress prohibiting purchase and sale of public office.

Sevilla is alleged to have represented himself as chairman of the Latin-American Division of the Democratic National committee. There is no such division.

Previous to the arrest of the two men in New York City, Department of Justice agents said they found them writing letters to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in behalf of job applicants.

Four men in Brooklyn, N. Y., are said to have paid various sums of money to Sevilla on his promise to obtain them Government jobs. Initial fees are said to have ranged from $60 to $70, with an understanding that Sevilla was to receive $500 if the applicant landed a job. Sevilla is said to have promised positions with NRA and the Public Works Administration, as well as with the R. F. C.

Agents of the Justice Department learned, they said, that Sevilla had told job seekers that part of the money was to be used to entertain Senators.

Negroes Held for Breaking Window.

Louis Kimble and Samuel Lumpkins, both colored, of 612 N street northwest, were arrested by police of the Second Precinct yesterday, after they were said to have broken the window of a confectionary store at 1251 Seventh street northwest.

Local Option Here Limited By Rum Plan

Dry Majority of Realty Owners in Areas May Bar Sale.

Wets Must Get Special Sanction, in Control Method Mapped.

District liquor control rules tentatively approved by the Commissioners yesterday provide that drys will be able to stop sale of liquor in neighborhoods where they own 51 per cent of the real estate, but wets will not be able to assure its sale in neighborhoods where they own most of the property.

Under the proposal, the Commissioners agreed to recommend to Congress when ever owners of 51 per cent of the real estate in a given area record themselves against sale of liquor in their territory, that sale be forbidden.

Whether liquor would be sold in areas where owners of even a larger percentage of real estate wanted it sold, however, would be left to the discretion of the Commissioners. Despite protests, sponsors of this plan insisted they will not give to the wets the same binding power they proposed to give to the drys.

The Commissioners also agreed that the basis of determination of the sentiment of a neighborhood shall be real estate ownership. This was a shift from previous declarations. Commissioner George E. Allen first said he would insist that the sentiment of a neighborhood should be determined by the persons actually residing in it, but has abandoned that stand. Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen also favors control on the basis of ownership.

Each Neighborhood Small.

Under the present scheme, "neighborhoods" will be fixed by an imaginary circle drawn around the location for which a license is sought. Radius of the circle has not been finally determined. From 750 to 1,000 feet is under consideration.

All property in commercial zones will be considered as in favor of licensing sales.

There is a general downtown area in which the Commissioners will issue licenses quickly. The Commissioners will be authorized to vote District and Federal property for or against in computing sentiment of real estate owners in any given areas.

The Commissioners are debating whether they should write into their bill provisions prescribing sale of liquor within a certain distance of some Government establishments, such as Soldier's Home, St. Elizabeth's Hospital and Naval Hospital.

Narrow Zones Possible.

Preliminary rumblings from some members of the House and Senate have indicated a drive will be made in Congress to follow the Anti-saloon League injunction and reimpose about such establishments the dry zones which were prescribed before prohibition. If the Commissioners adopt such a suggestion, which they are considering doing, it was said they will make the zones much narrower. The mile limit about Soldiers' Home, for instance, will be materially cut down. The Georgia Avenue Business Mens' Association protested against such a limitation at the recent public hearings held by the Commissioners.

The number of feet a liquor selling place must be distant from a school, church or other place of worship has not been decided, but there will be limits fixed in the bill. Suggestions have ranged from 200 to 600 feet. These restrictions will be in addition to the neighborhood restrictions.

Drafting of the bill is going forward daily, and it will be completed early next week.

Christmas is coming, but don't let that worry you. The suggestions under "Holiday Hints" in the Classified Columns of The Post will help you make it a merry one!

Nats Swap Goslin to Tigers for Stone in First Step to Bolster Club

From the Nats to the Tigers

Managers in Huddle at Chicago Trading Session

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (Spl.).—The Wild Goose of the Potomac is on the wing again. Goose Goslin, perennial punch of the Nats' batting order, today was consigned to the Detroit Tigers in a straight player swap for Outfielder Jonathan Stone—the lone move thus far by Manager Joe Cronin to prop his Washington team for the 1934 campaign.

First glance at the deal reveals that Washington parts with a 32-year-old slugging outfielder with a life-time batting average of .323 for a 27-year-old outfielder, who in five years in the big leagues has compiled an average of .303, also swinging as a southpaw.

Pilot Cronin Elated.

Manager Cronin tonight was elated at the deal, issuing the following statement: "In acquiring Stone I think I have materially strengthened the offense as well as the defense. Stone's ability to drive in runs and his youth made him attractive to me. I was sorry to part with Goslin and wish him the best of luck with the Tigers."

Thus Goslin leaves the Nats for the second time, after a one-year stay following his repurchase from the Browns last winter in the deal that sent Sammy West, Carl Reynolds and Lloyd Brown to St. Louis. Walter Stewart and Fred Schulte accompanied Goslin to the Nats in the same trade.

Goslin had served ten consecutive years with Washington before going to St. Louis in June, 1930, in the trade that brought Heinie Manush and Alvin Crowder to the Nats.

Stone Faster Afoot.

Stone, faster on the bases and in the outfield, with a throwing arm nearly as powerful and accurate as Goslin, was only a .280 hitter last season, trailing Goslin by 17 points in the averages, despite the fact that 1933 was one of Goslin's poorest years in the big leagues.

The trading of Goslin by the Washington club long was foreseen. Friction between the Goose and Manager Joe Cronin was the lone untoward incident of the latter's first year at the helm of the club. At one point during the season when Goslin was in a persistent batting slump, Cronin replaced him with Dave Harris against left-handed pitching and Goslin was chafing openly.

A severe leg injury suffered at Chicago in midseason hampered Goslin's fielding and base running for several months and he had not fully recovered for the world series in which he made five hits in 20 times at bat for a .250 average.

Stone came to Detroit from the Tigers' Toronto farm in 1929 and in his first full season batted .313. He reached his peak in the majors in 1931, when he compiled a grand average of .327 and was recognized as one of the prize outfielders in the circuit. He slumped to .297 in 1932 and last year encountered his worst season, when he batted only .280.

Jolley, Hebert, Levey Swapped by Browns for Coast Star.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (AP).—Baseball's trade winds, unleashed yesterday with history-making fury as Connie Mack broke up his once unbeatable Athletics combination, blew more noted stars helter-skelter today.

Leon "Goose" Goslin, out field star of the championship Washington Nationals, was swapped outright for Jonathan Stone, rising out fielder of the Detroit Tigers.

Browns Acquire Strange.

As soon as Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Browns, considered one of the keenest David Harums in baseball, completed the deal, he sent Jolley, Pitcher Wallace Herbert and Shortstop Jim Levey to Hollywood, of the Pacific Coast League, in a straight deal for Allen Strange, regarded as one of the prize shortstop prospects in the game.

Roger Peckinpaugh, former manager of the Cleveland Indians, was signed as manager of the Kansas City Club of the American Association and the Red Sox—they're getting in almost every deal and stirring up most of the activity—announced they had signed a working agreement with Kansas City as a first step toward etsablishment of a farm system.

Annual All-Star Game.

It also was agreed by the magnates today to make the all-stall major league game, inaugurated in Chicago last July, a permanent event. Under tentative arrangements, the all-star game of 1934 will be played at the Yankee Stadium, New York.

Although the Red Sox still were gunning for players tonight, they appeared all set for 1934 with a team that should offer plenty of competition. In the outfield, they had Allen (Dusty) Cooke, Roy Johnson and Carl Reynolds; in the infield, they had Bill Walters at third, Bill Cissell at shortstop, Max Bishop for second base, Rick Ferrell as backstop, Eddie Morgan, Dale Alexander or Bob Seeds for first base and a pitching staff strengthened by the acquisition of the famous "Lefty" Grove.

Reynolds Former Nat.

Reynolds had his best year with the White Sox, where he batted .359 in 1930. He was traded to Washington in 1932, batting .305 that year. With the Browns last season, he hit .286 in 135 games. He is 29 years old.

Andrews, a 6-foot 1-inch right-hander, pitched for the Yankees in 1931, winning two and losing none, and with the Yankees and Red Sox in 1932, winning 10 and losing 7. Last season, he won only 5 and dropped 13 with the last-place Red Sox.

Rumors of more deals fairly flew about the hotel lobby as the club owners, spurred on by Connie Mack's deals and the surprising Red Sox, went into countless huddles. The White Sox admitted they were ready to part with their prize shortstop, Luke Appling, but wanted plenty from the New York Yankees. One report was that Appling would go to the Yankees for Pitcher Charlie Ruffing, Infielder Lynn Lary, and Outfielder Sammy Byrd.

The St. Louis Browns also purchased Outfielder George Puccinello, formerly with the St. Louis Cardinals, from Rochester, of the International League, and Detroit sold Outfielder Billy Rhiel to Montreal, of the International League.

Kansas City Gets Dale Alexander

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—In keeping with a new working agreement with Kansas City of the American Association, the Boston Red Sox tonight announced they were sending four players, including First Baseman Dale Alexander, to the Blues.

With Alexander, American League batting champion in 1932, will go Pitcher Curtis Fullerton, Outfielder Harry Stumpf and Outfielder Mel Alameda.

Bought and Sold In Baseball Mart

St. Louis Browns—After completing the Red Sox deal, Manager Rogers Hornsby traded Outfielder Jolly, Shortstop Jim Levey and Wallace Hebert, southpaw pitcher, to the Hollywood Pacific Coast League club for Shortstop Allen Strange.

St. Louis Browns—Bought Outfielder George Puccinello, formerly with the Cardinals, from Rochester.

Detroit Tigers—Sold Outfielder Billy Rhiel to Montreal, of International League.

National Pilots For Livelier Baseball

Terry Only Manager Voting in Negative; Plan to Go to Club Owners.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (AP).—By a vote of 7 to 1, National League managers today voted to recommend the adoption of a livelier baseball to their club owners. The recommendation was regarded as a definite step to adopt a uniform ball for the two major leagues.

Bill Terry, manager of the world's championship New York Giants, cast the only negative vote. He was firm in his support of the sphere used in the National League last season, which was regarded slightly deader than the ball used in the American.

Considerable debate has centered around the difference between the two balls. Some say there is a big difference; others say it is negligible. Will Harridge, of the American League, said the cover of the National League ball was about "two hairs" thicker than the American League ball, had slightly raised seams, and one more stitch.

Meanwhile, American League Club owners did nothing about the ball, adopting a "watchful waiting" policy. They were convinced a uniform ball would be adopted and that it would be the American League ball, a livelier sphere with a cover .005 of an inch thinner and one stitch less.

"Sure, we're for the livelier ball, along the line of the American League's," said Manager Charlie Grim of the Cubs. "Anyway, there is no sense in having one ball for each league. There's a lot of difference, too, between the two balls."

Yankees Seek Appling, of White Sox

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (AP).—Figuring their championship chances increased through the break up of the Philadelphia Athletics, the New York Yankees today hustled around with renewed activity at the major league meeting and player mart.

Col. Jake Ruppert and Manager Joe McCarthy held a conference with the White Sox, and while nothing was announced officially, it was known they were attempting to make a deal by which Luke Appling, star young White Sox shortstop, would go to New York. Vice President Harry Grabiner admitted that his club might part with Appling, but denied the White Sox would get infielder Lynn Lary, Outfielder Sammy Byrd and Pitcher Charlie Ruffing in return.

"Appling's a great star," said Grabiner, "and we would have to get more than that for him."

Tony Lazzeri is one player Grabiner wants.

Rogers Hornsby, pilot of the St. Louis Browns, offered Oscar Melillo for Appling, but Grabiner wouldn't listen. The Rajah has been trying to swing a deal with Melillo as bait, but has not been successful. Cleveland wants Oscar, but Hornsby wants Earl Averill in an even trade and it's no go.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—William Mosconi, 19-year-old Philadelphian, tonight handed James Caras, of Wilmington, Del., his first defeat of the world pocket billiards championship tournament, leaving Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia, as the only unbeaten entrant. Caras' defeat, by 125 to 95 in 25 innings, dropped him from second place to fourth at three victories in four matches.

Earlier in the day, Charles Seaback, of Astoria, N. Y., made a strong bid, but was unable to prevent Ponzi from taking his fifth straight victory in a match which went 25 innings. Seaback scored 109 to Ponzi's 125. The New York players' record now is one victory in seven starts.

The result of the third match played and Caras' loss sent Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland into a tie for second place with George Kelly.

Foxx Asks Salary Of $40,000, Report

Quoted as Saying He Won't Play Unless He Gets It.

Philadelphia, Dec. 13 (AP).—The Inquirer says Jimmy Foxx, Athletics' first baseman and leading American League hitter, has demanded from Connie Mack a salary of $40,000 before he puts on an A's uniform in 1934.

The paper states the Athletics' manager refused the demand but has invited Foxx to discuss the subject with him again.

"You can't blame a fellow for asking when he thinks he deserves it," the Inquirer quotes Foxx. "Ruth got $52,000 last season and I am sure I can hit them far and more often than Babe did.

"And let me tell you I am not going to play unless I get it."

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 13 (AP). Jimmy Foxx tonight denied a published report he had "demanded from Connie Mack a salary of $40,000 before he puts on an Athletic uniform in 1934."

Detroit Scout Signed Stone At College

Young Tennessean Batted .354 His First Year. After Graduation.

SUCCESS came early to John Stone, the outfielder who came to the Nats from Detroit in the Goslin deal. Down in Tennessee he created such a rumpus with his bat that scout for the Tigers signed him to a contract a year before he had completed his college course. He served only a brief apprenticeship in the minors and jumped right into the Detroit line-up to become a steady and reliable hitter.

Stone went to Booneville grammar school, in Tennessee, and then to Morgan Prep. He entered Marysville College, from which he was graduated in 1928 with the degree of Bachelor of arts.

He was a pitcher and outfielder both in high school and college. He could hit and was fast. Billy Doyle, Tiger scout, heard about him and tendered a contract while he was still a student. Stone would not pass up his studies and waited a year after signing before reporting.

Initial Average .354.

Evansville, a branch office for Detroit, used him in 75 games in 1928. He was 22 years old then, but had been playing ball regularly in school and experienced no difficulty in hitting Three-Eye League pitching. He made 105 hits, including five homers, and his initial average was .354.

The Tigers gathered him into the fold and in 1928 he was in 26 games, batting .354. However, the Tigers had a lot of fly chasers and thought the young man would improve more in a Class AA league than he would sitting on a major bench.

In 1929 he was sent to Toronto,

Georgetown Five Routed By Tigers

Princeton Scores 48-22 Victory on Rally in Second Half.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 13 (Spl.).—The Princeton basket ball team exhibited a smooth functioning attack to down the Georgetown quintet here tonight by a 48-to-22 score. It was the Tigers' second victory of the season. The Princeton quintet, led by Lank Seibert, got under way with the opening whistle and ran up a lead of 9 points before the first five minutes were over. Georgetown was unable to show any consistent attack.

Seibert was high point scorer, with 21 points. The lanky senior, who plays forward, sank shots from all angles. Ed Hargaden was the star of the visiting team, accounting for ten of the Georgetown points and playing a fine game at left forward. Capt. Tom Carolan was also outstanding for the Hoyas.

Well Matched First Half.

The two teams were evenly matched during the first half after the first brief spurt of the Tiger eleven, but at the start of the second half the Tigers drew away with Seibert and Ken Fairman sinking shots from near the basket. Crowley and Hargaden were the only Georgetown men to tally in the second period.

Fairman added three more points at the start of the second half, the first tally coming after a fine pass from Grebauskas. Seibert dropped two more baskets in short order and then Larsen sank two short shots to give the Tigers an 18-point lead.

Georgetown took time out, but the Princeton quintet kept up its scoring streak with Larsen and Seibert adding four more points before Crowley chalked up the first Hoya point.

Georgetown showed a brief spurt when Jack Crowley tallied two baskets, once on a pass from Hargaden and another on a long shot from the center of the floor.

Richards, Tilden Top Pro Netmen

Former Heads Group Rated on Tournament Play.

New York, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Vincent Richards and Bill Tilden head the ranking lists announced today by the Professional Lawn Tennis Association. Richards tops the group of players ranked upon their competitive performances in the two major pro tourneys of the year. Tilden heads the list of players elected on their supposed relative playing strength.

Ranked after Tilden on the playing list were Richards, Bruce Barnes, Emmett Pare, Harvey Snodgrass, Howard Kinsey, Hunter, Heston, Wood and Murray.

Hockeyist Near Death, Police Open Quiz

Toronto Player Is Facing Operation After Row in Boston Game.

BOSTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—While a brain specialist acted to save the life of Irvin "Ace" Bailey, 31-year-old Toronto hockey player tonight, police made their initial move in the case by questioning Eddie Shore, Boston defense star, about his part in the tragic accident.

Bailey, felled to the ice by Shore during last night's Maple Leafs-Bruin game at the Boston Garden, suffered a fractured skull. His condition went from bad to worse during the day and a surgeon, called in for consultation late this afternoon, punctured the hockey player's spine to drain off fluid that resulted from the primary cerebral hemorrhage.

To Undergo Operation.

As soon as Bailey is fit to be moved, he will be transferred from the Audubon to the Boston City Hospital to undergo an extremely delicate operation.

When a police inspector set out to question Shore, another was sent to take Bailey's statement. His physicians, however, ruled against such an intrusion.

Gravely concerned over the condition of his player, Connie Smythe, managing director of the Maple Leafs, was forced to appear in police court where Leonard Kenworthy, of Everett, a spectator at last night's game, charged him with assault. Smythe pleaded not guilty and was released under $100 bond for a hearing on December 27.

Remains in Boston.

Smythe remained behind when the Maple Leaf team left for Montreal for tomorrow night's game with Les Canadiens. Dick Irwin, coach, and Frank Selke, another Maple Leaf official, were in charge of the club.

Smythe said Shore and Reginald "Red" Horner, Maple Leaf defenseman who slammed the Boston player into the boards a few seconds before he banged into Bailey, have been indefinitely suspended by Frank Patrick, managing director of the National Hockey League, whose board of governors will hold a special meeting for investigation as soon as he can leave Boston.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

"I'M the boss."

That's what Joe Cronin had to say along about last June when Goose Goslin was summarily jerked from the Washington line-up in Boston one afternoon and told to cool his heels on the bench while Dave Harris did a bit of hitting against the enemy pitchers.

Cronin is still the boss, apparently. Anyway, the one guy who gave Manager Cronin any trouble last season is the one guy who has been traded. Goslin goes to the Tigers for Johnny Stone in a deal engineered by Cronin in which the Nats gain a left-handed hitter who hit .280 for a left-handed hitter who hit .297 last year.

Goslin's temperament is dependent directly on his batting average and when the Goose slumps at the plate it gnaws at his good humor. Shortly after the first sign of friction between Goslin and Cronin last year the Goose moved down the street from the hotel at which both were living.

Strictly on the Records.

Strictly on the records, the Nats didn't do badly for themselves in the Goslin-Stone swap. They get a strapping young fellow of 27 years for a slightly spavined 32-year-old, who is rapidly hitting the decline. Five good years of outfielding are seen in Stone by Griffith and Cronin.

The Goose was a distinctive liability through several stretches last season, when an ailing leg cramped his style at the plate, on the bases, and in the field, and an ailing leg is not as easily healed for a fellow of Goslin's age.

That .327 batting average of Stone's in 1931 is no myth, despite his .280 of last season and his arm, if not as powerful, is far more accurate than Goslin's. When it comes to putting ground behind him, Stone is faster than Goslin in his palmiest days, and the Nats will be the gainer in that respect.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

Jimmy Foxx will now know how it feels to face the pitching of Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg . . . the Yankees are angling for a shortstop . . . but they are due to come up with a deal for an outfielder . . . what with Earl Combs getting no younger rapidly . . . and Babe Ruth slowing up to a creep . . . with Carl Reynolds in the fold, the Sox have rounded out a pennant contender . . . the Nats will do no more trading in Chicago . . . for the simple reason they have nothing more to offer except Cash . . . and the Nats are not parting with Cash, who is a great performer in one's declining years . . . the Yankees and Indians are the only clubs who haven't figured in some sort of a deal . . . by tonight, it will be narrowed to the Indians . . here's a thought: The Nats may switch Stone to Cleveland for Hildebrand or Vosmik . . . inasmuch as Goslin was non grata with Manager Walter Johnson . . . and would not talk trade with the Nats when they were dangling the Goose as bait . . . the Nats never won a pennant without Goslin . . . and the Browns never won a pennant with or without him . . . making it even . . . the National League will adopt the lively ball over the protests of Bill Terry . . . whose Giant pitchers had fair success with the 1933 pellet . . . Jimmy Foxx asks Connie Mack for a $40,000 salary . . . there's no harm in asking . . . still, it's worth something extra to face Grove's pitching.

Decorate, 5-1 Shot, Outruns Juvenile Field in Charles Town's Feature Race

Gelding Tops Field From Barrier

Masked Jester, Belle Fille Pay Off $33.80 in Daily Double.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent)

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 13.—Wearing for the first time a rogue's hood, R. Russell's Decorate improved on anything he has done hereabouts and led a shifty field of juveniles from start to finish in the Berkeley Springs, the day's feature over the 6½-furlong course. Under the hustling ride of Eddie Watters, Decorate finished the circle a mighty tired youngster. However, the son of Bunting had enough left to take care of W. G. Merion's Happy Message by 2 lengths. Monastic won third position from the fast-closing Lauretta Nash.

Watters made the most of Decorate's No. 1 post position and was away winging followed by Happy Message, Monastic and Aske. At least two members of the field of eight were eliminated at the break. Blue Foam, which held up the start for several minutes, wheeled when the barrier went up and blocked Biff. Lauretta Nash, well played, was also in a tangle.

Decorate Hugs Rail.

Watters hugged the rail and clung to his advantage over Happy Message to the far turn. Jockey Sage shook up Happy Message turning for the stretch, but Watters and Decorate found enough speed to meet the effort. However, nearing the wire, Decorate began to wilt and Watters had a job keeping the youngster going.

Although the sky was overcast no snow fell during the day and the track was dusty and lightning fast. The temperature hovered near the freezing point, making it an uncomfortable day for turf business. The crowd was again lean and the mutuels were again large. Decorate paid $12.40, but the pay-off ranged up to $114.40 to show in one instance.

Masked Jester Scores.

Masked Jester, the property of Mrs. L. B. Baird and trained by her husband, proved a winning favorite in the first race over the 6½ furlongs course. Masked Jester joined the small group of horses that have come from far back in fields to win at this track. Williard had the mount and did not hurry the son of Masked Marvel II and Daily Smile. Karonite went out to set a swift pace along with Scotch Plaid and Cousin George, while Masked Jester was among the trailers. Along the back stretch the ultimate winner moved up steadily, collared the flying Karonite and bounded past Cousin George, to win by a length and a half. Masked Jester paid $6.40, and Cousin George was $58 to place. Karonite staggered into third money.

Holland, Jim Arthur's gelding, made a show of the field in the second race. Away winging, Holland made every post a winning one and stood off repeated moves from Grand Rox, which was closest all the way. Bubbling Out overcame trouble to be third. Holland was another favorite and supplied a $4.80 pay-off.

Belle Fille, which fell down at the start of a race last week, was on her hoofs all the way today and won the third race for Mrs. John Hay Whitney, thereby completing a daily double of $33.80. The real thrill of the race was the running of Brilliant Girl, a 140-to-1 shot, which broke on top and looked mighty like a winner to the far turn.

Belle Fille, closest in pursuit, swung around the long shot, however, and was an easy winner. Merry Miss, another long shot, was third. Belle Fille paid $10.80 and Brilliant Girl showed a trick mutuel of $50.40 to place and $144.40 to show. Merry Miss completed the Wall Street figures with a $49.40 third-place mutuel.

Kalola, a daughter of Sir Barton, was the only horse in the fourth race getting a clear break, and the remainder of the field could not make up the ground lost at the barrier. Kalola was five lengths in front at the clubhouse turn and, although tiring, had enough left to take care of Postponement by a length at the wire. Some three lengths away came Gracias. Again the telephone numbers were on display, Kalola paying $45.40.

CHARLEMAGNE - WHO RULED THE "GREATEST EMPIRE EVER KNOWN - IS THE "FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY" IN ANDORRA.... A NATION 1/6 THE SIZE OF RHODE ISLAND...

The tiny republic of Andorra lies on the crest of the Pyrenees on the boundary between France and Spain, 80 miles inland from the Mediterranean Sea. It is so tiny that few maps show its location. Andorra covers an area of 191 square miles, its population is about 5,000. In many respects it is unimportant, but next to San Marino it is the oldest republic in the world.

Its independence dates back to the time of Charlemagne, who gave it freedom in exchange for the help of Andorrans against the Moors. Charlemagne is the "father of his country" in Andorra, and is respected as such just as George Washington is similarly revered in the United States. Yet, strange as it seems, Charlemagne was once the ruler of the greatest empire ever known—an empire which included what today is all France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Hungary, most of Italy, and a part of Spain, greater, from a historical standpoint, than the empire of Genghis Khan.

The honeycomb of the bee is a marvel of storage efficiency and structural perfection. The hexagon cross section of the comb provides the greatest amount of storage space for the material used, and all without any waste space—but even more miraculous than this is the manner in which the comb partition is made up. If you hold the empty comb up to the light you will find that the cells are not quite opposite each other. They are offset just enough so that the partition is composed of many little four-sided figures which have equal and parallel sides, two acute and two obtuse angles. The acute angles are 71 degrees while the obtuse are 109 degrees. This agrees exactly with the results of a highly complicated mathematical analysis to show the greatest possible strength with the greatest economy of materials.

Dear Al: Charles Town Race Track, Dec. 13.

While trying to squelch the fire that burned his auto here on Monday, Jockey Thurber caught cold and was forced to cancel his mounts for today. However, he hopes to be back in action tomorrow. Natives at the track are defending Jefferson County weather. They point to the fact that the present cold spell is general throughout the East, and contend that in a few days the temperature will again reach the early 40's. Jockey Munoz, set down for rough riding on December 6, resumed work today. The stewards excused Gay Party, slated to run in the seventh race, because of cracked heels. I am due for cracked heels myself unless my selections show an improvement on those of today.

BILL.

First race—Lodorus is asked to give away from 9 to 15 pounds in the 5-furlong opener, having been assigned a 121-pound impost. She gets her favorite inside position and is fleet-footed enough to make the most of it. In Clover has fair races to recommend her for the place. Dawn Child was off poorly last out. Clear sailing tomorrow would bring this filly close to the top ones.

Second race—I'm taking my No. 1 clocker's word for the fact that The Hun is a fit and ready horse. This lad has been doing good work of late and I have learned to respect his watch. Mobile was scratched today with this race in view. Closed fast the other day. Handley to take care of the others.

Third race—Golden Princess has had her share of rough trips in recent races. Finds a field here that seems to fit. Gets in light and I see no reason for mistakes. Topsie H. and Dabney have both made money appearances here and should divide the place and show awards.

Fourth race—Most of the crack speedsters at this course are clustered in this sprint and the theme song will be "Beat Silverdale." The veteran has turned in a pair of sizzling efforts since being shipped into Jefferson County. However, I'm going to try to beat him with Lady Menifee. She carries a mere 103 pounds and is recommended by fine works. If the hard track remains, Silverdale's creaky legs might be affected. Oral's races point to another place among the first three.

Fifth race—Pardon me if I try to chase Bongo home in this field. Trainer Booth has a sharp youngster in this one. I expect to see the "Go" signal turned at every post tomorrow. Patchpocket shapes up well and gets the place call ahead of the fast-closing Peedeeque.

Sixth race—Looks as if Fair Crest and Forest Faun will battle it out in this contest. The first named has changed stables since his last, but should run kindly for the new owner. Forest Faun was popular on the comeback wire the other day and failed to run a good race. Appears better suited in this field. Jodhpur for the show.

Seventh race—Ming Sun and Redivivus are to carry 114 pounds each in the final and the issue seems to lie between them. Kinlad, with Thurber aboard, would be dangerous if moved out of the also eligible group.

Central Y to Stage Ring Meet Saturday

Fistic activities at the Central Y. M. C. A. will get under way Saturday night with the staging of an intraclub boxing meet between prospective members of the "Y" team.

The meet will be staged under direction of Coach Bill Stanley, who also will swap punches in a three-round exhibition with Bobby Yeoman. Creighton Allen, Merrick Boys Club, will clash with Don Ipson in the 145-pound class.

Eight bouts have been carded, with an 85-pound and a 100-pound fight also on the card.

Seeks Virginia Games.

Brute Hated by Mat Fans, But Cashes In, Court Is Told

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 13 (AP).—A candid story of how he turned "brute" to rehabilitate his reputation as a wrestler, was unfolded before a circuit court jury by "Rough House" Nelson, in a $25,000 damage suit which was resumed here today.

Nelson was a witness for Tom Packs, veteran St. Louis sports promoter, and defendant in the suit brought by Harry Sharpe, referee, who claims he was injured by infuriated wrestling fans after a bout in February, 1930.

It was nearly 10 years ago, "Rough House" related, that he reluctantly decided he was finished as a straight wrestler.

"I was no gentle wrestler," he said, "but I decided I would have to change my tactics and become a brute. The promoters liked my new style because these methods drew bigger crowds."

Asked if he wasn't known as the "bad boy" of the wrestling game, Nelson replied: "I guess so. I am an expert hair-puller and an eye-gouger."

"And the more you could get the fans to holler and swear at you, the better?" asked Robert Kratky, attorney for the plaintiff.

"Yes, sir," replied Nelson.

"Your opponents had all the sympathy of the audience?" Kratky asked.

"I suppose they did," replied the wrestler. "I know I never got any. But I could get more matches and make more money. Even though the fans were infuriated, they would pay to come and see me and they liked it."

"How about throwing your opponent out of the ring?" asked the attorney.

"That's a good idea," the witness responded calmly. "Usually that cripples them and you don't have to bother about them any more that night."

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MASKED JESTER, $6.40, $3.40, $3.20; COUSIN GEORGE, $58.00, $17.40; KARONITE, $6.00.

MASKED JESTER, slow to find his best speed, responded readily when called upon leaving the back stretch, came to the outside of the leaders and was going away at the finish. COUSIN GEORGE followed the early pace most closely and saved ground on the inside, but was unequal to the challenge of the winner. KARONITE displayed good early speed, but faltered in the final drive. REPEAL closed a good gap from a slow start. SCOTCH PLAID had some speed.

SECOND RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:50. Off at 1:55. Winner, J. Arthur's ch. g. (3), by Noah—Diana. Trained by J. Arthur. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:15 2-5, 1:22.

MEDIUM	116	8	9	9^{1}	10	10	10	Cowley	637.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOLLAND, $4.80, $3.40, $3.20; GRAND ROX, $8.00, $3.20; BUBBLING OUT, $3.20.

HOLLAND, fastest away, took command under restraint while saving ground on the rail, responded well to a vigorous hand ride and held GRAND ROX safe. The latter followed the pace of the winner most closely for the entire trip, made a bid when straightened in the stretch, but could not overtake HOLLAND. BUBBLING OUT, rated within reach of the leaders for 4 furlongs, responded well in the drive.

THIRD RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:18. Off at 2:20. Winner, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's ch. f. (3), by Olambala—Lembera Beauty. Trained by W. J. Norton. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:20 1-5. (New track records.)

BOHEMIAN GROVE	114	8	5	8^{h}	8^{h}	10	10	Watters	3.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BELLE FILLE, $10.80, $6.60, $4.40; BRILLIANT GIRL, $50.40, $144.40; MERRY MISS, $49.40.

BELLE FILLE, away well, was restrained behind the pace of BRILLIANT GIRL, assumed command with ease when leaving the back stretch and was never threatened thereafter. BRILLIANT GIRL showed keen early speed to set the pace, gave way to the challenge of the winner and hung on well. MERRY MISS, a forward factor all the way, closed with good speed. GADAROUND had a rough passage in the early stages and closed a good gap when clear. THE BLACK was carried out at the first turn and lost much ground. BUN D. was repeatedly in trouble. MINT PARAGON pulled up lame.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start poor. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:43. Off at 2:51½. Winner, W. Elliott's b. f. (3), by Sir Barton—Deviniere. Trained by W. Elliott. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:14 3-5, 1:21 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KALOLA, $45.40, $11.20, $5.20; POSTPONEMENT, $10.00, $7.20; GRACIAS, $8.80.

KALOLA, favored by a good start, was sent into a commanding lead at once and, saving ground all the way, had enough left to hold POSTPONEMENT safe. The latter suffered interference at the start, reached contention when turned for home and was wearing the winner down. GRACIAS, crowded back at the start, gradually improved his position and closed gamely. DARK LAW, crowded slightly at the start, was raced into defeat by POSTPONEMENT and was stopping badly at the end.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. The Berkeley Springs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:18½. Winner, R. Russell's b. g. (2), by Bunting—Pith. Trained by W. Grater. Value to winner, $375; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:15, 1:21 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DECORATE, $12.40, $8.00, $5.20; HAPPY MESSAGE, $7.60, $7.80; MONASTIC, $9.60.

DECORATE, away fastest of the field, was steadied along in front on the rail, responded well to draw clear when turned into the stretch, but was hard urged to the finish. HAPPY MESSAGE raced in closest attendance to the winner for the entire trip, made a bid for command in the front stretch and hung on well when unable to overtake DECORATE. MONASTIC raced evenly throughout, but was unable to better her position. LAURETTA NASH was blocked going to the first turn, moved up on the inside to reach contention and was under severe punishment for the last half mile. ASKE was forced wide at the first turn and lost considerable ground.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good and fast. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:41. Off at once. Winner, F. C. Frisbie's ch. h. or br. c. (4), by Traumer—Sunbraye. Trained by F. C. Frisbie. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49, 1:14 3-5, 1:41, 1:54. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK VISION, $8.80, $3.40, $4.20; GLEN BURNIE, $2.40, $2.80; HACKY H., $6.20.

DARK VISION, allowed to settle into his stride, moved up with ease after a half mile, assumed command without difficulty and was in hand for the rest of the trip. GLEN BURNIE raced HACKY H. into submission in the first half mile, was unequal to the challenge of the winner, but easily held the others safe. HACKY H. showed good early speed to set the pace, but faltered when put to the drive. FLAGEOLET raced evenly, but could never get up. The others were always outrun.

Jockey Willhite Is Injured at Jefferson

Suffers Possible Fracture of Skull in Fall; Fair Duchess Wins Race.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Dec. 13 (AP).—Elbert Willhite, one of the most promising of the apprentice jockeys performing at this point, had his second spill at the current meeting here today, and was taken to the Touro Infirmary. After a hasty examination at the track, it was reported that the boy had a possible fracture of the skull. Willhite is a 92-pound lad, from South Dakota, who earned a reputation by his smart work at Sportsman's Park. The boy was tossed from the saddle of Purple shortly after the start of the fourth event today.

Fair Duchess, a field horse, surprised the talent by leading throughout the five and a half furlongs contest. The filly registered by a length and a half to pay $14.80. Come Seven made up ground rapidly in the last quarter mile to grab the place by a head from Fannie Lou. The time was 1:08 1-5.

Substantial Lead.

Patsy Petrella broke Fair Duchess with the leaders, and the Odesa Farms' Color Bearer drew into a substantial lead. Come Seven, when fully in her stride, challenged through the stretch, and forced Petrella to ride out the winner. Fannie Lou made up a world of ground to land in the picture.

Long shots got all the money in the third race. Blatola and Balaski proved the right combination. They got to the front right near the finish, and scored by a half length at 14 to 1. Primer headed Birthday Gift for second money. Blatola earned a slight early lead, but dropped back as Tennywood and Dollar Princess temporarily outfooted the field. Coming again in the final furlong, Blatola survived a blanket finish under good handling.

Formidable Duke U. Quintet Invades for Game With Catholic U. Five Tonight

Visitors Led By Capital Brothers

Blue Devils Use Connie Macks' Son at Center; C. U. Frosh Play.

CHAMPIONS of North Carolina for the last four years and finalists in three of the last five Southern Conference tournaments, Duke University's widely publicized basket ball team comes to town tonight to meet Catholic University on the Cardinals' court. The tip-off will be at 8:15 o'clock. A preliminary game between C. U. Frosh and St. John's will be played at 7 o'clock.

Duke opened its season last night against the Rotary Club, at Richmond. Catholic got off to a flying start Tuesday against Maryland State Normal. Both were impressive in the debuts, but tonight's affair should be decided by a small margin.

With the visitors will be two former Western High School stars, Herb and Jim Thompson. The caravan also will include Connie Mack, jr., 6-foot 5-inch son of "Trader" Mack, Philadelphia Athletics' pilot.

Jim Thompson at Forward

Jim Thompson, all-Southern Conference center last season, will be seen at his old forward position tonight. Mack's improved showing in the center circle induced Coach Eddie Cameron to put Thompson back at forward, his favorite position, where he won second all-Conference team honors in 1932. Sam Bell, a junior, will be Jim's running mate.

Herb Thompson, who was selected a guard on the second All-Conference team last season, is back at the old stand. He will pair off with Phil Weaver, a senior who has been a member of the team for two years. The Thompson's are regarded as two of the greatest basket ball players in Duke's history.

Tomorrow Duke goes to Baltimore for its third game of the trip against Baltimore U. It will be its final taste of competition until after the Christmas holidays.

To Use Same Line-Up.

Coach Forrest Cotton plans to use the same starting line-up that opened against Maryland State Normal. Babe Gearty and Genie Augusterfer, forwards; Bernie Lieb, center, and Eddie White and Abe Rosenfield, guards, is the way the Cards will take the floor.

Catholic is confident of stopping the Blue Devils. A close, well-knit defense that completely baffled Normal is expected to check Duke's short-passing attack. Those 68 points credited to the Cards speak well for their scoring ability, so a little of each will return them the victors tonight.

G. W. Frosh Triumph Over Western, 32-20

A last-half rally of seventeen points while the George Washington frosh were held to 10 markers, was not enough to win the basket ball game for Western High School yesterday afternoon, the Georgetowners losing, 32-20. At the halfway mark, the Colonial yearlings were in the lead, 22-3.

Stone Was Signed While at College

where he played 79 games, hitting .326. He helped himself to an even dozen home runs and stole eight bases. He was recalled to play 51 games in the American League and hit .260.

After that he remained as a regular in the Detroit outfield. In 1930 he played in 126 games with an average of .313. He improved this the next season by batting .327 in 147 games. He made 10 home runs and stole 13 bases.

The 1932 season saw his batting average drop to .297, but he became more of a slugger. He negotiated 178 hits and scored 106 runs. He poled 17 homers, but his thefts dwindled to a pair.

Stone was named the most valuable man on his team in 1931. That was the year he made 191 hits and batted .327. When the 1933 season rolled around Stone was found hitting fourth in the Detroit line-up, the spot reserved for a team's most dependable batsman.

Stone played baseball and football through high school and college and was a member of the track teams.

C. U. Courtmen Card St. John's, Brooklyn

Catholic University's basket ball team will meet St. John's of Brooklyn in Brooklyn, February 9, it was learned yesterday. Catholic is endeavoring to book another game in Gotham for the following day to make a two-day trip of it. Columbia or New York University were mentioned as possible opponents.

Terps on Edge For Michigan Monday

Veteran Team Is Expected to Chalk Up Victory in Opener.

MARYLAND will be ready for Michigan when the Wolverines come howling around the Old Liners' door next Monday night at College Park. Two weeks of intensive training have put the squad on razor-edge for the important intersectional fray, and Maryland supporters freely predict an opening-night victory.

Coach Burt Shipley has a veteran team from last season, but several newcomers are pressing the older men for their positions and may muscle into the starting line-up before Monday rolls around. Bernie Buscher, guard, is foremost among the fresh talent. Should he succeed in winning a berth, Maryland will have two Buschers, Bucky for the other one, to do the guarding.

Rufus Vincent, center; "Spider" Chase and Bob Snyder, forwards, and George Weber, guard, round out the 1932 quintet which enjoyed a good season. The team again will use the shifting zone defense, which proved so successful against the famous Meanwell system last year. Michigan found itself unable to work the ball in close to the basket and had to shoot long ones to win. The Terps will use the same fast breaking attack that characterized their play last season.

Boxing Program Also.

The second portion of the twin-bill to be presented Monday involves the Old Line boxing team, which meets Richmond's mittmen. Coach Jack Harmony is still undecided about his line-up, but Harry Carroll is a certain starter in the 125-pound class. Lyman MacAboy undoubtedly will get the call in the 155-pound class, and Frank Hawkins, 165-pound, and Stewart McCaw will box at 165 pounds and 175 pounds, respectively.

Three boys Harmony regards as excellent prospects do not become eligible until the second semester, which begins January 24. Mort Schwartz, 135 pounds; Johnny Tomchik, 214-pound heavyweight, and Bob Reid, 165 pounds, are those whose ring debut will be postponed.

Two Soccer Cup Contests Sunday

Mitchell vs. Brandywine; Millers Face Latius.

Some minor changes have been made necessary in the schedule of both Washington soccer leagues next Sunday because of two cup-ties taking place. These cup-tie games are in the first round of the Washington Association Trophy competition, the other games being due December 24.

In the cup contests, Mitchell's Store plays Brandywine at Shady Oak Field, and the fast young Miller Furniture Team opposes the Hispano-Americans on the Monument Field, at 2:30.

The Capital City League leaders should have little trouble with Brandywine, but the other game likely will be a close affair, with the youth and speed of the Miller outfit offset by the experience of the Latin eleven.

The schedules: Capital City League—British United vs. Marlboro; Gaithersburg vs. Rockville; German-American vs. Senators. Recreation League—Virginia Avenue vs. New York Avenue; Takoma Park vs. Rosedale.

A Whirlwind Turned Breeze

By Jimmy Powers
(Pinch-hitting for Paul Gallico).

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (Spl.).—Pepe Conte is a sports writer in Havana, quite a fine looking man with a thick gray pompadour sweeping back from a high forehead, an aquiline nose and a squarish chin. These are the features you ordinarily notice in him, for he is handsome, but when I met him years ago through John McGraw I thought I had been introduced to a madman. His gray-green eyes alternately flamed and smouldered as he told us of an affront visited that week upon his person by a baseball player, a rather inept infielder.

It seems that Pepe, tiring of watching his favorite team lose, wrote that the first baseman possessed the puny heart of a chicken, the thick skull of a bull and the long ears of a jackass. Pepe, I need not note, is a colorful, fluid writer whose charm is sometimes lost either through censorship or translation from a slang Spanish into the prim English we must effect.

Pepe had stepped into a bar for his evening Bacardi. He had his glass in hand when he heard the click-click of steel spikes on the tile floor. Looking into the glass he caught the malevolent face of the outraged athlete peering at his back. The man was still in uniform and as he advanced he swung a bat at Pepe's head. The wide mirror and the alarm of the baseball shoes on the cantina floor saved Pepe's life. He dodged and the bat glanced off his shoulder to smash a seltzer bottle standing in front of the late Joe Massaguer, brother of Connado, the caricaturist.

"And what do you theenk?" he was asking McGraw the day I met him. "I do not even keel him. Right through his breast bone the bullet goes. O, Chico, I am such a terrible shot left-handed. The worst theeng is they have patch heem up and next summer thees bum will be again at first base." Pepe was far more concerned over his ball team than his broken shoulder.

With the years Pepe's wife, Isabella, induced him to buy a home at El Cotorro in the cool hills back of Havana. His baby daughter, Isabelita, grew into a sweet tropical flower and all was serene. Of course there were occasional interludes. Pepe came to New York and renewed old acquaintances. He had served in the Spanish-American War as a lieutenant in the Seventh Cavalry from Texas and had traveled with the New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds reporting the triumphs of Luque, Gonzales and other Cubanoes.

Once he took his friends to a Spanish restaurant near Brooklyn Bridge. The service was bad. Pepe waited 5 minutes, 10 minutes. Then he seized the captain of waiters by the throat, emptied cruets of vinegar and oil on his head, swept the tablecloth and silverware into a sort of slingshot and began to belabor the tardy servants in a furious tangle of overturned chairs and trays. He was cold sober, you must remember, and this was merely his manner of punishing incivility. McGraw told me that the next time he and Pepe dined at that restaurant they were overwhelmed by rolling-eyed janissaries who scooted to obey the first snap of Pepe's finger.

But Pepe returned to the palm-studded island off the Florida keys and despite occasional [illegible] and shootings he grew older and calmer. Did an [illegible] a fly ball in the last inning Pepe merely shrugged his [illegible] instead of clouting the wretch over the ear with his [illegible] He spent more evenings at El Cotorro in the garden of his [illegible], a kindly old gentleman who grew yellow roses big as [illegible] and who once played first violin for Victor Herbert. Pepe's [illegible] Ramon, who edited La Semana and collaborated with [illegible] bequeathed him his library. Last winter Pepe grinned and [illegible] mellow Panetella as McGraw complimented him on his [illegible] of the peace.

Pepe returned, "[illegible] horse has enough scars. At the world series what [illegible] Every one ees so polite and not one nose ees broken. [illegible] good. It ees foolish—never again for me thees [illegible]

Now I arrive at the [illegible] This week I receive a letter. The crinkled envelope, [illegible] smuggled, has no return address but the single [illegible] is stamped "Carcel de la Hababa—Jefatura." It [illegible] by Pepe.

"I am a revolutionary [illegible] ough I was always against that devil Machado," it read. [illegible] within the walls of that ancient fortress, Principe Castle, [illegible] prison. It was biult by his very Catholic Majesty [illegible] second, the foolish son of Charles V. Chico, I too, [illegible] as Philip." There had been bloodshed and executions and [illegible] had been bughouse, so he wrote. He asked that he be [illegible] to all his friends, particularly McGraw, and he wrote [illegible] Christmas without his wife, his blue-eyed Isabelita and his [illegible] fiddling the old carols of a night in his tropical rose [illegible]

Newest "Mr. X" On Mat Card Tomorrow

Latest "Masked Marvel" Is of Known Quantity; Beat Sonnenberg.

IF you happen to see a couple of masked guys wandering about town today or tomorrow, don't shoot. They are not yeggs, but are just a rassler and his manager, who will, for the umpteenth time, pull off the old "Masked Marvel" stunt here. On second thought, they might be termed holdup men, at that, but they will do their holding up at the Auditorium tomorrow night in a legitimate way and for a worthy cause—as part of the show being staged to help boost The Post's Doll and Toy Fund.

While X stands for "unknown quantity," the Monsieur X in this case is "anything else but" as far as his ability is concerned. He showed up in Boston some time ago, worked his way up by easy stages to a Gus Sonnenberg match, and then upset the dope by downing the former champion. His identity is still a mystery, but there is no secret about his record, and it will be given the acid test in tomorrow night's semifinal bout by Rough Rudy Dusek.

On Way Up Again.

Dusek thought of retiring some time ago and even took an administrative job in the Londos-White rassling league. Then he was propositioned by the Jack Curley circuit, accepted terms, and now is battling his way back toward the top. Rough Rudy is tough enough in matches when he is only playing, but he is a past master in the art of giving and taking punishment when he is serious. And there is no question but that he will be "shooting the works" tomorrow.

Jim Browning, world champion claimant, will bring his spectacular airplane leg-scissors along with him to try the hold on Hefty "Tiny" Roebuck in the feature spot of what promises to be an exceptional card. This hold calls for Browning to lay on his back and spin his foe about like a pinwheel, and arguments as to whether or not he can do this with the 271-pound Indian are almost breaking up rassle-minded families.

Lewis On Card.

The remainder of the card also should give the fans many big moments. Strangler Ed Lewis, former mat king, when the boys really wrestled, is almost as good as a rassler. He takes on giant Jim Clinstock, who beat Wladek Zbyszko, another former champ, last week.

No admission charge will be levied on women presenting paying escorts but, if the fair fans want to do their bit toward bringing Santa Claus to homes of needy children, they may drop a toy in boxes which will be provided.

Anacostia Business Men Win 2 League Contests

Anacostia Business Men won a double-header last night in the only two games played in the Southeast Community Center Basket Ball League at Hines Junior High School. In the first game, they defeated Easton A. C., 27 to 8, and in the other won from Dixie Five, 41 to 28.

Fans in Philly Regret Deals of Mack

Had Hoped Legislation of Sunday Ball Would Curb Break-Up.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13 (AP).—The ax that fell on the Athletics' pennant winning machine in Chicago yesterday, after casting a portentious shadow for several months, brought expressions of regret from Philadelphia fans.

While the wholesale selling of players did not come as a surprise, because the deals had been rumored since shortly after the close of last season, the Athletics' followers had hoped that the team which won the world's championship in 1929 and 1930 would not be so extensively broken up.

While the rumors of player sales flew about, Connie Mack, veteran manager of the A's, maintained a policy of silence, but yesterday's deals turned out as the reports of the last several months said they would.

Blow to Hopes.

Prospects of increased revenue for the club through legalization of Sunday baseball in Philadelphia had given rise to increased hopes by the fans that all of the deals would not be carried out.

Voters at the November election approved Sabbath baseball for the city, assuring Sunday games with the opening of next season.

It was stated money from the sale of stars will give the club a good nest egg to start the training trip next spring. President Thomas S. Shibe, who was unable to attend the baseball meeting because of an operation, declined to comment on the deals or the club's exact financial condition, but it was said the moves were absolutely necessary to keep the property out of the red.

George Earnshaw, sold to the Chicago White Sox, heard news of the deal with the comment: "Anything they do will suit me." Asked what he thought of the Chicago transactions, Earnshaw stated he had "nothing to say."

Jimmy Foxx, American League batting king, said he was not surprised that Mickey Cochrane had been sent to Detroit, but stated the sale of Lefty Grove, Max Bishop and "Rube" Walberg was a big surprise to him.

Nolan's Late Goal Wins for Eastern

Shot in Last Minute Beats Emerson, 31 to 30.

A dead-eye shot, reeking of the skill of a Frank Merriwell and dropped through the hoop by Tommy Nolan, ace forward of the Eastern High quintet, in the last minute of play was enough to win the game from Emerson yesterday afternoon in the Eastern gym, 31-30.

Trailing throughout the game until the closing five minutes of play, the Lincoln Parkers came within a point of tying the score. However, a moment later Nolan's accurate heave clinched the ball game, the Easterners nursing the leather until whistle time.

G. U. Prep Basketers Baltimore Winners

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 13 (Spl.). Flashing a strong scoring attack which had its opponents on the defense for the greater part of the contest, Georgetown Prep's basket ball team scored an impressive 32-to-23 victory over Forest Park High at the latter's gymnasium today.

Aside from a field goal scored by Capt. Coplan, of the locals, to start the game, the host quintet never again was able to overtake the fast-stepping Washingtonians. Keating started the scoring with a field goal for Georgetown and never let up, ripping the cords as he captured high-scoring honors with 13 points.

Only in one period were the Foresters able to solve Georgetown's offense, that being in the final period, when substitutes replaced the regulars in the visitors' line-up.

Center Teams Urged To Turn in Franchises

Teams expecting to participate in the Community Center League basket ball competition this winter have been requested to turn in their franchises to the Community Center office, Thirteenth and K streets, by next Monday.

Play in the major and minor leagues will begin on January 2. Sixty-eight teams already have entered.

Stanford or Columbia? Fan Played With Both

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The forthcoming Rose Bowl football game between Columbia and Stanford has created a delicate problem for William Erb, of New York.

He has ordered six tickets for the game, but can't decide whether he should sit on the Stanford or Columbia side. He played in the back field for the Stanford teams of 1898, 1899 and 1900, but was Columbia's varsity quarter back in 1902.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

THE race for the lead in the Ladies District League renewed last night. Rendezvous, holding first place by the narrowest of margins, showed no signs of a let-up in sweeping its match with Meyer Davis, warding off the efforts of the Lucky Strike team which downed Convention Hall for three games.

Columbia checked the Recreation's bid for recognition, taking the odd game; Arcadia remained among the first five by winning two from Bill Wood and Petworth won a two-to-one decision from Georgetown.

Lucille Young, Rendezvous star, led the list of individual scores, turning in a 136 game and 362 set.

The standings of the three leaders is likely to be scrambled when the Luck Strike team tackles Rendezvous in its postponed match.

"Hokie" Smith set off the fireworks in the Recreation League, throwing in a 162 game and a 385 set to help the Bearcats to retain their hold on the top position by taking the odd game from Quacks. Brad Mandley's 382 set was the Quacks bid for honors.

Sims Music Studios remained in the runner-up position, winning two from Sol Herzog's, Al woods of the victors coming through with a 385 set to tie Hokie Smith for individual set laurels. Leo Fox's 361 set was the leading factor in Printer's taking the edge from Smysers Pharmacy and the last place Patent Attorneys jolted Chris Delicatessen, whipping them the odd game.

Caleb O'Connor, with the assistance of Professors Gulli, Levy and Ellis, announce that free bowling instructions will be given to a class of 50 girls who are desirous of improving their game at the Recreation alleys tonight, and every succeeding Thursday night. They only charge will be that for the games rolled.

All matches rolled in the Takoma Business Men's League at the Takoma alleys turned out to be of the nip and tuck variety, no team winning all three games. Colorado Service Station won two from Columbia Wall Paper; Youngblood Hardward downed Old Colony, twice; Seal Construction took the edge in its match with Adams Burch Co.; Stephens-Warner Decorating Co. upset Takoma Post Office twice and the fast-stepping Goode Tinning Co., crew took the odd game from Dome Oil, rolling the second highest game of the season, 621, aided by Howard Russell's 153 game and Harry Bladen's 369 set.

The Reciprocity team led the mauling of the maples in the Civic Club League at the Arcadia alleys, rolling a 551 game and a 1,618 set, ably assisted by P. Kinnahan's 130 game and Jameson's 344 set.

The Washington Loan & Trust No. 1 team drafted the services of Harry Downey to roll in the Bankers League at the Arcadia drives. Bowling for the first time in two years, Downey stole the show, carrying away the individual game and set honors with a high 152 and 381, respectively. National Savings No. 1's 615 game and 1,678 set were the best team scores.

Two season's records were exploded in the Dynamite League at the Arcadia alleys. Long, of the leading Little Potatoes team, turned in a high individual set of 378, and the Wrecking Crew, which occupies the runner-up position, totaled 1,610 for a new high team set. Edwards (Tornadoes) rolled a 136 game, highest for the night, and Wrecking Crew's 581 was the best team game.

Mrs. Adelaide Jerman's 102 game and 266 set led the list of individual feats in the rolling of the Bureau of Custom Ladies League. Skippies and Battle Axes shared team laurels with a 394 game and 1,109 total pinfall, respectively.

Bellenger Wins on K. O.

Takoma-Northerns Play.

The Firestone Rangers, champion 135-pound team of Norfolk, will meet the Takoma-Northern gridmen Sunday on the Silver Spring field at 3:15 o'clock.

Elis' Statement Grid Victory Is Secondary Shocks Coy

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP). The idea that college football, especially at old Yale, isn't being played to win shocks Ted Coy, Eli star of a quarter-century ago and by many considered the all-time all-American full back.

"The attitude now is so different from what it was when we played football that I can't understand what's got into the youngsters' minds," says Coy.

"My idea of football is that it's a highly competitive sport. You play to win and to prove that you are the better team. If you eliminate the element of competition, you might as well eliminate the game.

"If you have to lose, that's hard luck. But the idea of having a coach is to turn out teams that will win, and the idea of playing is to play to win."

Coy's remarks were prompted by recent statements attributed to Yale varsity players that they played football for the experience and association they gained, as much as for any other objective.

G.W. Five Beats Baltimore, 47 to 30

SAMMY STEIN and four other fellows from George Washington put the finishing touches to an exceedingly dull evening for Baltimore U.'s basket ball team last night. Stein & Co. sent their guests home on the short end of a 47-to-30 score for the Colonials' second victory in three days.

Misfortune dogged the visitors from the time they embarked for Washington until the game actually started. Two blocks from school their bus was wrecked, and a mad dash to the station followed. The train was pulling out as they rushed down the terminal stairs, and it was another hour before the next one left. So they waited. En route one of the boys, Matz, had a touch of indigestion. Then there was that Stein fellow, and Bill Noonan and Jimmy Howell.

16 Points for Howell.

Stein was benched for a few fleeting moments in the second period and G. W. looked to be just another ball club. With the Joisey Kid in there, however, it was a different story. It wasn't his scoring that won the game; Howell's 16 points and Noonan's 15 did that, but it was his masterful floorwork and guiding hand that led Baltimore down to defeat.

George Washington led by a 24-16 count at the half, Stein, Noonan and Howell scoring all but 2 of the points. Vic Probst, Baltimore forward, who pocketed eight field goals for 16 points, kept his team in the running. But Probst was only one against three, and therein lies the tale of Baltimore's defeat.

Battles Gamely.

Baltimore battled gamely, but was outclassed in every department. The visitors were held at a safe distance by the Colonial sharpshooters after the first few minutes of play and never threatened. Noonan contributed a couple of sparkling shots to enliven the fray, and Barney Kane's guarding was of high order. But, as noted above, it was a fellow by the name of Stein who ran away with the individual honors.

High School Highlights

BUT five schoolboy gridders to date have signified their intentions to play in the "Can Goods Schoolboy Footbal Game," to be staged in Baltimore on New Year's Day. Those who have sent in their notices are four Eastern stars, Joe Mills, Joe Keegin, Pete Thompson and Dick Absher, and Jimmy Garner, of Western.

All senior gridders who wish to be members of the squad should write to O. M. Schriver, 1414 V street northwest, immediately.

Four of the regular members of the Tech High basket ball five were teammates on the St. Martin 100-pound team that won the A. A. U. midget championship title four years ago. They are Johnny Billings, Art Gillem, Jim Roland, and Charley Wiles.

Bob Sullivan, center of this year's Western football team, was elected captain of the 1934 eleven. He is a junior. Aside from Sullivan, who also won his letter, other "W" awards were presented to Wynn, Waddill, Gamage, Krouse, Greenwood, Love, Parker, Parkhill, Summerbell, Hoskinson, Schneider, Corcoran, Gordon, Coker and Managers Fuchs and Kingleys.

Central High letter award in football will be presented in the school assembly tomorrow morning.

Today will be a light one as far as high school basket ball is concerned. Only three tilts are listed in the vicinity. Roosevelt will be playing the feature attraction, meeting Jefferson High of Roanoke, Va., on the Ruf Rider floor. Emerson, after losing a heart-breaker to Eastern yesterday afternoon, will attempt to get on the victory bandwagon this afternoon at the expense of Wilson Teachers on the latter's court. Outside the District, Sherwood will tangle with Rockville in the Rockville cage.

Grays vs. A. A. A. Five.

The United Grays basket ball team will take to the floor against the Agricultural Adjustment Association team tonight in Central High School at 7:30 o'clock.

Stocks Yield Eight-tenths On Light Sales

Wheat's weakness and an absence of speculative incentive gave stocks a moderate reaction, though turnover was reduced on the setback and losses were again largely fractional.

The unchanged gold price and narrowness of dollar movements against foreign currencies have probably lessened the appeal which inflationary possibilities held out to speculators.

U. S. Dollar Favored.

Exchange fluctuations favored American money, but the extreme changes were of little consequence, bearing out the supposition that steadier rates may be currently of more interest to officials than the matter of fixed stabilization.

Sterling was a couple of cents or so lower most of the day.

Possibility of a communication company merger directed attention to shares directly interested in such an eventuality, and the immediate response was an advance by Western Union and Postal Telegraph preferred, the latter closing a point higher.

American Telephone sagged, then virtually recovered. Radio was active but narrow, while International Telephone improved fractionally.

Utility Group Firm.

Utilities as a group had a period of firmness, perhaps because professionals had switched to that division after the recent activity in rails and industrials. But operations on the long side had little vigor and the market lapsed during much of the afternoon, offering little evidence as to its ultimate intentions.

Net losses for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Electric, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears, Roebuck and Consolidated Gas were off fractionally. Standard Oil of New Jersey and Case yielded around a point, duPont nearly 2.

Pennsylvania was down 1½, probably reflecting disappointment that the directors did not declare a dividend at today's meeting; the Street, nevertheless, looks for a payment early in the new year. Santa Fe lost 1. Beech Nut Packing, in light volume, jumped nearly 5. Several preferred stocks again rallied. Sales totaled 1,332,234 shares.

The tone of money markets eased a bit, due to activities of the Reserve Bank in supplying funds by bill purchases. Member bank excess reserves are understood to have swelled extensively this week as a result of the central bank's aid.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Business on the stock exchange was quiet today. A fair amount of investment buying of gilt-edged securities and home rails occurred, but speculative issues encountered selling pressure. Kaffirs were affected by the weaker French franc and German bonds declined. The market closed quiet.

Paris—French issues declined on the bourse owing to profit taking. International issues, however, were resistant. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse opened firm, mining issues being the strongest. Business became quiet later, however, and the market closed unsettled.

Goods Market.

New York, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—Cotton goods trading was reported as of fair volume today in gray cloths with further January-February contracts being booked subject to protective clauses against possible National legislation. Group chairmen within the industry are arranging meetings for recommending regulation of production. Rayon yarn sales light, fabrics in fancy weaves in better call. Silk printed goods are selling more freely this week. Burlaps were firm, with shipment orders better. Spring sales of wool goods to be made are increasing.

Wool Market.

Boston, Dec. 13 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. Agr.).—Most of the wool houses in Boston are finding business very quiet this week. A few sales of moderate volume have been closed on original bag lines of good short French combing 64s and finer territory wools at 80@81 cents scoured basis. Other lines are firmly quoted although inactive. Scattered inquiries are being received but most of them are not resulting in immediate sales.

Possibilities of Stabilization

Doubtful if Negotiations Even Anticipated Success

By Ralph West Robey.

Again the issue of a stabilization of the dollar, sterling, and francs through the cooperation of the three countries concerned is being widely debated. The last serious discussion along this line was at the time of the World Economic Conference. Then the possibility definitely was ended by the "gold fetish" statement of President Roosevelt on July 3. From that time until a few days ago it was believed, generally, that the United States was going its own way on the question of currency instability, and that there was a corresponding lack of place for any negotiations with other countries.

It seems reasonable to believe, however, that recently the Federal Reserve Bank of New York has been in touch with the Bank of England to see if any agreement would be possible. It is true that the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Morgenthau, denies that there have been such conversations, but the evidence is against him. Fairly complete stories have come from London as to the nature of the discussions, and while they may have been merely the result of the imagination of some ambitious correspondent, this appears improbable.

It is likely that what has happened is that the negotiations have been of an informal and unofficial nature, carried on largely with a view to a comparison of ideas rather than with any anticipation that it would be possible to reach an agreement for immediate stabilization. In fact, it is difficult to see how the conversations could have been more than this.

U. S. in No Position to Urge Stabilization Now.

In other words, the United States at present is in no position to make any serious approach to other countries for the purpose of getting an immediate stabilization. Not only would such action go directly contrary to the whole monetary policy outlined only some seven weeks ago by the President, but it would run counter to a large part of the program by which the Administration hopes to get a higher price level.

Equally important is the fact that foreign nations scarcely could consider stabilization with the dollar at its present values in terms of foreign currencies. In the case of England, for example, the old par of exchange of $4.87 proved to be too high to enable her to remain on the gold standard. More specifically, with a pound of this value in the world markets it was impossible for England to sell enough goods abroad to offset what she imported. It was the strain resulting from this inability to offset imports by exports that forced the country off gold.

In view of this record it would appear to be incredible that England would consider returning to the gold standard with the pound priced at some $5.00 to $5.25. Should she do so it would mean that in due time a strain would develop and England would suffer another collapse of the gold standard.

Two Means for Preventing Recurrence of Troubles.

There are only two ways by which such a strain could be prevented. The first would be to reduce the gold content of the pound by such an amount in relation to the dollar that the new par would be, say, $4.00 or whatever figure might be decided upon. The second possibility would be for England to reduce her own price level by enough so that even though we have to pay $5.00 a pound it still would be cheaper to buy in Great Britain than in other markets.

It is quite evident, however, that England is not going to follow any such deflationary policy as would be involved in this second possibility. It definitely may be ruled out of consideration, therefore, with the result that the whole question of stabilization at the present foreign exchange rates depends upon the possibility of getting an agreement on how much we would be willing to have England reduce the gold content of her money.

The answer to this, it seems to me, is that we do not want any such reduction. I draw this conclusion from the fact that we deliberately have driven pound sterling to well above par as a means for helping agricultural prices in this country. I can see no reason for believing, therefore, that President Roosevelt would consider for a moment making an agreement at this time that would undo the very thing for which he has worked so hard.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

Bond Market Is Unchanged; At 74.3 Level

Federal Loans Stronger Again; Rally Attributed to Treasury Buying.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Renewed strength of United States Government securities and sharp declines in the foreign list were the features of today's rather spotty bond market.

The trading volume was a little better than that of yesterday, but the average for 60 domestic corporate loans was again unchanged at 74.3.

The rally of the Federals was attributed partly to some buying for Treasury accounts, but institutional purchases were also reported.

Firmness of Dollar.

The firmness of the dollar in foreign exchange dealings, together with the fact that the domestic gold price was again unchanged, may have been a factor. All Government listed issues closed with advances ranging from two thirty-seconds to twenty-two thirty-seconds of a point.

German bonds were the worst sufferers in the foreign division, their losses running from 1 to 5 or more points. The weakness of the Reich list followed reports that the Government was tightening exchange restrictions to prevent the flow of capital out of the country.

The statement of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, that 50 per cent cash payments on Germany's foreign debt service would depend on the increase of exports, was also believed to have been a contributing cause.

Foreign Loans Affected.

Other foreign obligations were said to have been affected by the continued decline of exchanges in terms of the dollar. Dutch East Indies issues were off 3 or more, those of Argentina were down 1 to around 2, and bonds of France, Belgium, Australia, Poland and the United Kingdom declined fractions to more than 1.

Fluctuations in domestic rails, utilities and industrials were generally narrow, with minor losses and gains about even.

Bonds of International Telephone and Postal Telegraph advanced 1 to more than 2 following word from Washington that a merger of communications facilities was being considered. Loans of Western Union and American Telephone, however, were only fairly steady.

Stocks — Sluggishness in other markets affected stocks and prices sagged eight-tenths of a point. Steel joins in losses. Sales reached total of 1,332,234, slightly under the turnover of Tuesday.

Wheat—heavy liquidation caused wheat to slump. The market closed off 1¼ to 2½ cents. All grains joined the declines. December wheat sold at 83⅜; May 85¼.

Cotton—After fluctuating irregularly in a quiet market prices rallied moderately in late trading. Declines were laid to heaviness on stock and grain markets. March sold at 10.17. The general market advanced 3 to 8 points. December sold at 9.98; January at 10.00.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed barely steady, 1 to 10 points lower. December sold at 8.44; January, at 8.53.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged and sold at 3.23; refined was also unchanged at 4.40.

Gold—Bar gold price in the United States was unchanged and stood at $34.01 per ounce. In London it stood at 126 shillings and 1 penny.

Dollar—The United States dollar was still steady on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.04 to the English pound; 6.01 cents to the French franc, and 36.70 cents to the German mark.

U. S. Dollar Firms On Foreign Marts

(Associated Press.)

The dollar was firm, but not buoyant, in foreign exchange markets yesterday as the domestic gold price remained at $34.01 an ounce, where it has been since December 1.

In quiet dealings at London, the American monetary unit closed 2 cents higher, at $5.05½ to the pound. In New York sterling was off 3 cents at one time, but finished at $5.04 for a net loss of 1¾ cents.

At Paris the dollar rose some 25 centimes to an equivalent of 6.03 cents to the franc. The French currency closed later in New York at 6.01 cents, off .03 of a cent. The dollar, at this rate, was valued at approximately 65.22 per cent of parity, compared with 64.90 Tuesday and 62.12 a month ago. In terms of the American gold price, the dollar was at about 60.77 per cent of its former parity.

Shoe Machine Dividend of $2.50 Is Voted

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—United Shoe Machinery Corporation declared a special dividend of $2.50 a common share, made possible through distribution of substantial amounts by some of its subsidiaries. The regular quarterly disbursement of 62½ cents a share was also voted.

New York & Honduras Rosario Mining Co. has voted a special dividend of 50 cents, payable December 29 to stock of record December 19.

Directors of Bancamerica-Blair Corporation declared a special dividend of $3, payable December 28 to stock of record December 18. The dividend, the board said, is a distribution of funds in excess of working capital requirements under present conditions.

Universal Pipe & Radiator Co. reports net loss of $470,219 for the nine months ended September 30, against loss of $657,486 in the corresponding period of 1932. September quarter loss was $105,294, against loss of $172,593 in the like interval of a year ago.

Directors of New York Life Insurance Co. today announced that the scale of dividends paid to policyholders would be the same in the first quarter of 1934 as prevailed during 1933—4 per cent on funds subject to withdrawal and 4¼ per cent on other funds.

Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. of Canada, subsidiary of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has declared a dividend of $1.50, payable January 15 to stock of record December 30. The last previous payment was 10 per cent in stock on March 1, 1933. The company estimates surplus of about $1,000,000 for the current year after depletion and depreciation. Profits, coupled with a reduction in metal stocks to normal proportions, have liquidated bank loans and built up "a substantial cash surplus," a statement said.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 13 (Spl.). The Virginia Loan & Thrift Corporation, of Winchester, today declared dividends on both its outstanding common and preferred stock to be paid January 1. Six per cent will be paid on the common issue and 7 per cent on the preferred.

Wheat Conference Gets Price Plan

London, Dec. 13 (AP).—The international wheat marketing committee had before it today a Franco-German proposal for a world-wide fixed price on wheat. It was learned authoritatively that the representatives of the export nations, however, had not greeted the proposal with enthusiasm.

The exporters are fighting shy of any artificial price fixing, foreseeing difficulties in getting their governments to accept or enforce such agreements.

They much prefer that importing nations should take steps to increase their consumption and widen their margins in order to gain the desired 63 gold cents a bushel boost in the price of the grain.

Improvement Noted in U. S. Rubber Export

Progressive monthly gains since July in United States exports of rubber goods brought the cumulative value of such shipments for the first 10 months of 1933 to a point 2 per cent in excess of that for the corresponding period of last year, according to a report compiled in the Commerce Department's Rubber-Shoe-Leather Division.

The value of shipments in the 10-month period of the current year was $14,080,537, against $13,814,283 for the first 10 months of 1932.

This development is noteworthy, it is pointed out, in view of the fact that the value of rubber goods exports during the first half of 1933, amounting to $7,203,905, was 20 per cent under that for the corresponding period of 1932.

July exports were 16 per cent above those of July, 1932, leaving the seven months' cumulative total 16 per cent behind that for last year. August registered a gain of 32 per cent, cutting the eight months' total trade loss to 11 per cent. September again showed a gain of 61 per cent, and the nine months' total was only 4 per cent less than that for the corresponding period of 1932.

F. H. Prince Is Investor In Armour Securities

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The Evening Sun said today that Frederick H. Prince, Boston broker and principal owner of the Chicago Union Stock Yards, of which he is chairman, has made a substantial investment in the common and preferred stock of Armour & Co., of Illinois.

Curb's Prices Settle Lower In Quiet Sales

Gas Issues Move Up as Turnover Eases to 266,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Stocks settled slightly lower on the curb exchange today, under a quiet trickle of selling. Utilities, however, were again resistant. Alcohols conceded minor recessions, but some of the oils and metals were somewhat heavy.

American Gas & Electric moved up a major fraction, and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore gained 1¼. Electric Bond & Share common was about steady, while the preferred advanced a point.

Gulf Oil, Jones & Laughlin, Ltd., Newmont, and New Jersey Zinc were off around 2 points. Issues yielding sizeable fractions to around a point included Humble Oil, Aluminum Co. of America, Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A," St. Regis Paper, and Glen Alden Coal. Kreuger Brewing moved up 1¼, while the Swift issues were steady.

Transfers, which approximated 266,000 shares, were slightly less than yesterday.

World Trade Points Higher In Most Areas

Ireland, Hungary, China Report Losses; Canada Still Improves.

Conditions in the Irish Free State remain generally depressed with foreign trade considerably below last year's level, exports of livestock being particularly slack.

The business tone in Spain has improved slightly, the industrial outlook is somewhat brighter, and foreign trade is recovering slightly.

A slight setback from the late summer improvement in Poland is observable; owing to the poor grain harvest, imports were fairly heavy in October and the first unfavorable trade balance of the year was reported; for the ten months, however, the balance is favorable, though less so than last year.

Fairly good domestic demand is sustaining industrial activity in Italy, but export sales have been unsatisfactory despite the development of markets for textiles in Turkey and Russia.

Seasonal gains are reported in Czechoslovakia business during November; for ten months exports have exceeded imports as contrasted with an adverse balance last year.

Hungarian conditions show little relief, although the trade balance remains favorable; grain crops surpassed expectations but unprecedentedly low prices are reported.

The adverse balance of Egyptian foreign trade in September was much smaller this year than last owing both to larger exports and smaller imports, and for the first nine months of the year the balance compares very favorably with last year.

Wholesale and retail trading in Canada is generally satisfactory, and certain sections of the Maritimes and urban areas of Ontario report the best conditions since 1930.

China's crops this year have been generally larger than last, although the rice crop is somewhat under the bumper yield of 1932; Shanghai's imports in the first ten months of this year were 12 per cent under the corresponding period of last year, but exports have advanced notably.

New Zealand's exports in the first three-quarters of 1933 were larger than in any similar period since 1930, but imports have continued to decline, reaching the lowest level since the war.

Cotton Gains After Early Selling Drive

December Closes at 9.98 as General Market Rises 3 to 8 Points.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—After fluctuating irregularly in a quiet market, cotton prices rallied moderately in the late trading today. Mid-afternoon declines had reflected heaviness of stocks and grains.

March contracts rallied from 10.07 to 10.17, and closed at the high, with the general market closing steady at net gains of 3 to 8 points.

While the market was steady early in the day, selling up to net gains of about 2 to 4 points, December was relatively easy under liquidation influenced by issuance of notices representing about 1,000 bales.

Light Selling Starts.

Reactions in other markets brought out a little selling and there was also some pressure from January liquidation prior to first notice day next week.

Prices moved nervously over a narrow range in response to moderate orders either way and at one time sagged to net losses of 2 to 5 points. Rallies of about 9 to 11 points from this level followed the appearance of spot house buying of January in the late trading and the market closed at or within a point of the best.

Exports today 15,789 making 3,743,601 so far this season. Port receipts, 18,558. U. S. port stocks, 4,112,475.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady today on covering and a little buying by commission houses on the steadiness of cotton and hogs, which offset the reaction in lard and grains. Final prices were 1 to 3 points net higher. Sales were 22 contracts, including exchanges from January to May at 45 points, and January for July at 65 points.

Crude oil was unchanged at 3¼ to 3½ covering all points. The Census Bureau report, estimating November consumption at 263,403 barrels, against 257,797 in October and last year's revised figure for November of 243,124 barrels, was largely ignored. The visible supply at the end of November was placed at 3,109,300 barrels, against 2,771,100 last month and 3,053,158 last year. Bleachable spot, nominal; December closed 4.35; January, 4.32; March, 4.60; May, 4.77; July, 5.00.

Germans Plan To Increase Tobacco Fields

Land devoted to tobacco cultivation in Germany will be increased by 10 per cent in the current fiscal year, according to a report from Consul W. A. Leonard, Bremen, made public by the Commerce Department.

The area allotted by German authorities for this purpose during the period July 1, 1933, to June 30, 1934, totals 29,680 acres, compared with 26,970 acres allotted in the last fiscal year. It is reported that practically the total area allotted will be placed under tobacco cultivaiton in the current period.

During 1933-34, the report shows, acclimatized Oriental cigarette tobacco grades will be raised in Germany and if the cultivation of these types of tobacco proves successful, the area under cultivation for tobacco may be extended. The German Tobacco Research Institute expects that the cultivation of tobacco free from nicotine or of small nicotine content will also be undertaken by German tobacco planters during the coming eason.

Official figures show that there will be 63,329 tobacco planters in Germany during 1933-34, as compared with 55,748 in the 1932-33 period, an increase of approximately 15 per cent.

China's Export With U. S. Is Seen Gaining

China's export trade with the United States during the first nine months of 1933 was 33 per cent above that of the corresponding period of last year, according to a report from Consul Richard P. Butrick, Shanghai, made public by the Commerce Department.

Declared exports from all of China (including Dairen and Manchuria, but excluding Hongkong) in the 1933 period amounted to $25,466,541, as compared with $19,718,065 during the corresponding period of 1932.

The improvement in China's export trade with the United States in the current year, the report states, is even greater than indicated by the above figures, as the 1932 figures included exports from Hongkong.

Among the items exported in greater quantities during the current year than in 1932 were wood oil, carpet wool, sesame weed, tungsten ore, feathers and bristles.

Potato Trading to Resume.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—Trading in potato futures will be resumed on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange December 18, beginning with transactions in March delivery of Idaho russets.

Although the exchange started potato futures trading in 1931, and more than 5,000 cars were sold that year, the potato market last year was static, and no effort was made to push the futures.

Board Named By Permanent Building Vote

W. G. Davis and Dr. Colvin Added to Directorate at Meeting.

Election of Walter G. Davis, vice president of the Floyd E. Davis Co., real estate firm, and Dr. Ernest M. Colvin, sr., dentist, to the directorate of Columbia Permanent Building Association, was announced yesterday, following the annual meeting of stockholders at the association's headquarters, 733 Twelfth street northwest.

Howard R. Norton, Fred A. Smith, secretary-treasurer of the Floyd E. Davis Co., and James A. Soper, vice president and cashier, Lincoln National Bank, were reelected as directors. Directors whose terms hold over are Floyd E. Davis, Melvin C. Hazen, Alfred H. Taylor, William P. Richards, L. Perry West, H. B. Leary and C. Clinton James.

Applications for charter membership in the new Institute of Real Estate Management of the National Association of Real Estate Boards will be sent out this week to all member boards of the association, following action by the board of directors at their recent quarterly meeting in Chicago. The directors authorized detailed working conditions for the new professional body.

The new institute will give an active National exchange of real estate management data and experience. Such exchange is important in view of the need of constant skillful readjustment of management policies to keep buildings at their maximum earning power in a changing business period.

It is expected to serve a purpose in the field of real estate management comparable to that which the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers of the National Association of Real Estate Boards is now serving in the field of real estate appraisal.

Establishment of a code of ethics and standards of practice is a major objective. A gradual development of standards and units for scientific recording and control, through the exchange of management experience, is an important gain expected through the new institute.

"One of the most serious weaknesses of our business is the fact that we have never worked out and put into operation any standard units of measurement to enable us to know definitely whether we are or are not conducting our business efficiently," Kenneth Cotton Brown, Chicago, president of the new institute, states.

"We propose to begin a systematic study of the fundamentals of our business and the detailed procedure of administering it. Official recommendations of the institute will be made available to each member."

Membership in the institute is open to any active member or a member board of the National Association of Real Estate Boards (individual, partnership, trust or corporation), who is actively engaged in the business of real estate management, or in unorganized territory, to any individual member of the association so engaged, who meets the membership requirements.

Power Production Gains During Week

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Electric power output last week amounted to 1,619,157,000 kilowatt hours, against 1,553,744,000 in the week ended December 2 and 1,518,922,000 in the corresponding period last year, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The increase over the previous week was substantially larger than that recorded for this period a year ago, and contrasted with an almost stationary outturn during the two weeks of 1931.

In comparison with the 1932 period the week's production was up 6.6 per cent. A week earlier the institute computed the increase on the basis of figures for the two weeks ended December 2, due to the incidence of the Thanksgiving holiday in different periods. This gain amounted to 5.9 per cent.

Virginia Fruit Growers Plan '34 Apple Crop

Meeting to Be Held Today to Discuss Finances and Rust.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 13 (Spl.). Fruit growers of Frederick, Clarke, Warren and Shenandoah Counties will meet here tomorrow, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of considering ways of obtaining funds from the Federal Protective Credit Association for the production of the 1934 apple crop.

Senator Harry F. Byrd will address the meeting. A representative of the P. C. A. also is expected to be present and outline the methods by which funds for apple production may be obtained from the Federal Government. Fruit growers have been advised that the P. C. A. is in a position to advance funds to the growers for spraying, cultivation, thinning and other orchard work.

The growers will also consider the matter of cutting young red cedars. Damage to the apple crop by the red cedars—known as cedar rust—was particularly high this past season.

Growers declare the damage is the result of the growth of thousands of cedar sprouts. Tentative plans for the control of cedar rust call for the organization of the growers into cedar-cutting bands for the purpose of scouring the country and eradicating it of all young cedars.

Such cedar-cutting campaigns have been carried on by the growers in years past at their own expense. However, it is expected that the meeting tomorrow will go on record as requesting the Civil Works Administration to furnish funds for the work. The entire expenditure is for labor, no materials but an ax being needed, it is pointed out. The work is carried on during the dead of winter when employment is usually at its lowest point.

Wheat Slumps Under Heavy Liquidation

Market Is Bare of Buyers: All Grains in Decline: Provisions Drop.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—Overcome by pressure of liquidating sales in a market bare of buyers, wheat tumbled today to a maximum of 4¼ cents under Monday's top level. Eastern interests were conspicuous in letting go of wheat holdings. Uneasiness over likelihood of code proposals which would severely curtail speculative operations in the grain markets appeared to be largely responsible.

Another disturbing influence was an official estimate indicating about 20,000,000 bushels' increase of Argentine wheat production this season, as compared with last year.

Wheat Closes Nervous.

Wheat closed nervous, 1¼ to 2½ cents lower than yesterday's finish; corn, 1⅛ to 1⅜ down; oats, 1⅛ to 1⅜ off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 27 cents.

A big Eastern trader was reported to have liquidated December wheat contracts on a heavy scale. The December delivery, which showed independent strength yesterday, was the weakest today, and dropped to about 2 cents discount under May, as against 1 cent discount yesterday.

Aside from Eastern pressure, refusal of the wheat market to maintain recent advances was said to have caused many small holders to turn to the selling side, a development that speedily revealed an almost total absence of aggressive buyers.

Contributing to Decline.

Contributing to downward impetus of wheat prices were trade forecasts that European countries would import only 400,000,000 bushels of wheat this season, compared with 486,000,000 last season. These importing countries were estimated to have produced 44,000,000 bushels more than in 1932.

Four European export countries, excluding Russia, were also asserted to show 130,000,000 bushels increased production. On the other hand, confirmation that wide areas of heavy producing wheat regions in Russia, especially the middle and lower Volga valley, had suffered from insufficiency of rainfall to serve as a counterbalance.

Corn and oats sagged with wheat and, as a result of reports that the Government's corn loan plan was not finding as universal acceptance as at first indicated, primary receipts of corn were much larger than either last week or a year ago.

Light-Power Plants Valued At 17 Billions

(Associated Press.)

Total assets of $17,032,539,620 for commercial companies operating electric light and power stations were shown yesterday in a Census Bureau announcement of its quinquennial census of electrical industries giving a balance sheet shown as of December 31, 1932, listed assets of municipal plants at $710,142,869.

Against the commercial companies assets, liabilities were shown to include capital stocks aggregating $6,935,848,539, long-term debt of $6,678,761,901, retirement reserves of $1,141,066,600 and a surplus of $1,008,429,931.

Fixed capital of the commercial companies total $14,370,420,592 and of municipal plants, $613,076,599.

Liabilities of the municipal plants included cash investments (for unincorporated companies), $250,319,737; long-term debt, $208,975,676, and surplus, $125,150,982.

The statistics do not include establishments which consume all the energy generated, such as mines, factories, hotels, and other enterprises not in the nature of public utilities.

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 122,700 barrels in the week ended December 9, totaling 2,317,750 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California increased 85,300 barrels to 1,813,350 barrels.

Refineries representing 92.4 per cent of estimated total capacity, operated at 61.1 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,042,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 92.4 per cent of total, operated at 62.7 per cent of capacity, was 2,095,000 barrels.

Daily average cracked gasoline by refineries representing 95.1 per cent of total charging capacity was 442,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week by refineries representing 95.1 per cent of total was 448,000 barrels.

Imports of crude and refined oils at principal United States ports totaled 473,000 barrels, against 824,000 barrels.

Luxemburg Prospers In Iron and Steel

The relatively strong position of Luxemburg's metallurgical industry despite the adverse situation in its important foreign markets has been a potent factor in maintaining the economic welfare of the grand duchy, according to Consul George P. Waller, in a report made public by the Commerce Department.

Production of both iron and steel in the current year, the report shows, compares favorably with that of 1932. Output of pig iron in the first ten months of 1933 amounted to 1,589,924 metric tons compared with 1,606,372 tons for the correspondnig period of 1932. Production of figures for steel were, respectively, 1,560,626 tons and 1,609,092 tons.

October production of pig iron amounting to 142,948 tons was 3,200 tons greater than that of September. Steel production in October amounted to 135,812 tons, an increase of 1,300 tons compared with the September figure.

Total Value of Building Permits Rises Slightly in November

Aggregate Construction in 215 Cities for Month Reaches $27,988,488; Represents Decrease Over Same Period in 1932; New York Doubles.

New York, Dec. 13.—The total value of building permits (not including public utilities and public works), according to the regular monthly compilation of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., showed a moderate increase in November over October of 6.8 per cent, as against a usual seasonal decline of about 12 per cent.

This gain, however, was wholly accounted for by a sharp jump in value of permits granted in the Borough of Bronx, which brought the total for New York City, as a whole, to more than double the value of the preceding month.

The November aggregate of building permits for 215 cities of the United States was $27,988,488, as compared with $26,198,342 during October.

Building Total Less.

The November building total, however, showed a decline of 4.5 per cent when contrasted with the corresponding month of last year, when permits amounted to $29,301,309. This was the first time that a decease from the preceding year has been shown in this series since last May.

The group totals, arranged geographically, for 215 cities of the United States, as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., for November, this year and last, follow:

	November, 1933	November, 1932
New England.....	$2,510,599	$1,909,541
Mid. Atlantic....	12,964,776	12,347,184
So. Atlantic	1,869,012	2,325,601
East Central......	2,113,266	1,934,289
South Central....	1,553,185	1,538,341
West Central.....	1,013,762	1,649,125
Mountain	323,783	281,099
Pacific	5,640,105	7,316,129
Total U. S......	$27,988,488	$29,301,309
New York City...	$10,748,633	$5,686,956
Outside N. Y. C..	$17,239,855	$23,614,353

Examination of Totals.

Examination of the group totals for last month shows that five of the divisions reported greater building activity than in November a year ago, but declines in the South Atlantic, West Central and Pacific groups were sufficient to bring the aggregate for the country as a whole below last year's.

Comparing the November returns with those for October, increases were noted in only three of the eight groups, but the large gain recorded for the Middle Atlantic group, which includes New York City, was mainly responsible for last month's favorable showing.

With New York City excluded, the total value of building permits for the other 214 cities amounted to only $17,239,855 during November, as compared with $21,601,881 for October and $23,614,353 for November, 1932, declines, respectively, of 20.2 and 27 per cent.

Eleven Months' Building.

For the first 11 months of this year, building permits for the 215 identical cities totaled $288,727,806, a drop of 23.2 per cent below the $376,009,240 for the corresponding 1932 period.

Comparative monthly totals of building permit values for 215 identical cities of the United States for the past three years are presented herewith:

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Cotton goods—Covering of first quarter deliveries of several print cloth styles is said to have brought a fair amount of business to the market this week.

Rubber—Total domestic stocks of crude rubber on hand November 30 are estimated by the Rubber Manufacturers Association at 353,852 long tons, against October 31 stocks of 343,579 tons.

Cretonnes—The trade hears that there has been a noticeable drop in demand for printed drapery fabrics coincident with continued selling pressure on the part of a few houses.

Rice—Dealers expect a more active buying movement after the inventory season. Prices continue steady.

Pig iron—Buying in the New York district is showing the normal seasonal contraction, according to makers. Last week's sales were estimated at about 2,000 tons, or about half those of the preceding week.

Copper—Custom smelters are said to be doing a moderate business at 8 cents a pound. Berlin continues to furnish the principal buying interest in the foreign market.

Chain store sales—November volume of the first 14 chain and mail order concerns to report was $125,347,062, a gain of 17.3 per cent over the aggregate sales by the same companies for November, 1932.

Hides—Although tanners continued to show interest, business in the spot market was quiet this week, with no sizable movements reported. Prices remain firm, reflecting an unwillingness on the part of packers to press sales.

Cotton goods—Gossip in the trade is to the effect that merchants are showing less disposition to grant price concessions. Narrowness of present margins and belief that a foundation is now being laid for a profitable period of merchandising during the early part of 1934 are cited as the principal reasons for the firmer attitude of sellers.

Dried fruits—Distributors report that the present activity in the market is up to previous expectations. Interest in raisins has broadened following the stronger price trend on the Pacific Coast.

Gasoline—The movement against contracts is satisfactory for this season of the year, according to dealers. Reports are current that retail as well as tank car prices may be marked up in the near future.

Canned Foods—Distributors are preparing for a more active movement. Quotations on the major items are holding firmly.

Brazil Refuses To List Coffee Consignments

New York, Dec. 13.—Neither the Federal Government nor the National Coffee Department of Brazil will consign coffee to the United States or other countries, according to an announcement of the National Coffee Department authorized by the minister of finance and received today in a cable to the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange.

The cable also denied rumors regarding the creation of agencies for distributoin of Brazilian coffees in competition with the regular local dealers.

It was further stated that no person has any authority to make sales offers or promise any advantages whatsoever to importers, roasters or dealers abroad.

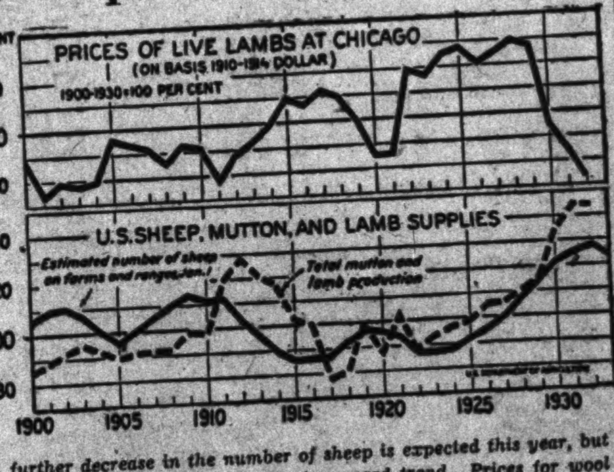
A later cable stated that the National Coffee Department of Brazil had resolved to grant an extra 15 per cent bonus, in kind, on coffee exported to Rumania and Yugoslavia, making the total bonus 25 per cent.

This is in accord with Brazil's plans to increase, if possible, consumption in countries that at present use little, if any, Brazilian coffee.

Sugar Deliveries Decline.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The sugar melt of 13 United States refineries from January 1 to December 2 totaled 3,530,000 long tons against 3,580,000 in the like period of last year.

Sheep and Wool Industry Given 1933 Upturn by Higher Prices



A further decrease in the number of sheep is expected this year, but next year may be the last in the downward trend. Prices for wool and slaughter lambs have risen this year, although the upward movement of wool prices has slowed down in recent months.

By C. L. Harlan.

(Associated Press.)

The financial position of the sheep and wool industry has been improved greatly this year by the higher prices for wool and slaughter lambs—an improvement that was desperately needed by the Western sheep industry following several seasons of subnormal range and feed conditions.

These adverse conditions plus very low prices for lambs and wool have operated to reduce the number of sheep the last two years.

A further decrease is expected this year, but should wool prices continue at or near present levels through next year and should feed and weather conditions be favorable for the next two years, it is not improbable that next year would be the last in the downward trend.

World pool production was considerably smaller this year than last, and a further reduction is looked for next year.

Consumption of wool by United States mills increased rapidly from April to June, and since June has been maintained relatively high.

The upward movement of wool prices in the United States has slowed down considerably in recent months.

Accountants To Celebrate Anniversary

Col. A. H. Carter to Assist at First Annual Meeting; Dinner Session.

Col. Arthur H. Carter, partner of the accounting firm of Haskins & Sells, New York, and president of the National Association of Cost Accountants, will participate in the first ansiversary meeting of the Washington Chapter of the association, to be held at the Mayflower Hotel today.

The Washington Chapter was formed a year ago as the forty-fifth branch of this accounting organization, which is the largest organization of its kind in the United States.

It numbers approximately 7,000 members located in every State of of Union, as well as in foreign countries. Stuart C. McLeod, secretary of the National association, will also participate in this meeting, which will be addressed by Walter A. Staub, of Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, of New York. Mr. Staub's topic will be "Adjustment of Balance Sheets to Present Business Requirements."

The Washington Chapter has as members accountants engaged in various business and governmental positions in the District of Columbia. The local chapter's charter was granted December 9, 1932.

It conducts monthly meetings for the benefit of its members. The general public is cordially invited to participate in these meetings.

The meeting today will be a dinner meeting, beginning at 6:30 p. m. in the Italian garden room of the Mayflower Hotel.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Co. has under construction work valued at more than $5,000,000, largely orders placed within the past few months, the company announced today. The plant is now employing more than 5,000 men with a weekly pay roll of $135,000.

E. A. Deeds, chairman of the National Cash Register Co., says substantial gains have been made in the company's foreign sales in the past two months. Sales in England for October and November, he said, amount to over $750,000 compared with about $400,000 during the same months last year.

Freight loadings of the Wabash Railway last week totaled 10,602 cars, against 10,471 the previous week and 10,953 a year ago.

Sales of Dominion Stores Co. in the four weeks ended December 2 totaled $1,499,915, a decrease of 10.5 per cent from 1932.

Directors of Providence-Washington Insurance Co. declared an extra dividend of 20 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents, both payable December 27 to stock of record December 14.

Edmund H. Winterbottom has been elected to membership in the wool associates of the New York Cotton Exchange.

Financial quarters understand that the New York Central Railroad Co. will seek a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to meet the maturity on May 1 next of $48,000,000 New York Central & Hudson River Railroad 4 per cent mortgage bonds. The plan, it is said, contemplates the retirement of these securities partly with cash and partly with a new issue in a proportion to be determined after consultation with the Interstate Commerce Commission and the R. F. C.

The New York Cotton Exchange service estimates consumption of cotton by domestic mills in November at 485,000 bales. This compares with the Census Bureau figure of 504,000 bales for October and 502,000 for November, 1932.

The New York Cocoa Exchange today joined the long list of commodity markets which have arranged for a suspension of business on December 23 and December 30, the Saturdays preceding Christmas and New Year's Day. Other important markets which will close on those days include the New York Cotton Exchange and the Coffee and Sugar Exchange.

Directors of Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., have approved a plan to retire on March 1 next $952,700 first mortgage 7 per cent bonds of the Farr & Bailey Manufacturing Co., a subsidiary, and the $1,002,600 par value of the Congoleum company's 7 per cent preferred stock. The redemption price of the bonds is 106½ and on the preferred stock $107, making a cash outlay of $2,087,407.

Consumption of crude rubber by manufacturers in the United States during November amounted to 29,162 long tons, the Rubber Manufacturers Association reported today. This compares with 31,906 tons in October and 23,231 tons in November, 1932.

Detroit Refund Group Plans to Pay Interest

New York, Dec. 13.—The City of Detroit Bondholders' Refunding Committee, of which Mr. B. A. Tompkins is chairman, announced today that it expects to distribute the full two-thirds of the interest which has matured since July 1 of this year on all of the bonds and notes of the city which are deposited under the refunding plan on or before December 15, 1933.

Practical assurance of the success of the city's refunding program is indicated by the deposit with the committee, within a period of slightly more than four months, of $20,572,233 of the city's bonds and notes to be refunded under the plan. This amount constitutes more than 7[illegible] per cent of the obligations affected.

Smithsonian Board to View Science March

Year's Progress to Be Told; Savant Discounts Life on Other Planets.

Reports of notable progress in scientific investigations of far-reaching significance will be submitted to the regents of the Smithsonian Institution at their annual meeting today.

Reports dealing with studies of some of the basic problems of animate nature, expeditions into little-known sections of the world in search of a wide variety of scientific data and with the rapid growth of museum collections will be made to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, chancellor of the institution, and fellow members of the board.

In a meeting of scientists yesterday, astronomers heard Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of Mount Wilson Observatory, California, cast doubt on theories of the existence of life elsewhere in the universe.

Astronomer Lectures Here.

Astronomers are less inclined than formerly to believe that there may be life on other planets of the solar system, Dr. Adams stated in his lecture at the Carnegie Institution. There is little evidence, he added, that other planetary systems like our own exist.

Only two planets could support life, he said, and of these Venus is much more favorable. On neither planet has oxygen been found, Dr. Adams said. Dr. Adams pictured Mars as a dying world and said there was no evidence that its so-called canals were made by intelligent beings.

Measurement of very long wave lengths in the solar spectrum is one of the problems on which a report to the regents is to be made by the institution's secretary, Dr. C. G. Abbot. Dr. Abbot is inventor of an especially sensitive radiation-measuring device for measurement of these wave lengths.

Puerto Rico Deep Explored.

Twenty-five expeditions to gather scientific specimens or data in 29 States and Alaska, Canada, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Yucatan, Panama, Ecuador and Siam were sent out or participated in by the institution during the year, Dr. Abbot will tell the regents. Outstanding among these was the Johnson-Smithsonian expedition, which spent two months exploring deep-sea life at Puerto Rico, and which collected four truckloads of specimens representing all the various groups of marine organisms inhabiting those waters.

The regents also will hear that collections of the National Museum have grown by several hundred thousand specimens. A report also will be made on the Zoo collection and the total number of persons visiting it.

Members of the board are Vice President Garner, Senators Joseph T. Robinson, M. M. Logan and David A. Reed, Representatives T. Alan Goldsborough, Edward H. Crump and Charles L. Gifford; Frederic A. Delano and John C. Merriam, of Washington; Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore, Ambassador Robert W. Bingham and Augustus P. Loring.

Radio Waves and Ripples

HOLIDAY broadcasting is coming to a head. The networks have started a procession of announcements of special Christmas programs, filling our desk with mimeographed paper, forcing us to recount their plans or expand, when one can't be too certain the depression really is over.

Washington offices of the National Broadcasting Co. and the Greater National Capital Committee have been phoning the embassies lately, the result of which will be a round-the-world Christmas greeting from children of our foriegn emissaries.

The program, scheduled for December 23, will follow generally the pattern of the one aired by N. B. C. last year and will be broadcast by many of the youngsters who participated then—Maria Louisa de Irujo, daughter of the counselor of the Spanish Embassy; Senor Don Luis M. de Irujo; Petro Bonardelli, son of the Italian Immigration Counselor and the young man who shrieked "Viva!" to Mussolini for his 1932 broadcast; John Simopoulos, son of Charalambos Simopoulos, Greek Minister; Patricia Prochnik, daughter of the Austrian Minister; Beatrice Recinos, daughter of the Minister of Guatemala; Carlos Arcaya, son of the Venezuelan Minister.

Great Britain, France, Germany and a lot of other nations have yet to be approached, but the Greater National Capital Committee can be counted on to be sufficiently thorough to preclude the possibility of international complications.

While on the subject of holiday broadcasting we might as well go ahead and remove all element of surprise from your Christmas programs by telling you some of the other things the networks are planning.

There, of course, is National's opening of Metropolitan Opera Company broadcasting on Christmas Day with "Hansel and Gretel," based, incidentally, on Mr. Grimm's Christmas fairy tale. In the same program category falls N. B. C.'s inaugural broadcast of the Boston Symphony the preceding Saturday evening.

Columbia, you will remember, is using its short-wave equipment for an exchange of merry Christmases between the United States, England and most of the countries of Europe and the empire. An important part of the program will be a merry Christmas from King George.

Both Columbia and N. B. C. expect to radio the lighting of the National Community Christmas tree near the White House, in which President and Mrs. Roosevelt probably will take part Christmas Eve. There will be carols by the George Washington University Glee Club, and Gordon Junior High School Chorus and Christmas airs by the Marine Band.

The major networks by that time will have collaborated in a radio presentation of the annual Christmas party of the National Press Club, at which the merry Christmasing will be handled by Commerce Secretary Roper, in place of Senator Borah, who originally was scheduled to speak, but now finds he will be absent from the Capital on the day of the party, December 23.

There's much more if you'd care to stay around and listen. "A Visit from St. Nicholas," "'Twas the Night Before Christmas" will be staged for 15 minutes Christmas Eve by N. B. C., just preceding two broadcasts from Germany, bringing music and chimes of a midnight service at the old Benedictine Monastery near the Swiss frontier, and German carols by the Schwarzmeier Choir of Berlin school children. Chimes of Trinity Church in New York and voices of the St. Dominique Choir in Quebec will be united in a double hookup for Blue Network broadcasting.

There's still a lot more. Metropolitan Opera singers are entertaining immigrants on Ellis Island, and N. B. C. is broadcasting their concert December 23. WJSV, Capital Columbia outlet, has a Christmas message by Dr. Allan A. Stockdale scheduled for the day after Christmas. But if we write much more about this, there won't be room to tell you that we saw typed inconspicuously at the top of an N. B. C. press release:

Whitecaps.

WRC—"New Bible Evidence," discussion, 2:45 p. m.; James Cagney, Chic Sale and Florence Desmond, guest artists on the Valle program, 8 p. m.; Senator Capper, Kansas, speaking on cheese during the Whiteman broadcast, 10 p. m.

WMAL—Radio Joe auctions a fox hound, 8 p. m.; George Washington University Glee Club, 8:30 p. m.; Soprano Lucille Manners, Barytone Theodore Webb and the Rondoliers Quartet on the Hands Across the Border program, 10 p. m.

WJSV—"Millions for Protection," speech by Dr. Livingston Farrand, Cornell University president; Academy of Medicine program, 11:45 p. m.; Edith Murray singing a medley of popular melodies, 8 p. m.; Cotton Club orchestra, midnight.

* * * *

A special broadcast in observance of President Roosevelt's fifty-second birthday will be carried to every station on the Columbia network January 30.

Part of the program, which is to start at 11:15 a. m., will come from the White House, the President participating. The remainder will be comprised of congratulatory messages from the country's leading citizens.

Benefit dances and parties throughout the Nation are being planned in conjunction with National observance of the day, funds collected thereby to be sent to Mr. Roosevelt for relief of paralytics.

Wanna buy a dog?

A public-spirited citizen of Rockville, Md., whose assets are "frozen" in a yelping assortment of well-bred dog flesh, gave a full-blooded fox hound to Communty Chest solicitors, Mrs. S. S. McHugh and Miss Flora B. Daniels.

KATHERINE CARRINGTON, who is held responsible for much of the heart interest in the "Evening in Paris" broadcasts.

Radio Joe and His Budget Boys auction the dog to WMAL listeners and whoever may be hanging around the studios at 7:45 tonight.

WOL is doing what it can to return former employes of the short-lived Amalgamated Broadcasting System to employment. Hub Doolittle, who worked for Ed Wynn in New York, was assigned to a job yesterday, that of assisting Billie Gould, another A. B. S. product, with the business of program building. Doolittle has been putting the Village Nutsmith on the air, and the WOL minds mean that show to be a nightly chore with him, beginning next week.

WOL begins a series of tabloid Gilbert and Sullivan opera presentations with "Pinafore" Monday night at 8:30. An Estelle Wentworth cast will work in costume before an audience of as many persons as can be brought into the Annapolis Hotel studios.

WJSV opens a new show tomorrow night—a song and gag act with Marcella Shields, Willie Huggins and Announcer Harold Gray. Huggins has been heard on the Sun Dial. Miss Shields may remind you of Helen Kane and Gracie Allen. The time is 10:30.

McCarl Blocks Plan to Supply Business Data

Commerce Department Can Not Charge for Extra Service.

A scheme by which the Commerce Department would give trade information to private business for a fee sufficient to pay the cost of compiling it was turned down yesterday by Comptroller Gen. McCarl, because the law interferes with the plan.

The department pointed out that it had much trade data in its files, but could not compile it for reasons of expense. It proposed to charge a fee for collecting the data and pay the fee into a special fund. The compilation would be only specific orders, and persons employed to do it would be paid from the special fund.

In deciding that the plan was not feasible McCarl said all fees charged for special work had to go into a certain fund, which could not be used to pay personnel, he declared.

At the same time, the Comptroller General ruled that temporary employes could not be given different duties and a permanent status without the approval of the President. The War Department had turned a shop checker at $4.24 per day into a clerk-typist at $1,320 per year. The department claimed that this was only a change in designation, and Presidential approval was not necessary because it did not involve any raise in pay.

In still another decision, McCarl held that a Government worker could not receive milage of more than 5 cents per mile even though he took another Federal worker with him on Government business. However, the cost of travel for two men may be considered when deciding whether to authorize the use of a private auto for Government business, he said.

Bingham Speaker At Optimist Club

Tells of Plans to Observe Flying Anniversary.

Former Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautical Association, told members of the Washington Optimist Club yesterday the plans his organization has made for observance of the thirtieth anniversary of the Wright brothers flight, Saturday and Sunday.

The National celebration, he said, will center in Washington, where on Saturday an Army-Navy and Marine Corps air show will be staged at Bolling Field in the afternoon, followed by a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel at night. A commercial show at College Park Airport Sunday will complete the observance.

The Optimists voted to make a toy an essential of admission at next week's luncheon. The toys will be given to The Washington Post Toy Fund.

War Flier Jailed On Check Charge

T. M. Hewitt Gets 60 Days in Police Court.

Thomas M. Hewitt, 39, of 816 Thirteenth street northwest, famous World War aviator, was sentenced to 60 days in jail yesterday when he pleaded guilty to two cases of passing bad checks, in Police Court yesterday.

Hewitt, a member of the Lafayette Escadrille, was committed to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation when arraigned several weeks ago. While there he voluntarily gave three blood transfusions.

When sentencing Hewitt, Judge Gus A. Schuldt said that he was showing leniency toward the prisoner's war record.

Yeggs Get $1,000 In Laundry Safe

Thieves Overlook $100, Put in Hiding Nearby.

Thieves, who entered by a side window, jimmied a safe in the office of the Home Laundry, 1101 Raum street northwest, and stole $1,000 early yesterday.

T. A. Warner, manager, who reported the theft to police, said that an additional $100, which had been hidden nearby, was overlooked.

Using files, the bandits virtually sawed off the combination of the safe. They departed through the window they had forced on entering.

When Is a Peanut Not a Peanut? When It's Soap, Ink or Rubber

The startling revelation that when a person buys a bag of peanuts he is really buying a tube of shaving cream or a strip of linoleum, in rudimentary form, was impressed upon a group of Howard University students yesterday by a colored professor from Alabama.

Dr. George W. Carver, noted chemist of Tuskegee Institute, demonstrated 100 products which the South's lowly "goober" has yielded to him in years of research.

Face powder and cheese, to name a few, not to mention synthetic rubber, milk, cream, butter, ice cream, instant coffee, complete with sugar and cream; lard, soap, ink, pickles and axle grease. Dr. Carver said he is now experimenting on the application of peanut rubber in the manufacture of automobile tires.

Although a specialist in by-products of the peanut, the Tuskegee scientist also has won fame for his production of 125 commodities from a sweet potato base. Sweet potato flour, which he perfected, was used at the institute during the World War as a substitute for wheat flour.

From Alabama clay he has extracted multicolored paints, and he has made paper, rope cordage and straw matting from okra fiber. He is still at work trying to perfect a road-building material from cotton and asphalt.

Trinity Students Plan Yule Party for Orphans

The youngsters will be chosen from St. Gertrude's, St. Vincent's and St. Joseph's Orphanges.

Children may be accompanied by parents or older brothers or sisters. The admission for everybody will be one brand-new toy. It may be a 10c toy or something more expensive, but every toy will join The Washington Post's collection that will be distributed to poor children on Christmas morning by Old Santa Claus himself. The program has been especially arranged for children, and includes one of the famous "Mickey Mouse" animated cartoons.

A Big Doll's House Given Away

One of the children who attend this great benefit show will receive a magnificent handmade doll's house, made and donated by Andrew Gemeny, agent for the Traveler's Insurance Company. The theater management and employes and the motion picture distributors are all cooperating to make this the happiest Christmas ever for thousands of underprivileged boys and girls. This is your chance to help by coming to the big Keith's Theater Party and donating a new toy.

LEGAL NOTICES

WILLIAM W. BRIDE and WALTER L. FOWLER, Attorneys.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT of Columbia, holding a District Court.—In re condemnation of land for acquisition of lots 9 and 10, of square 1135, and those portions of lots 9, 10 and 11, of square 1127, as would constitute the northeast corner of said square 1127, to permit extension of the northeast boundary sewer, in the District of Columbia. District Court, No. 2255. Order of citation and publication. Upon consideration of the petition of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia filed in the above-entitled cause, and on motion of counsel for the said Commissioners, it is, by the Court, this 5th day of December, 1933, ordered that the clerk of the court issue citations to all parties interested in the land to be condemned herein particularly described in the aforesaid petition, to appear in this Court on the 16TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1934, at 10 o'clock a. m., to answer the said petition and to show cause, if any they have, why the prayers thereof should not be granted, and why the land through squares 1135 and 1127 should not be condemned for sewer purposes as provided by law. It is further ordered that a copy of said citation be served by the United States Marshal for the District of Columbia upon such owners of the land sought to be condemned herein, and found by the said marshal, or his deputies, within the District of Columbia, and it is futher ordered that all persons having any interest in these proceedings be, and they are hereby warned and required to appear in this Court on or before the said 16th day of January, 1934, to answer the said petition and to continue in attendance until the Court shall have made its final order ratifying and confirming the award and report of the condemnation jury to be appointed by the Court to appraise the value of the respective interests of all persons concerned in the land and premises mentioned and described in the aforesaid petition. It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published twice a week for two successive weeks in the Washington Evening Star, The Washington Post and the Washington Herald, newspapers published in the said District, commencing at least ten days before the said 16th day of January, 1934. By the Court: JESSE ADKINS, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) FRANK E. CUNNINGHAM, Clerk. By H. M. HULL, Assistant Clerk.

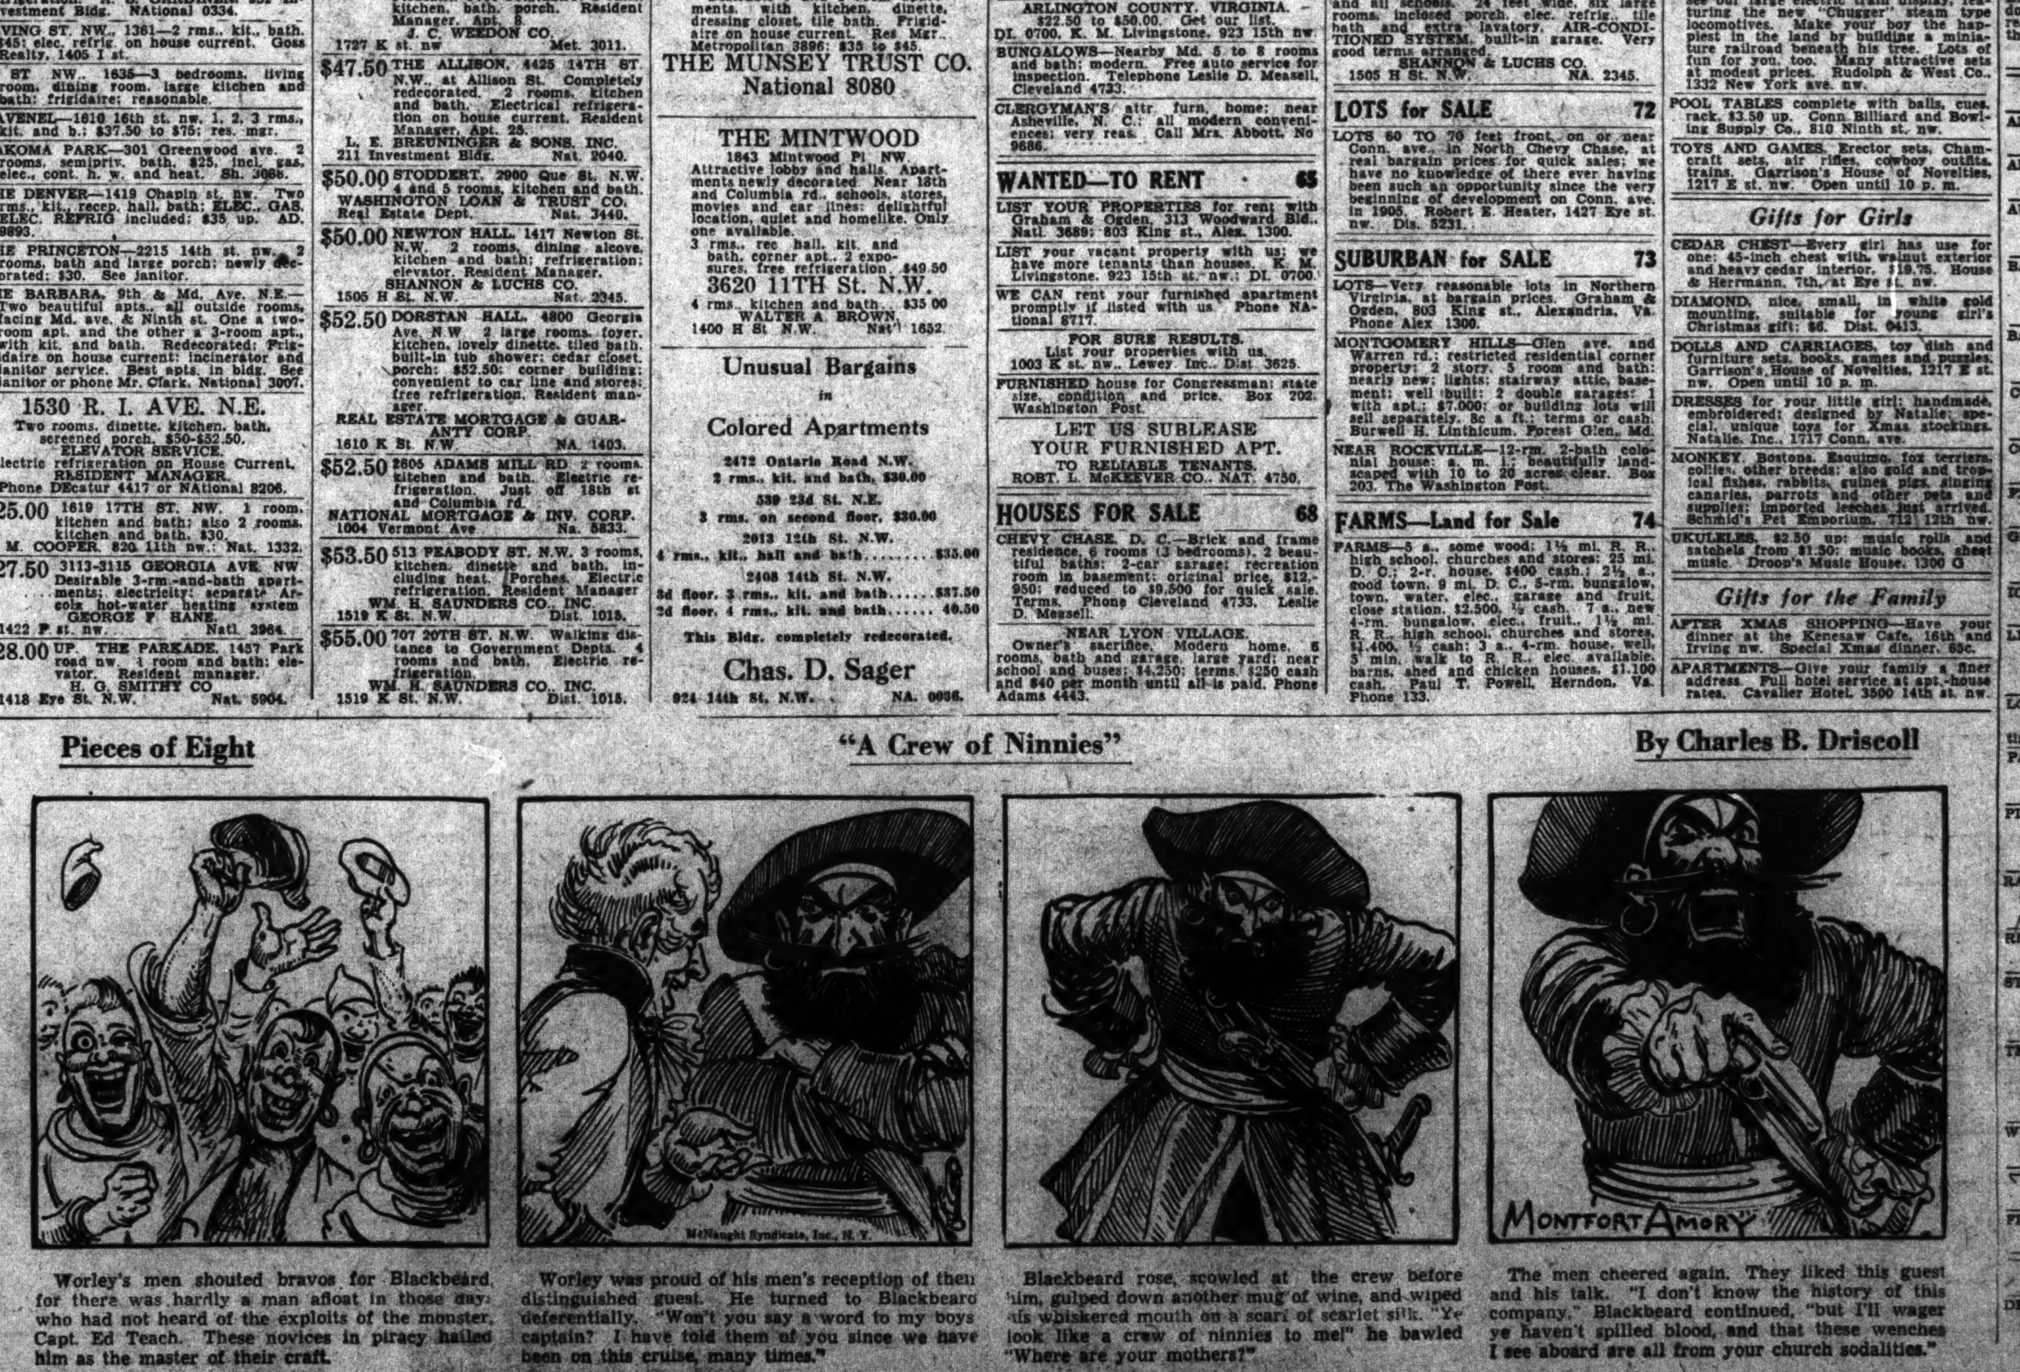
"A Crew of Ninnies"

By Charles B. Driscoll



MONTFORT AMORY
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.

Worley's men shouted bravos for Blackbeard, for there was hardly a man afloat in those days who had not heard of the exploits of the monster, Capt. Ed Teach. These novices in piracy hailed him as the master of their craft.

Worley was proud of his men's reception of their distinguished guest. He turned to Blackbeard with a smile. "Won't you say a word to the lads, captain? I have told them of you since we have been on this cruise, many times."

Blackbeard rose, scowled at the crew before him, gulped down another mug of wine, and wiped his beard with a corner of a scarlet silk. "Ye look like a crew of ninnies to me!" he bawled. "Where are your mothers?"

The men cheered again. They liked this guest and his talk. "I don't know the history of this company," Blackbeard continued, "but I'll wager ye haven't spilled blood, and that these wenches I see aboard are all from your church sodalities."

The Undesirable.

I am the kicker who's always quicker than any other gent to beg or borrow all kinds of sorrow and wade in discontent. My rag I'm crewin' concerning ruin, disaster and collapse, and with my sighing and doleful crying I weary cheerful chaps. I am the writer, the dismal blither, who floods the public press with caustic letters that score my betters and magnify distress. I'm always wotting that something's rotting in Denmark's troubled state. I'm always jeering and idly sneering at worthy men and great. I am the gaffer who thinks the laugher an empty-pated clown; it is more proper to be the yawper of grief throughout the town. It is far wiser to be a miser with cheerful words and gay, and deal in railing and tears and wailing, and talk about decay. I am the piker who is a striker when some good schemes are sprung, my gall disclosing, I am opposing such schemes with leather tongue. So men are saying, as I go straying along the village street, "When he is planted we'll be enchanted, our bliss will be complete. His talk's so dreary he makes us weary, he gives us all the gripes; no words consoling are ever rolling from out his bronchial pipes."

Son and Daughter Get Most of Grimes Estate

Augusta Grimes Fleming and William N. Grimes, daughter and son of Mrs. Margaret McA. Grimes, who died December 8, are named as the principal beneficiaries of her $168,100 estate, it was shown yesterday when a petition for probate of her will was filed in District Supreme Court.

Each will receive one-third of the estate, and two granddaughters, Marion Grimes Plant, and Natalie Thompkins will receive one-sixth each. The National Savings & Trust Co., named as executor of the estate, filed the petition.

Hughes, Baker Laud Red Cross As Board Meets

"In spite of differences of policy," he said, "there is one point on which four national administrations, the three preceding ones and this one, have been in absolute accord, and that is in the appointment of Judge Payne as chairman of the central committee of the Red Cross.

"The extraordinary philanthropical work that is being carried on runs so smoothly that there is no friction whatsoever observable. We find nothing in the public press with respect to any difficulties in the working of the machinery of this great organization. We find no critics; no lobbyists. We know nothing of public reproach."

Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker described the Red Cross as a great solidifying influence in American patriotism. He told how ancient Scottish clans going into battle flung the heart of Wallace ahead of their fighting men because "where the heart of Wallace went, the heart of Scotland would be," and added:

"The Red Cross is the heart of America and wherever we throw it America will follow."

Henry Morgenthau, jr., Acting Treasury Secretary, was elected Red Cross treasurer Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and George E. Scott, Chicago, were reelected to the central committee.

Yule Trees to Rise In Lafayette Park

In 1934, Community Fete Will Be Held at Square.

Lafayette Park was chosen yesterday as the future site for the Capital's community Christmas trees. The selection, made by a subcommittee headed by Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, of the Community Center Department, and C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, is subject to approval of the National Community Christmas tree committee.

Starting in 1934, the tree-lighting exercises will be held in Lafayette Park between Jackson statue and Pennsylvania avenue. Two new spruce trees are to be purchased for the purpose. This Christmas Eve the ceremony, at which President Roosevelt will officiate, will be held in Sherman Square.

Massachusetts Society Will Dance Tomorrow

The Massachusetts Society of Washington will hold a Christmas party and dance at the Shoreham Hotel tomorrow night. Dancers from the Langlotz School will entertain.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING "IF."

(After Mr. Kipling.)

If you can say, "Of course, I'll meet you, honey—
I love to help with Christmas shopping, dear;"
If you can wait with disposition sunny
An hour for the lady to appear;
If you can say "Okay" when she says, "Sorry—
I didn't realize it was so late,"
And never doubt her alibi or story,
And always be a trustful, patient mate.

If you can ride the crowded escalator—
If you can smile when battered to your knees;
If you can travel in the elevator
And still pretend you're happy and at ease;
If you can stand the mob without complaining
And never mind the buffeting about—
If you can quite forget your bunions paining
And never yell, "Come on, dear, let's get out!"

If you can go from "misses' suits" to "notions"—
If you can tramp from "leather goods" to "hats;"
If you can stand the wildest of commotions
While wifey's pricing earrings, shoes and hats;
And something for Aunt Minnie and the kids—
And never feel your patience hit the skids.

If you can climb upstairs where all the toys are—
The games, the books and all the gadgets queer;
If you can tell her what the little boys are Demanding for their Christmas gifts this year;
If you can tell a good drum from a bad one,
And play a tune upon a toy cornet—
If you can tell a swell game from a sad one
And operate a midget building set.
If you can carry packages quite neatly
And never smash a single thing inside—
If you can fall and, rising, smile so sweetly
Without revealing any injured pride;
If you, with bundles seventeen or twenty,
Can still find means to tote a rocking-horse—
If no amount of merchandise seems plenty
And all you say is, "Yes, my sweet, of course!"
If you can hit the line and never falter—
If you can take a punch and never fall—
If no indignity your mood will alter
As you are crushed and battered to the wall;
If you can give the laugh to each wild minute,
And with your wife the shopping gantlet run—
Yours is the earth and everything that's in it,
And—which is more—you'll be a SAP, my son!

EXCITING AT LEAST.

Western cattlemen visiting New York are indignant because they find the beef for which they get 2½ cents a pound selling there for 40 cents a pound. It looks as if the best thing for a cattleman to do is to join a rodeo.

President Roosevelt denounces pagan ethics in high places during the boom years. He is dead right, but any comparison with the pagan ethics in low places would result in a 50-50 verdict.

It was not a matter of altitude in the 1925-1929 period. The boys at the base of the mountain had thrown away the book of rules, too.

Mullens Orders 1,000 to Work On Va. Roads

CWA Projects Will Begin Soon; Conflict With State Ended.

(Associated Press.)

Orders to employ approximately 1,000 men on civil works projects on roads went forward yesterday to resident engineers of the Virginia State Highway Department from C. S. Mullen, chief engineer of the department.

Mr. Mullen's orders brought to a close the threatened impasse between the Civil Works Administration and the department as the result of the announced policy of the department that it, being responsible for the condition of Virginia highways under the law, could not permit work on the roads which was not under its supervision and control.

The department also held that the difference in wage scales under the C. W. A. and the highway department would demoralize highway work.

The question was settled on the basis of the work being done under the department's control by civil works employes, and on the basis of wage scales governing existing road projects.

Work in Nine Counties.

The projects approved by the Civil Works Administration call for work in the city of Hopewell and the counties of Richmond, Russell, Scott, Dinwiddie, Green, Wise, Prince George, Gales and Alleghany.

Meanwhile, the Civil Works Administration in Richmond announced that 133 new projects had been approved for Virginia and that about $680,000 had been made available for the work, providing for approximately 1,000,000 man hours of work.

At Fredericksburg also 28 additional civil works projects for northern Virginia were approved by Ray C. Hopkins, deputy civil works administrator for that area. These call for expenditure of $140,596.34 and provide 127,840 man hours of labor. These were forwarded to the State administrator's office in Richmond.

Owl Car Conductor Foils Holdup Man

Frustrated Bandit Pulls Knife, Flees Fight.

A would-be bandit, who brandished a knife on a Chevy Chase street car at the end of its "owl" run early yesterday, found the cool nerve of Conductor Henry T. Ritchie, 35, of 607 South Carolina avenue southeast, too much for him.

The man boarded the car at a downtown corner. He was dressed in a blue lumber jacket and a gray cap, Ritchie said. At Connecticut avenue and Ingomar street northwest he thrust the weapon against Ritchie's ribs.

Artist Fights Return On N. Y. Theft Charge

George Landsman, 24, artist, arrested Tuesday as a fugitive from justice, refused extradition to New York when arraigned in Police Court yesterday before Judge Ralph Given. He was held under $5,000 bond.

Landsman, arrested by Detective Sergt. Richard Cox, is alleged to have appropriated for his own use $9,000 given to him by Mrs. Gussie Lugermann, of New York, for deposit in a bank, police said.
